Enchanting 7,000 SF Estate Spanning 6 Acres in Dering Harbor

Shelter Island. The 200-acre, seaside Village of Dering Harbor has been dubbed "The Smallest Village in New York". And in the heart of this quaint Village is Oriole Farm, a six park-like acre estate which was a brilliant collaboration between Barnes Coy Architects and Edmund D Hollander Landscape Design. The intriguing stone and stucco residence incorporates 7,000+ square feet of finely articulated living space on three levels. The two-story entry hall leads to the living room and intimate dining alcove. The kitchen opens to its own family room with fireplace. The ground floor primary suite is adjacent to a paneled library with fireplace. Four additional bedrooms, an office, and laundry room await upstairs. The lower level offers a media room with fireplace, gym, playroom, wine room, laundry room, and spa bath. A large, covered porch with fireplace overlooks the manicured lawns and lush plantings. The 55-ft Gunite pool & spa sits next to an enchanting Lord & Burnham greenhouse, all braced by an allee of 100-year-old weeping beech trees and specimen plantings. There is ample room for tennis and the detached 3 car garage could be finished to provide additional living space. An ambitious new owner might inquire about the opportunity to own an additional 13 acres of contiguous, mostly cleared property. This sublime property sits across the street from Gardiner's Bay Country Club and is within easy walking distance to beaches and the quaint waterfront commercial district with its multiple shops and restaurants. With easy access to both the North and South Forks as well as proximity to the shops and various restaurants that dot the 29 square mile island oasis, this singular new offering deserves your attention today.

I have always loved Memorial Day weekend in the Hamptons. For me, it means the start of summer. This time of year recalls some of the greatest memories in my life, beginning when I was in my early teens up to the present day. The Hamptons will never get old to me. I am excited for the summer ahead!

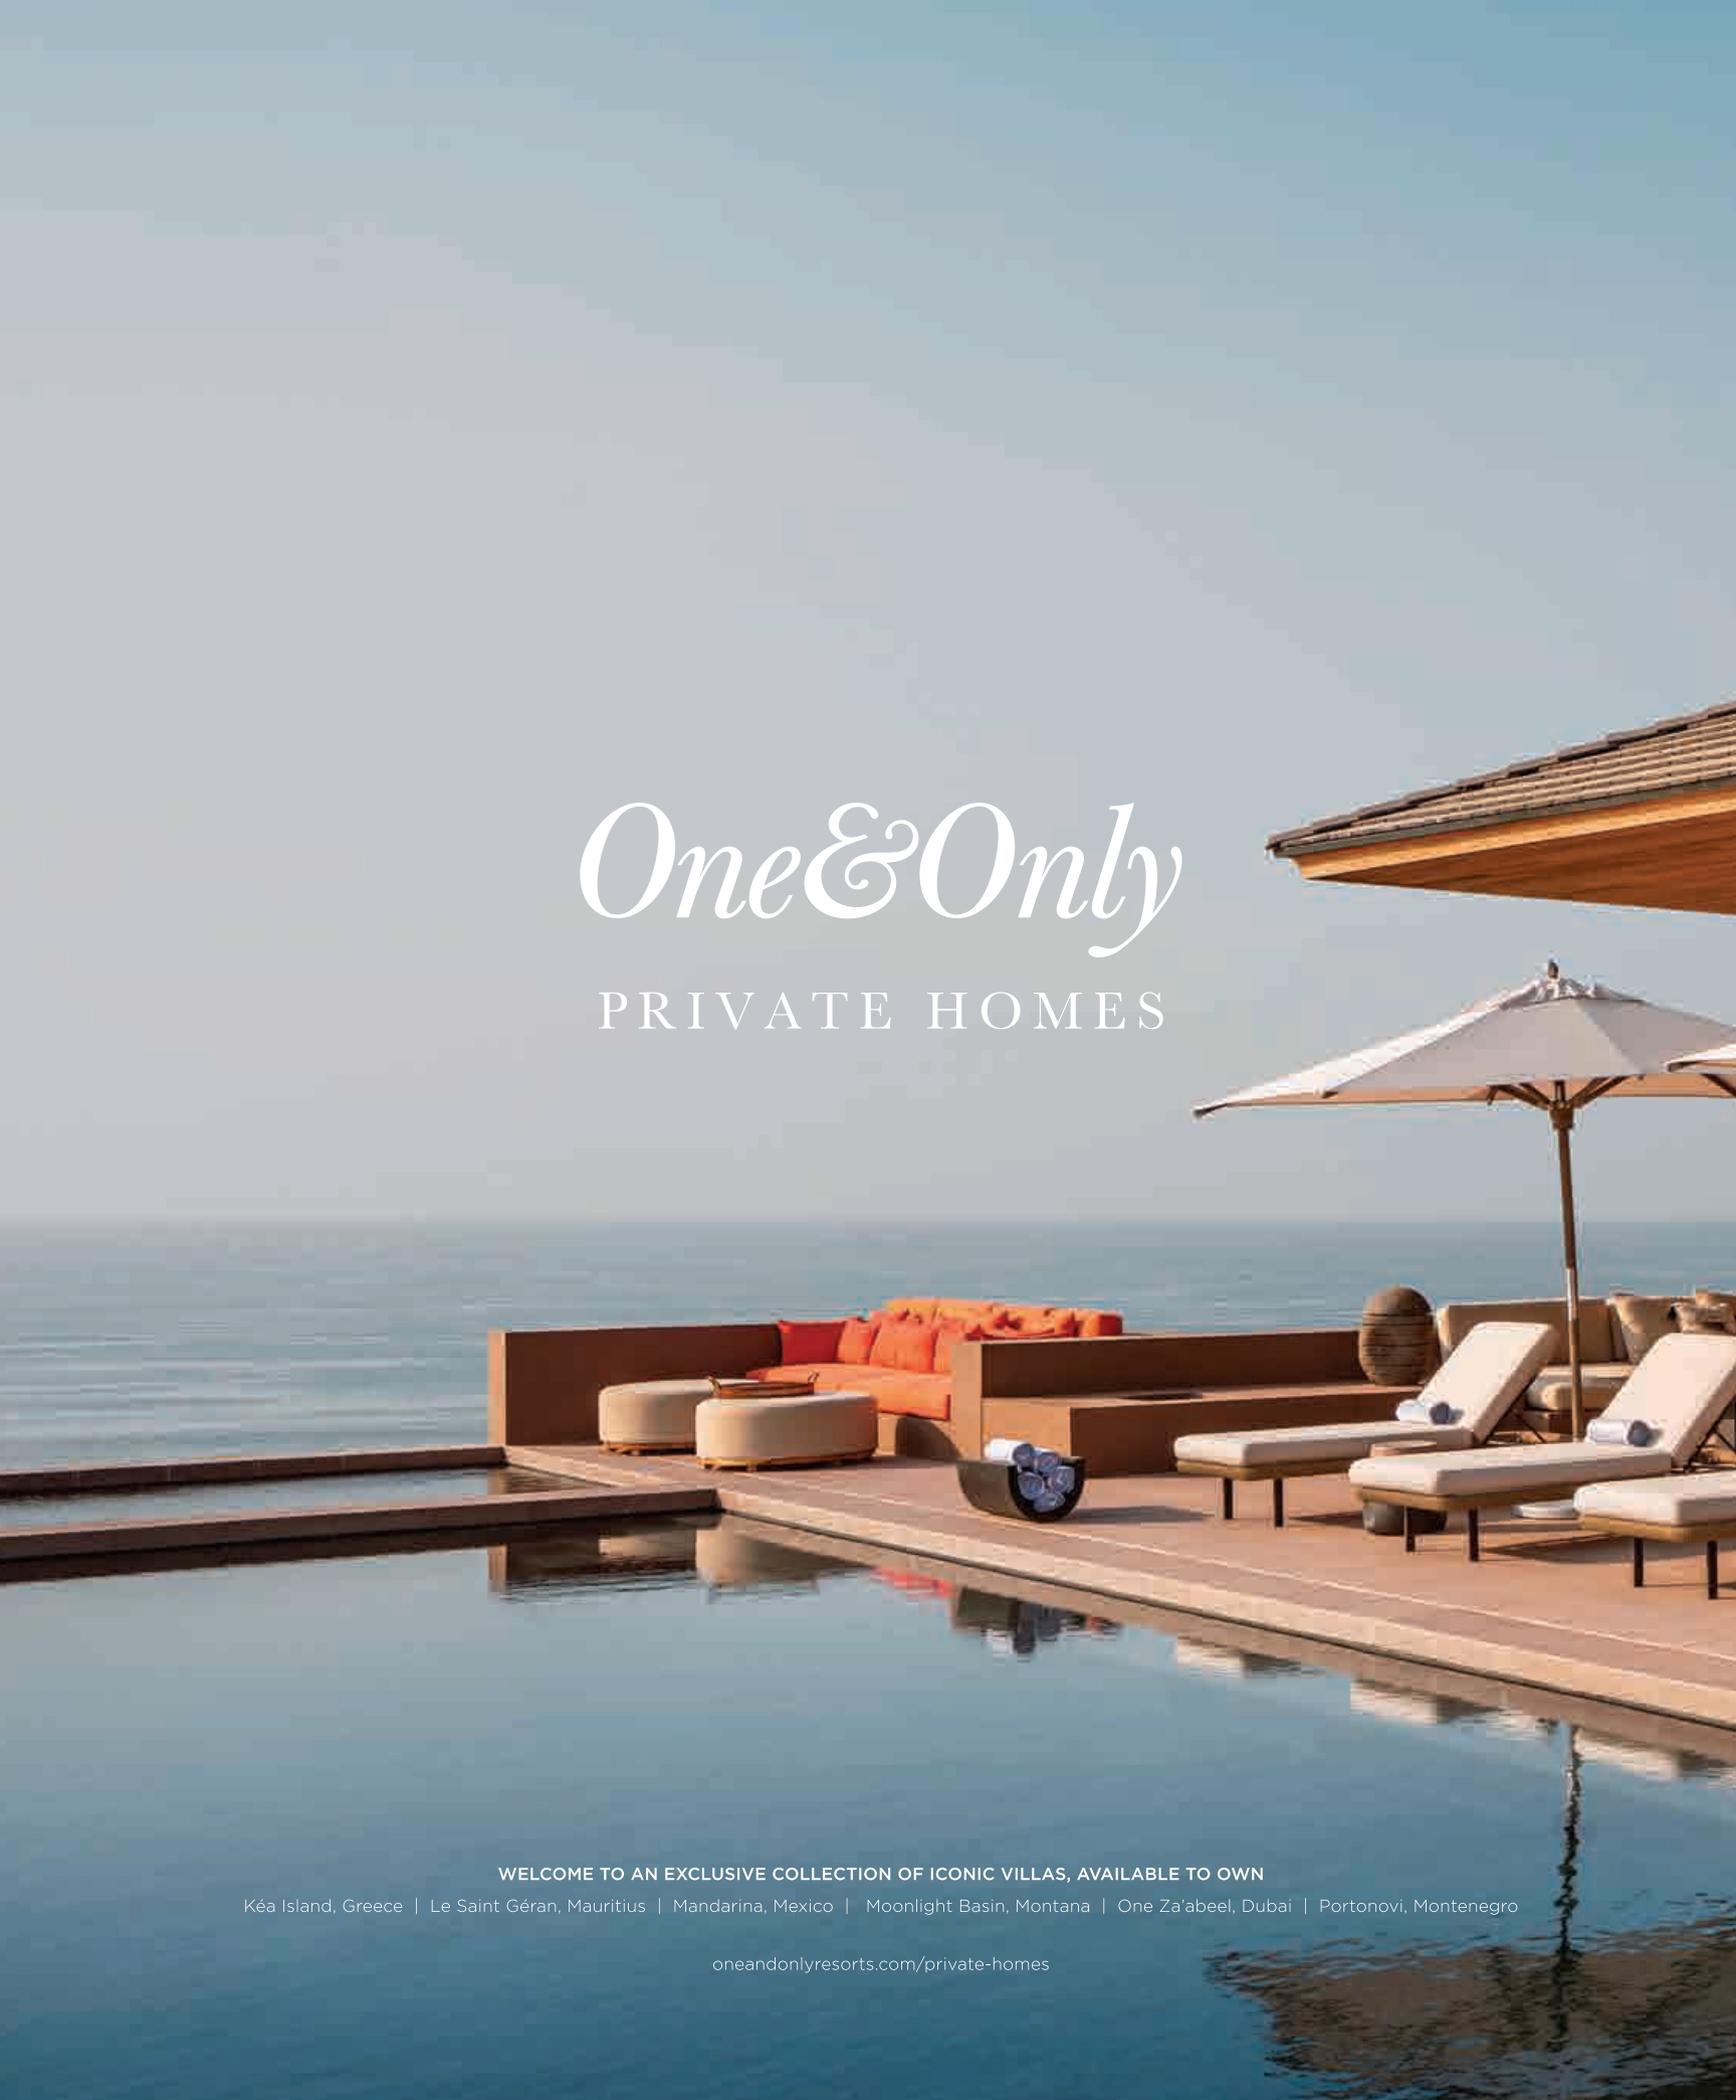

This year I am especially looking forward to socializing with my family and friends and making new friends. At the top of my list are dinner parties, long beach days, and charity events. It's time to start being social again: going to events and restaurants and doing all the things we love to do. I believe an active social life is important for everyone. It fulfills our human need to connect with other people and partake in the world around us.

Summer in the Hamptons has so much to offer. Life here is truly wonderful. The ocean beaches, farm stands, vineyards, open fields, and the natural scenery as well as quaint villages and great restaurants are unmatched. It makes for a great venue to get married, enjoy bike rides, and have family gatherings.

With a world of choice here, you can clearly make a year-round life in the Hamptons as many of us have already done.

Have a great Memorial Day weekend!

The Stay

Accessible by land and sea, The Shoals Suites & Slips is a waterfront hotel just a short car or boat ride from the Hamptons. Set on the marina of the Peconic Bay on the North Fork, the resort has a private boat slip, allowing boaters to dock and stay. Meanwhile, the luxe hotel suites are modern coastal-inspired rooms with kitchens and outdoor balconies that embody the epitome of summer.

Water & Wellness

The hotel's owners are longtime Southold residents who have thoughtfully designed the hotel's programming. Yoga classes, boat charters, and an on-site oyster program with the female-owned Little Ram Oyster Company are some of the most popular offerings.

If you're in the mood for a day of wellness, start with a relaxing yoga class overlooking the bay. Next up, guests can charter the hotel's vintage Chris-Craft boat for a visit to a nearby beach. End your day by venturing into town on the hotel's classic blue beach cruisers.

Food & Drink

Little Ram Oyster Company, which is steps from the hotel, offers tours and shucking classes. It even turns the Shoals Food Truck into a "Shuck Truck" with fresh oysters on Wednesdays throughout the summer. Head to the hotel's sister property in town, North Fork Table & Inn, set in a historic countryside home with a feeling of elevated coziness and a menu that focuses on local, seasonally inspired fare.

Summer Skincare

By JEANETTE ZINNO

I chatted with skincare guru Tata Harper about her summer skincare rules and which of her products from her line she can't live without during the warmer months.

How do you prep your skin for summer?

Something people often overlook when it comes to summer skincare is their body. After a full day in the sun, it's important to hydrate your skin with something beyond a normal lotion or moisturizer.

Which product do you recommend?

I recommend a body serum that helps skin regeneration and cell turnover. Our new Resurfacing Body Serum brightens and smooths the skin with face-grade ingredients, including fruit-based vitamin C, plant-derived vitamin A, AHA superfruits, orange peptides, and hyaluronic acid. Finally, I recommend locking everything in with an oil such as our Revitalizing Body Oil, or any of your choosing.

Do you have any summer skin rules to share with our readers?

One of my favorite summertime hacks to keep my skin bright (a must during the summer when you're not wearing as much makeup) with our Concentrated Brightening Essence. It preps skin for maximum product absorption. This will help make sure you're getting all the benefits from the products you're using.

Mediterranean cuisine can transport you to an exotic location, where the sights and scents are intoxicating. Entering a cafe with Greek, Turkish, Italian, or perhaps Egyptian influences, can stimulate senses into a cultural whirlwind. A meal becomes a brief adventure to another country.

With summer barbecues in our future, I found a delicious recipe for a turkey burger sauce from Budget Bytes. I edited the recipe based on available ingredients and my personal tastes.

Lemon Dill Yogurt Sauce

- 1 cup plain Greek yogurt
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- ½ teaspoon garlic powder
- ½ tablespoon fresh dill
- 1 tablespoon salt

GROWING YOUR OWN MICROGREENS GARDEN IN 2023

BY LIANA WERNER-GRAY

More people are growing food in their own gardens. This summer you'll see that microgreens are trending in the Hamptons. There's nothing more satisfying than going to your outside or windowsill garden for some microgreens to build a fresh, nutrient-rich salad. Garden to table is the ultimate health hack and secret to maintaining a youthful appearance.

MICROGREENS

Microgreens are young plants that are about two weeks old. Unlike larger vegetables and herbs that take weeks or months to grow, microgreens can be harvested and eaten a week to 10 days after the leaves have developed. These young plants have an intense amount of nutritional value compared to fully grown greens. Because they are small, their nutrients are compacted. Research indicates that a serving of microgreens contains up to 40% more phytochemicals than their fully grown counterparts. Nutrients include high levels of powerful vitamins, minerals, and other health-supporting components.

Vegetables grown as microgreens include broccoli, beets, carrots, cucumbers, fennel, leeks, lettuce, onions, pea shoots, red-veined sorrel, and spinach.

HOW TO GROW MICROGREENS

WHAT YOU'LL NEED:

- ✓ microgreen seeds
(available online or at a garden store)
- ✓ growing mat
- ✓ baking dish or container for the mat

ACTIONS:

1. Soak seeds 6 to 8 hours, or according to package directions.
2. Soak the growing mat with water, and place in a baking dish or container.
3. Spread out the seeds.
4. Cover.
5. Place near a window and lightly water daily until the seeds sprout.
6. Remove lid and let grow until vibrant leaves appear in about 7 to 10 days.

My favorite thing to grow is broccoli microgreens. When I was rock bottom with my health fourteen years ago, I armed my body to defend itself using plants and particular foods. One powerful way to fight and prevent cancer is with broccoli microgreens and sprouts. Broccoli is potent in sulforaphane, containing 50 times more sulforaphane than a full head of broccoli! It's the sulforaphane in broccoli that kills cancer cells. There are many studies on broccoli from the last 30 years, and one study showed how sulforaphane decreased human breast cancer cells in addition to other cancer-fighting benefits. And it's not just breast cancer cells broccoli can reduce, it's all types of cancer cells.

GARDENING FOR OVERALL HEALTH

Growing your own food is one of the healthiest hobbies. Aside from benefiting physical health, gardening is also great for mental health. A multitude of studies present results that suggest that growing your own food can improve psychological health, which can alleviate anxiety and even depression.

You will really know where your food is coming from when you grow it at home. We should be interested in where and how our food is being grown. We don't want to eat foods that are grown next to factories that produce pollutants that seep into the soil, depleting it of vital components needed to grow nutrient-giving foods. We also want the water supply that irrigates the crops to be clean and uncontaminated by industrial runoff. Soil throughout the United States has become contaminated with pesticides and other toxic chemicals. Polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbons (PAHs) have been found in soils that grow foods. PAHs are byproducts of forest fires and volcanic action. But most are emitted by coal gasification plants, smokehouses, motor vehicle exhaust (less in diesel), burning refuse, used tires, municipal incinerators, and some aluminum production facilities — in facilities that are part of industries which produce or use coal tar, coke, or bitumen (asphalt).

The food grown in these soils is extremely poor and carcinogenic as well as a possible cause of anxiety and depression. Eliminating from our diets foods grown in poor soil will lead to important health improvements and longevity.

Now is the best time to start your indoor and outdoor gardens in the Hamptons!

START WITH PLANTS EASY TO GROW

I recommend starting with the popular foods listed below if these are things you like to eat. It's easiest to grow romaine, mint, thyme, oregano, parsley, cilantro, and sage. If you're adventurous, grow tomatoes, cucumbers, peppers, snap peas, chilies, broccoli, green onions, spinach, and potatoes.

The key is to grow foods you especially like. If it's your first garden, start with one to three plants. Then you're more likely to want to watch it grow, water it daily, and enjoy eating it when it's ready.

TOP NEW YORK PLASTIC SURGEON

BY BETH LANDMAN

After more than 20 years of being named by Castle Connolly as one of America's Top Doctors, and New York magazine as one of New York's best plastic surgeons, Dr. Lyle Leipziger has opened a Park Avenue office in addition to his state-of-the-art Great Neck practice. It is, of course, impressive for a doctor to head a division in a top hospital, but presiding at two institutions carries major gravitas: Dr. Leipziger is chief of plastic surgery at both North Shore University Hospital and Long Island Jewish Medical Center. His surgical skill, discerning eye, and artful subtlety that result in natural looks have earned him a reputation as a go-to aesthetic doctor. Now, this board-certified plastic surgeon, who also offers non-surgical options to combat aging and improve his patients' appearance, is available to city dwellers, including those who have previously trekked east to his flagship office. We caught up with the esteemed surgeon and asked about the expansion.

What made you pick this time to open in Manhattan?

I've considered opening in Manhattan for years, but it came to a point where I had so many people driving in from Manhattan, including long-term patients who had become empty nesters and moved to the city, that I was being asked continually about a New York presence. So I felt the time was right.

How has the response been?

I was surprised at how quickly we became busy with existing patients as well as new ones. People who used to take car services out to the office were so pleased at being able to stroll to the new office at Park and 66th Street, as many live nearby.

What about your approach is unique, or sets you apart from your colleagues?

I'm dedicated to the entire process with a patient, from an initial consultation to at least a year post-op. It's a journey that we take together with very specific goals, and I see my patients more than some people may feel is necessary, but my staff and I have a real focus on attention to personal detail, so everything is individualized, and nothing is cookie cutter. I'm meticulous and never leave the operating room until I am completely satisfied with the results. I want every case to be my best one. I also haven't jumped on the social media bandwagon because my strong practice is built on word of mouth, loyalty, and trust.

Is there anything new in plastic surgery that you are excited about?

There are always new ideas, but I don't jump on every one of them until I'm convinced of their effectiveness. The latest techniques need to be vetted and tested before I implement them because safety is paramount while achieving optimal results. I like fat grafting and think it will become more and more common as the techniques are fine-tuned. Almost every face-lift I do has fat grafting to balance out volume loss, and because of its potential effect of boosting the quality of skin.

Any new non-surgical techniques or procedures that you are using?

I like things that help maintain and amp up the results of surgery. We employ both ultrasound and radio frequency devices to tighten skin on patients. These treatments are particularly effective on the lower face. For fine lines and wrinkles, we use laser technology and have an array of fillers and neurotoxins. All of these non-surgical techniques can also be used to improve the appearance of patients who are not yet ready for surgery.

What do you like to do in your leisure time?

Possibly because I spend so much time focusing on the structure and appearance of faces and bodies, I have always been intrigued by sculpture, and visit museums locally as well as while I'm traveling.

Where do you get your inspiration?

My patients themselves inspire me. Each has a unique story, and there is nothing more satisfying than making a significant change in their lives that winds up improving their quality of life and increasing their self-esteem.

NUBEST SALON & SPA

CELEBRATING 50 YEARS IN BUSINESS!

BY CHRISTINE MONTANTI

The year was 1973. Best & Co. Department store stood vacant on northern boulevard's gold coast. Michael Mazzei had a vision. As he looked at the iconic space, he imagined a "department store of beauty," and so nuBest & co. was born. Today nuBest salon and spa is celebrating 50 years! An astonishing accomplishment.

Throughout the years, Mazzei's vision grew and grew. His concept of having "specialists" in all aspects of beauty was widely received and established the salon as truly the best. Mazzei is one of the most beloved and well-respected individuals in the professional hair care industry. His vision of beauty and avantgarde approach to style has inspired stylists from all over the world. He has been instrumental in defining modern hair for men and women. Mazzei and his collaborator Leland Hirsch also developed ARTEC worldwide, an innovative global hair care brand that was purchased by L'Oréal in 2002.

Generations of clients as well as celebrities have experienced the "nuBest treatment". Always on the cutting edge and creating, rather than following the trends, the Mazzei family's ability to consistently evolve and embrace the ever-changing times has been key to the salon's success. Mazzei's legacy continues with the next generation. His son Jamie and nephews Vincent and Christian were introduced to the business very early on and have played an integral part in its continued success. In addition, Marco Mazzei, Jamie's son, an extraordinarily talented young man, has joined the nuBest team. Having Mazzei as an inspiration and mentor has been invaluable. "Celebrating nuBest's 50th anniversary feels like a dream," says Mazzei. "I am so proud of what my family and I have been able to achieve with nuBest. We have created a community for our clients with the help of nuBest's highly trained and extremely talented staff.

nuBest salon and spa continues to be the gold standard in the industry. We at nuBest salon & spa look forward to the next 50 years! Over the years, nuBest has become one of the most respected and sought-after salons in the New York area. DR. KENNETH MARK

COSMETIC DERMATOLOGY

BY CARLOS LACAYO

Aleksandra Milicevic and Dr. Kenneth Mark at Samuel Waxman Foundation

HAMPTONS, SOHO & ASPEN

As an avid skier, outdoorsman, and physical fitness aficionado, Dr. Kenneth Mark knows firsthand about the benefits of a healthy lifestyle and the effects of the elements on our skin. While he openly admits that his favorite office for a cosmetic consultation is in a gondola on Aspen Mountain, Dr. Mark also finds it rewarding to take care of the skin cancer and cosmetic concerns of patients on the East End. “Practicing in multiple locales that have a small-town feel has allowed me to become embedded in the communities, supporting various local charities. It’s not just work, it’s being part of something bigger,” says Dr. Mark, who also has offices in Southampton and Soho. Allergan, the maker of Botox and Juvéderm/Voluma fillers, chose Dr. Mark to be part of their faculty to train other doctors, and he is in Allergan’s top 1% of accounts in the country.

BEST DOCTORS LIST

Dr. Kenneth Mark has been regularly named on the “Best Doctors” list, representing the top 5% of physicians in the United States. This is arguably the most prestigious honor a doctor can receive. After three years of training at New York University Department of Dermatology, Dr. Mark completed a two-year fellowship with a cosmetic dermatology surgeon and a plastic surgeon to sub-specialize in cosmetic procedures, plastic reconstruction, and minimally invasive Mohs micrographic skin cancer surgery. “For 20 years I have cut and stitched people’s eyelids, ears, noses, and lips, and I’m fortunate to have mastered eye-hand coordination and attention to detail,” he says. “This precision, knowledge of anatomy, and experience translates into being a better injector when it comes to Botox and fillers.”

ULTHERAPY

One of the most-requested treatments is Ultherapy, the only FDA-cleared non-surgical technology that really lifts the skin. It lifts the jawline, neck, and eyelids without surgery. Ultherapy requires only one treatment, and there is virtually no downtime. “You can go to the beach the next day; you can go to a cocktail party that night,” says Dr. Mark.

NEW PROCEDURES

Emsculpt NEO is the most cutting-edge treatment in body contouring today. The combination of muscle stimulation and fat melting builds 25% more muscle and reduces fat by 30%. One half-hour session is the equivalent of 24,000 abdominal crunches.

Allergan recently introduced its newest filler called Volux, and it’s the first and only FDA-approved hyaluronic acid filler for jawline definition. Dr. Kenneth Mark is one of the first doctors to have this filler in hand and one of the first doctors to offer the treatment in the Hamptons and NYC. Volux is designed with the highest G prime (aka G’, referring to its viscosity and elasticity) in the Juvéderm collection of fillers, offering twice the power of Voluma.

HEALTHY FOOD HACKS FROM A NUTRITIONIST MOM

BY KRISTY ROWLING

It can be tough finding time to cook and eat healthy when you're a busy mom. As a nutritionist who's a mother to a 4-month-old, stepmom to a 13-year-old, and wife to a man who likes 80% of his meals homemade, I have learned a few hacks. Here's how I make it work:

Batch cook. If you're going through the trouble of shopping and preparing, you might as well make extra to have later in the week or put in the freezer. Consider cooking a triple batch of items that freeze well, like soup, meatballs, and chili. I'll make a batch of mashed potatoes on Monday to have with chicken and then save the rest for Wednesday to have with fillet mignon.

Keep your freezer stocked. Tired and don't want to cook or don't have time to go to the grocery store or just came home from vacation? Just pull something out of the freezer. I usually have frozen chicken-bone broth, chicken, salmon, turkey meatballs and burgers, lentil soup, cauliflower crusts, Ezekiel or Base Culture bread, berries, bananas, kale, spinach, California blend (cauliflower, broccoli, and carrots), stir-fry vegetables, baked egg white frittata cups, and gluten-free chocolate muffins. I can always make a smoothie or last-minute meal. You can find grass-fed, organic beef or turkey meatballs in the freezer at stores like Whole Foods or Fresh Market.

Buy ready vegetables and fruit. Buy precut broccoli, cauliflower, and baby carrots to have in your fridge. You'll save a lot of time not having to rinse, cut, and peel. You can even find roasted and ready baby potatoes that you can just pop in the microwave. Don't have time to cut up fruit all the time? Keep grapes and watermelon slices in the fridge.

Have quick food options. Have some super quick meals that you can pull together easily. This could be a bag of salad, a bag of potatoes you can just pop into the microwave or pouch of 90-second organic rice, and a ready-made rotisserie chicken. I buy an organic premade rotisserie chicken from Whole Foods every week. Then I can make chicken quesadillas one night and use the rest of the chicken to throw into a salad, soup, or use in a wrap. You can even put a bag of California Blend vegetables in broth and then add some chicken in for a yummy soup.

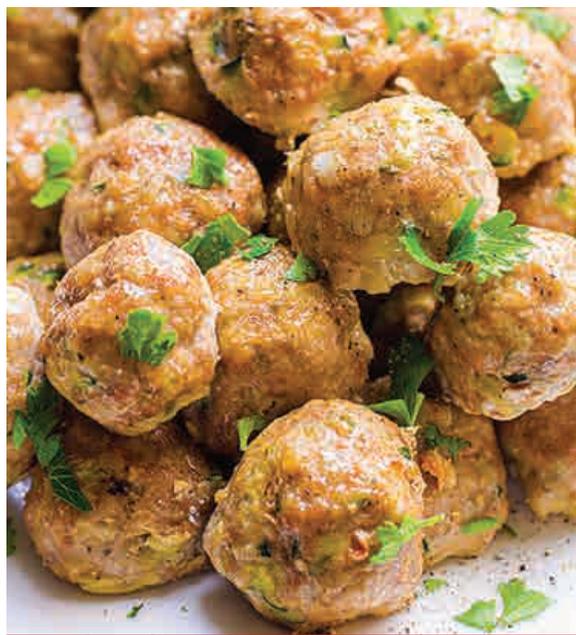

Plan your dinners for the week. Every Sunday, I plan my meals so that I can also order groceries accordingly. For days I know will be particularly busy, I plan easier meals like gluten-free pasta and meatballs. For days when I know I'll have more time, I plan a more elaborate dinner. I mark each dinner down on my calendar. Having certain family traditions like pasta Monday and taco Tuesday can also make life easier.

Have 5 to 7 go-to meals that you rotate. These could even include healthy takeout! Some of our rotating meals include rotisserie chicken, Cooper River salmon, snapper, grass-fed fillet mignon, zoodles and/or high fiber pasta with turkey meatballs, shrimp and veggie kebabs, almond-flour-coated chicken with salad. Our meals always include at least two non-starchy vegetables or a salad. I just repeat these meals and try something new every couple of weeks. This makes it super easy to stay on track, since I know exactly what I need for each recipe and usually already have the ingredients on hand.

Simplify cooking and cleanup. Putting everything on a sheet pan reduces cleanup. You could season some salmon and stick it in the oven alongside some cut vegetables. My weekly roast chicken I put on a pan along with herbs, chicken broth, baby carrots, cut onion, broccoli, and cauliflower. It's such an easy meal to make, and it's also my family's favorite. You can microwave some rice, stir-fry some frozen vegetables, add some frozen shrimp and soy or shoyu sauce . . . and voila!

Shop often. It winds up eliminating the aggravation of not having anything to make. Grocery shopping every two weeks or even once a week isn't enough for me. In addition to my Sunday grocery haul, I replenish my salad greens and other vegetables, fruit, seeded crackers, hummus, high-fiber tortilla wraps, pasta sauce and whatever else we need at least once a week. It's impossible to be organized and eat well if you don't have options in your kitchen.

Remember, once you've made something a few times, it gets incredibly easy to make again. Also, do what works for you and your family. Trying to meet a standard that is impossible is only going to frustrate you and lead to choices that aren't as great. The healthiest food tends to be simple. Accept that half-homemade is great because it gets food on the table.

Turkey Meatballs

1 lb ground turkey
 ¼ cup almond flour
 Half caramelized sweet onion
 3 tbsp chopped fresh Italian parsley
 1 egg
 Season with salt

Mix together and form balls.
 Bake for 15 minutes at 375°.
 Brown afterwards to make them extra tasty.

If batch cooking, double the amount. Freeze the uncooked meatballs for a few hours, and then throw them into a big plastic bag and place back in the freezer. When baking them frozen, allow for an extra 10 minutes.

Use these to top off pasta or to create a soup! I make a low-carb Italian wedding soup by sautéing a chopped sweet onion and two zucchinis to add to chicken broth along with and a handful or two of spinach and around six cut-up meatballs. Have some soup left over? Freeze it for a rainy day.

THE NEWEST IN HAIR RESTORATION

DR. ANNA AVALIANI

BY FRANCES GORMLEY

Lots of men look great and sexy with shaved heads, but this isn't a fashion trend for women. Fact is, a lot of men opt for a shaved head rather than expose their thinning hair or patchy bald spots. Men and women have new options. Dr. Anna Avaliani, a renowned non-invasive cosmetic physician offers exciting new non-surgical treatments to not only stop hair loss, but also to promote hair growth and restore thickness. National Institutes of Health (NIH) reported on the correlation between the practitioner and the success of non-surgical treatments. Dr. Avaliani is the expert you want. These new treatments involve injections, and never underestimate the importance of who's doing the injecting — deciding exactly what, where, how much, how deep. She is a board-certified physician with years of education, training, and experience. Trust your head to the best in medical care. Dr. Avaliani's skilled touch makes injections comfortable and totally tolerable.

Before Dr. Avaliani suggests an exact treatment plan, she will consult with you about your health. She would rather refer you to different physician if she feels your hair loss would benefit from a specialist who treats hair loss that results from stress, hormones, diet, or medications. She might even refer a patient to a hair-transplant surgeon if she thinks that's the best option. Dr. Avaliani loves to give patients what they ask for as long as doing so is medically sound and will most likely result in a natural look that meets the patient's expectations. Not every patient is a candidate for every procedure; that's why expert in-person consultations are very important.

TWO TREATMENT OPTIONS

EXOSOMES are extracellular (outside a cell) vesicles (small sacs) that are present in human placenta and umbilical cord tissue— by the billions. Exosomes are rich sources of stem cells, growth factors, enzymes, and proteins, which is why they have medical and cosmetic applications. Dr. Avaliani also uses exosomes for facial rejuvenation (more on this topic in a later issue this summer). She spent many years seeking the best quality exosomes and works exclusively with US-harvested exosomes. Many products and treatments help prolong hair growth. However, none can treat at the cellular level like exosomes. The result: longer hair growth cycle and thicker, healthier hair.

The number of injections and number of treatments varies per person's needs as determined in the consultation. Most patients can see and feel the results in as little as one month. Maintenance injections every six months are recommended for optimal results.

PRP with or without ACell is a combination therapy that combines plasma-rich platelets (PRP) and ACell, a medical-grade product that enhances the body's ability to regenerate cells and repair itself. Both PRP and ACell are FDA-approved, although ACell is used off-label when it's part of a hair restoration therapy. Off-label uses are perfectly common. PRP uses the patient's own platelets, which are harvested and prepared as part of a treatment visit. PRP used alone is effective, but adding ACell provides increased growth factors, which result in faster, more robust results. On average, four visits one month apart complete the treatment. Results can be seen in four to twelve months. Maintenance injections should happen every six months.

► See Dr. Avaliani's website for more information about Exosome and PRP + ACell, plus so many other cosmetic options.

JETTI WALKING POLES

JOYCE SHULMAN GETS YOU WALKING

BY BRIAN AKER

99 WALKS THAT WILL CHANGE YOUR LIFE

Author and founder of Jetti Fitness, Joyce Shulman, has made getting women and men on their feet her mission. Shulman is the author of Walk Your Way to Better: 99 Walks That Will Change Your Life, a motivational book that promotes walking as a pathway to mental wellness and happiness, with the added bonus of improved fitness, thus presenting walking not as a task, but as a way to reconnect the body and mind. Timing is everything, and Shulman's book provides people everywhere a blueprint of how to maximize a healthy activity for much more than just physical fitness.

"We started 99 Walks in late 2019," says Shulman, "and not surprisingly, we've seen tremendous growth since that time. What has totally heartened me is that walking is having a moment. So many people discovered the benefits of walking for their mind and mood, even beyond their body. People are holding onto that and continuing to maintain the walking practice. Some people have abandoned it, of course, but many more have held onto it, and since I believe truly with every fiber of my being that walking is a gateway to so much goodness, it just thrills me."

“PEOPLE ARE LIKE BANANAS”

Shulman’s 99 Walks brims with rational, relatable, and applicable thought topics to explore while walking, for instance the chapter “The Trouble with Oranges.” Because it’s nearly impossible to do anything else while eating an orange, we sacrifice eating it because we try to multitask as much as possible. Shulman suggests not giving up the pleasure of eating an orange for the sake of not being able to do something else simultaneously, and, as importantly, to ask yourself what other simple pleasures are you denying yourself for the same reason. The chapter “People Are Like Bananas” Shulman explains this way: “Have you ever noticed that if you put two bunches of bananas near each other, they’ll ripen at the same rate? Have you ever stopped to think about how weird that is? The reason is that bananas give off a chemical that causes all the bananas in the same bunch to ripen at about the same speed. In that way, people are like bananas. You are going to take on characteristics of the people you surround yourself with. And all that means is that you have to choose carefully.” Sage advice, indeed.

JETTI FITNESS

Shulman, a resident of Sag, is a former attorney who saw a calling to a greater purpose in helping others, specifically women.

“I have been working with women for the last 15 years, and I noticed two things over and over. First, women tend to be lonely and disconnected; second, many are not in the kind of physical shape that they want to be in, or should they be in for their best health and best life. I believe that those two things are related; there’s a connection between the loneliness epidemic and our isolation and our feelings of compare and despair along with trouble getting out the door to take care of ourselves. Those observations, combined with a personal, lifelong passion for walking, physical activity, and movement, led to the creation first of 99 Walks and then Jetti Fitness.”

Jetti Fitness dovetails nicely with Shulman’s 99 Walks with its launch product, Jetti walking poles. For the uninitiated, walking poles boost the effectiveness of walking by engaging the upper body more fully. Shulman says, “Because I’m a New Yorker, I’m a bit of a type-A personality, and I want as much benefit as I can possibly get from my walk. We were exploring ways to bring in some elements of Nordic walking to build up the intensity and give it more of an American spin. We built Jetti Poles to increase the intensity of your walk, which I call the ‘Jetti paradox’ because you feel like your body is not working as hard, when, in fact, you’re burning an average of 55.6% more calories and activating your whole upper body. You get strength building and increased cardio from that, while at the same time providing a lot of stability. Jetti Poles are great for all ages. For people who are looking to get more movement, people who are looking to burn more calories, millennials who want more intensity, older people who want a little more stability — they are suitable for everybody.”

SUMMER OCULOFACIAL PLASTIC SURGERY TRENDS

BY CHRISTINE MONTANTI

Summer is right around the corner, and for many men and women who want to look and feel their best, this means obtaining the top cosmetic beauty procedures. The trend this summer seems to be moving away from non-invasive facial procedures such as Botox and fillers that are temporary, to more permanent facial surgical procedures such as blepharoplasties and eyebrow lifts. These particular techniques are excellent for individuals who have fat or puffiness under the eyelids or a sagging brow and heavy forehead lines.

A unique facial procedure called the Triplanar Blepharoplasty was created by Dr. Robert Schwarcz, the nation's leading cosmetic oculofacial plastic and reconstructive surgeon. As a dual board-certified facial cosmetic surgeon, Dr. Schwarcz has had the most focused training on this topic and is known for his truly personalized procedures and for achieving natural looking results. To achieve this customized approach, he requests that his patients bring in old photographs of themselves to help him study the natural state of the eyelids and contours, with the firm belief that cosmetic surgery should help a patient look rejuvenated and not “pulled” or “done.”

What are the top requested cosmetic facial procedures in 2023?

I do a surgical technique called the Triplanar Lower Eyelid Blepharoplasty. Essentially, when someone comes in with lower eyelid bags that need rejuvenating, I not only take the bag out, I most often do fat grafting with it because I like to blend the fat from the cheeks to the eyelid making a smoother eyelid cheek junction. Then, I usually use a laser on top of the skin to shrink wrap it. I do this Triplanar technique taking the fat out from the lower eyelid by making an incision on the inside of the eyelid, and then I liposuction some fat from the patient's belly. After, I inject it into the lower eyelid and feather it into their cheek area. This procedure is my go-to technique that I call the Triplanar because I am in three different planes of skin. I do this procedure very often as it is one of the most common techniques that I use to rejuvenate the lower eyelid.

There are different ways you can handle the lower eyelid. You can do it with fat transposition which is taking the fat and moving it down, but many people do not have a lot of fat to transpose, so augmenting it from belly fat is a lot better. You can also cut the skin below the eyelashes and tighten it, but I try not to do that too much because there are a significant number of complications with that technique.

What are some questions and concerns that patients are asking before having this procedure?

The most common inquiry I get from patients is what happens if they have had teardrop or lower eyelid filler in the last year or two. I always dissolve the filler for them before the surgery because it creates swelling after surgery and sometimes can create less predictable results.

Who is a candidate for this type of procedure?

Anybody with an eyelid bag. The patients' ages range for this procedure and are anywhere from 30 to 70 years of age.

What is the downtime for the Triplanar Lower Eyelid Blepharoplasty?

Dr. Schwarcz: Usually about a week of bruising and swelling. I do follow-up visits with my patients one-week post-surgery, then one month, three months and six months later. I keep tabs on them.

What other facial procedures are on trend for 2023?

The other procedure I often do is a Temporal Lift, and I do it endoscopically with a camera. If there is drooping of the upper outer eyelid, oftentimes it is not enough to just do an upper eyelid blepharoplasty. I often do a Temporal Lift where I lift just the temple part of the brow. I do it through the temple incision of the hairline. It lifts the upper outer part of the brow which is the tail of the brow that often droops. It is a natural way of lifting the brow.

Dr. Schwarcz practices at two boutique locations; one is in New York City, on the Upper East Side of Manhattan off Park Avenue, and his second practice is in Scarsdale, New York, in Westchester County. He employs the latest advancements in cosmetic surgery which allow his patients to avoid prolonged recovery times and unnatural outcomes.

WHY YOU HAVE THIN HAIR & WHAT TO DO ABOUT IT

BY ANN GRENIER

Peruse through Instagram long enough and you are sure to observe your feed graced with pictures of women sporting long, outrageously thick or highly-pigmented hair. Hair has always been a significant element of style and self-expression, but the outrageous, over-the-top looks have become more mainstream more than ever thanks to the growing supply of faux hair, hair-color technology, and celebrities setting trends that throw convention or achievability out the window. The result? More women — and men — feel that their natural hair isn't growing as long or as thick as they'd like it to, and are turning to places like Angelo David Salon to get answers and find solutions.

Over the last few years, Angelo David Pisacreta, the owner and creative director of Angelo David Salon, has seen a steady increase in young women coming in for consultations to discuss their thinning hair. Despite the trend for thick luscious locks, the reality is, thinning hair and hair loss is a growing concern for good reason.

Forty percent of women have visible hair loss by the time they reach age 40, according to the American Academy of Dermatology. Two-thirds of men will begin to see hair loss by age 35, according to the American Hair Loss Association, and after 50, 85% of men and 50% of women will experience some form of pattern hair loss.

So, what's causing this trend to rise, and what can we do about it? This is where Angelo comes in. Hair loss and thinning hair has been his specialty for over 25 years, as he grew up around hair his whole life. His father, Carmine, was a pioneer in men's hair styling, and taught Angelo how to make toupees and wigs.

When Angelo opened his salon, which now lives on Madison Avenue, he created a space for women and men to come in and speak candidly about their hair issues in a private consultation room, and he could make a custom wig or hair piece to exactly match a client's natural hair. Angelo and his team can create fully customized wigs, couture hair extensions, hairpieces, toppers, clip-in extensions, ponytails, fillers, or even bangs.

Part of what makes Angelo David Salon special is The Couture Hair Boutique, which displays samples of all the hair additions right on the salon floor. The Couture Hair Boutique is an interactive experience for clients, who can take the hair off the shelf and touch and feel the hair for themselves.

When women understand that the celebrities they see on TV and on the internet with thick long hair are wearing additions like those offered at Angelo David Salon, it changes the way they feel about it. Couture hair is a tool to alter your hair style instantly, without having to wait for your own hair to grow out. "Let's say you want bangs, but you don't want to cut your hair. You can choose a clip-on bang from the Couture Hair Boutique. Then we color, highlight, and trim it for a custom-blended match. We attach your bang, and there you go,” says Angelo.

Angelo has earned a reputation as the Vera Wang of couture hair, but he does so much more than that. Women are often brought to tears when they see their new hair for the first time. Their entire self-image changes instantly, especially for clients struggling with hair loss conditions like alopecia, or male-pattern baldness in men.

Over the years, his clients often asked what they can do to help their hair grow naturally, and Angelo developed his own hair revival supplement to address that very question.

“People ask me all the time, ‘Angelo, what vitamins should I be taking for my hair?’ The problem is, vitamins are only one piece of the puzzle,” says Angelo.

If you have a stressful lifestyle, or live in a large polluted city, your body is in a state of stress. Stress causes inflammation. Inflammation can manifest into a host of issues. You can experience breakouts, hair loss or weak hair in general, weight fluctuations, and many other ailments that people seek only surface-level solutions to.

“I wanted to create a product that would tackle the root causes of inflammation and stress, specifically because they are the two main causes of hair loss and thinning hair.”

“I wanted to create a product that would tackle the root causes of inflammation and stress, specifically because they are the two main causes of hair loss and thinning hair.”

ANGELO DAVID

Hair Detox includes specially formulated stress-matrix and detox-matrix blends to reduce physiological stress in the body, reduce inflammation, and to gently detoxify hair from the inside out. The key ingredients also include well-known hair vitamins like biotin and keratin, vitamin B6 and B12, folate, zinc, and more.

Angelo calls this not just a hair supplement, but a lifestyle supplement, because it makes you feel better in general, and should be taken for daily maintenance of overall health.

So, if you are feeling stressed about your thinning hair, you’ll want to change that immediately. Start by booking a consultation with Angelo and his team, and be mindful of lifestyle factors that can contribute to stress and inflammation.

Other ways to volumize your hair include using the right products. Salon-grade volumizing shampoo, conditioner, leave-in treatments, and styling products can help hair feel and look thicker (VOL shampoo, conditioner, and masque are available at Angelo David Salon).

PICKLEBALL

BY RACHEL HELLER

Writer, actress, host, and art consultant Rachel Heller is also the Sponsorship and Brand Relations Manager at Talent Resources
@rachelhellerxo | @talentresources | talentresources.com

Pickleball is taking us by storm. It has grown across the United States as one of the most popular sports. Beginning in Washington in 1965, pickleball was initially invented as a tennis variant for children. The net is lower than in tennis and the ball is hollow, making it quite loud when it hits the ground. It's played on a court with markings similar to tennis, but at less than one-third the size, and much closer to badminton in its dimensions. Rather than using rackets and traditional tennis balls, the sport initially used lightweight plastic or wood paddles, but now pro players are using carbon-fiber paddles and other advanced materials that balance strength and weight. Community is such a key aspect of pickleball, making it very social.

The first-ever Pickle Jam event — co-presented by Talent Resources and David Haas (MTB Collective) — took place April 8th at Jungle Plaza in the Miami Design District. The event featured a fusion of culinary creativity, art, entertainment, yoga, and pickleball. Invigorating yoga sessions were led by Ahana Yoga, featuring Ahana Flow and complimentary Alo Yoga mats and blocks for VIPs. This was a World Cup style pickleball tournament with brackets for players above and below 3.5 DUPR and complimentary Joola paddles for registered players. The event had clinics and games led by the resident pros Matt Manasse and Ryan Sherry. A sunset cocktail party was held afterward with music by DJ Irie and friends, food from Yasu Tanaka, Whitman's, Pomelo, Coop, and Hot Lime, and specialty cocktails from various partners, including Brown-Forman, E11EVEN Vodka, and Dos Equis.

inKind Pickle Jam Champions Match: Winners played a final match against resident pros for a $5,000 purse. Michael Heller, CEO of Talent Resources, expressed his enthusiasm for the event, "We're thrilled with the outcome of the first-ever Pickle Jam event. The collaboration between Talent Resources, MTB Collective, and our great team of sponsors brought together diverse elements that catered to a wide audience, creating a unique and unforgettable experience for everyone." David Haas, an executive at MTB Collective, also shared his excitement about the event, "Our vision for Pickle Jam was to create an engaging and fun atmosphere that showcased the best of Miami's culinary scene, art, and the rapidly growing sport of pickleball. We are extremely pleased with the response and look forward to building on this success in the future."

Professional pickleball athlete and influencer Tara Bernstein (Instagram: @taralynn.nyc) shared her enthusiasm for the event, "I'm grateful to be a partner of such a great event, and I can't wait to see what the next Pickle Jam has in store! As a former collegiate softball player, I'm now sponsored by Franklin Pickleball, playing at a high level and creating events. I'm really looking forward to the next Pickle Jam!" Exclusive VIP sections were sponsored by E11EVEN Vodka and Brown-Forman, offering food and beverages from the event's culinary partners. Future collaborations and events to be announced soon. Pickleball is available throughout the Hamptons and Central Park now has courts. Gear is available at Masons Tennis NYC, which carries Selkirk and Head paddles along with shoes and clothing.

BY JEAN SHAFIROFF

Ken Wright, board chairman of the Southampton Hospital Association, talks to Jean Shafiroff, board member of the Southampton Hospital Association, about future building plans for Stony Brook Southampton Hospital and the Annual Summer Party.

Ken, as our Southampton Hospital Association board chairman, can you tell our readers what's going on at the hospital?

Our focus is to finish construction of the East Hampton emergency department and open this much-needed new facility in 2024. The majority of the funds were raised by our campaign committee led by Jim and Hollis Forbes and by residents in East Hampton and Montauk. Tragically, lives were lost because people could not access emergency medicine quickly enough from these towns when medical emergencies occurred. This new facility will undoubtedly save lives as well as improve the quality of life. We are incredibly grateful to every individual who donated to make this possible.

What is the new East Hampton facility like?

It is a beautifully designed, 22,000-square-foot building with 10 patient rooms, fast-track access, cardiac monitoring in every room, ophthalmology, Ob-Gyn, pediatric rooms, a full radiology department, resuscitation suite, pharmacy, and lab. It will also have an ambulance stationed outside ready to transport patients to Stony Brook Southampton Hospital and Stony Brook University Hospital when necessary. All of our physicians will be board-certified in emergency medicine and will be part of the Stony Brook Medicine faculty.

Ken Wright

What are the plans for building a new Stony Brook Southampton Hospital?

This summer we will officially begin our campaign to build a state-of-the-art new hospital. Our current hospital building was constructed before the invention of penicillin and while we have renovated and updated it to deliver first class care, we need to create a new facility designed specifically to deliver the medicine of the future and to meet all the ever-evolving needs of our community. As the only hospital on the South Fork, the hospital takes care of everyone who lives and visits this part of Long Island.

Where will the new hospital be located?

The hospital will be moving just four miles west of its current location to the Stony Brook Southampton College campus. Fifteen acres were secured to build a new hospital as part of the merger with Stony Brook Medicine.

What will happen to the current building?

We are working with the village and town governments to find a new way to use the property in the village for a vibrant and appealing project which will benefit the local community.

People in the Hamptons love parties. Will the hospital's legendary Summer Party take place this year?

Yes, we are delighted to announce that the Annual Summer Party will take place on Saturday, August 5, in Southampton. Jean, as you well know, this is our biggest and most important fundraiser of the year, and a highlight of the Hamptons season.

Jean, we thank you for your many years of chairing this important party and for your key role in helping the hospital raise many millions of dollars.

Can you tell our readers what the Summer Party will be like this year?

Without giving too much away, we have developed wonderful partnerships with Wölffer Estate Vineyards and The Colony Hotel in Palm Beach, so expect something fun and surprising!

How can people interested in attending buy tables and tickets to the Summer Party?

As you know, we sell tables and then individual and junior tickets. To buy tables or tickets, go to the special events tab on our website at southampton.stonybrookmedicine.edu

We can't wait to see the community come together to support our hospital, while having a memorable night. While our Summer Party is the focal point of our event season, we have many fun activities taking place throughout the summer which support the hospital, including our East Hampton Emergency Department luncheon at Maidstone and our Summer of Wellness events. Information about these events is also on our website.

Any final words?

Stony Brook University Hospital and, as part of that, Stony Brook Southampton Hospital were just named in the top 50 hospitals in America by US News & World Report! All of us serving on the board, including you, Jean, are extremely proud of this. We are proud of our hospital's doctors, nurses, and staff!

People living in this community can have peace of mind knowing that they are accessing the highest level of medical care when they come to the hospital's facilities. Our next job is to plan and provide for the future changing needs of our communities. I am very blessed to serve on this board and be part of this community.

How can people donate and learn more about Stony Brook Southampton Hospital?

Guild Hall: Arts Achievement Awards

Annie Leibovitz, Isaac Mizrahi, Jay McInerney, and Jordan Roth were among the inductees at Guild Hall's 37th Annual Academy of the Arts Achievement Awards Dinner. Known as the "cultural heart of the East End," Guild Hall recognized creatives for their continual support and contributions to the art world. The night's sponsors included Tiffany & Co, whose CEO, Anthony Ledru, presented the interior designer Peter Marino with an award. Other honorees included Tom

Annie Leibovitz

Roush and LaVon Kellner for leadership and philanthropy. Grazia Magazine USA was the media partner. In East Hampton, Guild Hall is currently showing works from its permanent collection, featuring Jackson Pollack, Chuck Close, and Willem de Kooning. On August 4, Guild Hall will host its not-to-be-missed summer gala to celebrate the art and artists of the East End. guildhall.org

Rites of Spring: LongHouse Reserve

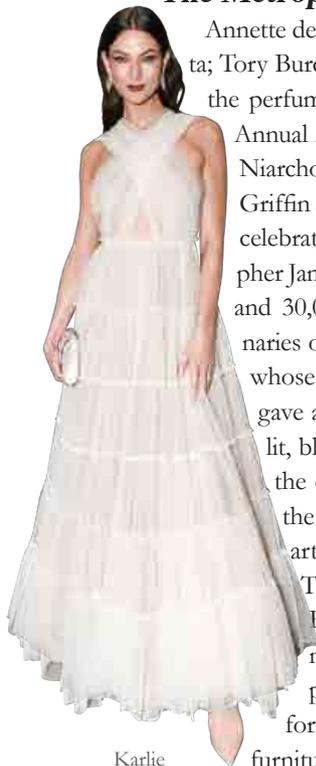

Celebrated artists, including Yoko Ono, Sol Lewitt, and Toshiko Takaezu, have had their work shown at the splendid arts center LongHouse Reserve in East Hampton. In celebration of the new season, the reserve hosted its Rites of Spring event in the sprawling, art-festooned, world-class gardens. Children and their parents helped the multimedia artist Maren Hassinger create her Monuments installation, which can be seen all summer long. Hassinger's works were made by weaving winter branches found on the grounds. Visitors also oohed and aahed at Wyatt Kahn's three COR-TEN steel sculptures: Parade, Painting the Painter, and Umbrella, created in partnership with the Public Art Fund. The reserve is a 16-acre sculpture garden and natural sanctuary, a living case study of the interaction between plants, art, and people. longhouse.org

The Metropolitan Museum: Acquisitions Gala

Karlie Kloss

Annette de la Renta, the elegant widow of Oscar de la Renta; Tory Burch; Wendi Deng Murdoch; and Karlie Kloss led the perfumed pack to The Metropolitan Museum's posh Annual Acquisitions Gala. Samantha Boardman, Dasha Niarchos, Gina Peterson, Anne Tenenbaum, and Amy Griffin served as the night's chairs. Among the museum's celebrated new holdings is the archive of the photographer James Van Der Zee, comprising 9,000 photographs and 30,000 negatives from sittings with Harlem luminaries of the 1920s and '30s. The artist Jordan Casteel, whose grandmother Margaret sat on the Met's board, gave an emotional speech during the elegant, candlelit, black-tie dinner in the Temple of Dendur, telling the crowd of cognoscenti: "You hold a position at the proverbial table. You believe that supporting art and artists is not only important but necessary. Through acquisitions, history is written." Michael Bloomberg, Alexis Traina, Rachel Feinstein, Janna Bullock, and Lizzie & Jamie Tisch led the applause. After dinner, the guests were treated to a formal photo session while sitting on ornate velvet furniture with an elaborate floral backdrop inspired by Van Der Zee's work. The night, which raised $4 million to acquire new works, was made possible by Tiffany & Company. Who else would tell you these things? metmuseum.org

Galerie Gmurzynska: The Palm Beach Show

George Hamilton was among the first to visit Isabelle Bscher's Galerie Gmurzynska booth at the Palm Beach show. Bscher showed masterworks by Pablo Picasso, Constantin Brâncuși, Wifredo Lam, Roberto Matta, Joaquín Torres-García, and pop icon Marjorie Strider. Prince Hussain Aga Khan's undersea photography was presented, with the proceeds going to Focused on Nature. A highlight of the exhibition included Picasso's plaster sculpture of his left hand from 1937, the same year his masterpiece Guernica was created. This was the piece's first public tour in nearly two decades. Strider's Pop Art Girl with White Rose also made waves because of the artist's innovative use of the third dimension and commentary on the tropes of romance, beauty, and gender. This work shared many of the formal characteristics of Strider's Girl with Radish, which the New York Times used as the cover image for its "Best Art of 2022" article. gmurzynska.com

TriBeCa Ball

Brooke Shields
Grier Henchy

Brooke Shields, Naomi Watts, and Kate Capshaw were among the creatives at the New York Academy of Art's TriBeCa Ball. The evening showcased emerging artists from the academy and generated funds to support scholarships. The night's honoree was Amy Sherald, a leading figure in contemporary American art best known for her portraits of Black America, the most notable of which is the painting of former First Lady Michelle Obama for the National Portrait Gallery. Guests were invited to tour the students' private on-site studios and discover new works. Guests included Van Cleef & Arpels' CEO, Helen King, whose company was the night's major sponsor; William Abadie; and PPOW Gallery founders Penny Pilkington & Wendy Olsoff. The Academy was founded by artists, including Andy Warhol, in 1982. NYAA is a nonprofit graduate school that combines technical training and critical discourse on the arts. nyaa.edu

New York Botanical Garden

Gillian Hearst, NYC's leading young philanthropist and most eligible woman, was among the chairs who helped revitalize The New York Botanical Garden's (NYBG) annual Orchid Dinner at the Plaza Hotel. This has long been the prettiest gala of the spring or any other season. Designers, including Rudy Saunders for Dorothy Draper, Joy Williams, Molly Ford, Susie Novak, Chris Goddard, David Netto, and thirty more, festooned their tables in stunning, oversized floral arrangements that were probably visible from Mars. Indre Rockefeller, the ballet dancers James Whiteside and Isabella Boylston, the pianist Gina Alice, and the artist Angelica Hicks danced to the beats of Timo Weiland, society's favorite DJ. The fun night began with the sale of exceptional and rare orchids, something every flower lover should never miss. N'est-ce pas? The benefit served as a celebration of the artist Lily Kwong's garden's outstanding exhibition The Orchid Show: Natural Heritage. The chairs included Ravenel Curry, Jane Moss, Maureen & Richard Chilton, and Holly & Todd Lowen. Among the best-dressed junior chairs were Isabel Leeds, Sara Arno, Casey Kohlberg, Kevin Cornish, and Lizzie Asher. Founded in 1891, The NYBG is the world's most comprehensive botanical garden, with over 7.8 million plant and fungal specimens. Who else would tell you these things? The gala, which raised over $800K, was sponsored by Guerlain and Hearst. nybg.org

THE PALM EVENT

WORLD-CLASS CARS AND PHILANTHROPY

BY ROLISE RACHEL

The Palm, an event with several days of world-class cars and philanthropy, held its 9th annual event from March 17 to March 19. The celebrations started Friday evening with the VIP opening event at Safe Harbor Rybovich Super Yacht Marina in West Palm Beach. Saturday was a driving tour of Palm Beach, and Sunday was the historic display at Mar-a-Lago in Palm Beach. Each year vintage automobile enthusiasts worldwide look forward to this event.

On Friday, lite bites and cocktails were served under palm trees while warm breezes swirled among several noteworthy automobiles and mega yachts at the breathtaking Rybovich Yacht Club in West Palm Beach. Guests were delighted with a fashion show of the latest Palm Beach trends, a live performance by a saxophone player, and an opening media presentation, all in appreciation for The Palm sponsors.

Saturday, the driving tour emphasized the history of Palm Beach with a tour of a private car collection, gourmet food, and a Champagne toast at the finish line. The Rallye's sequence on Saturday was Hagerty Social & Garage, Flagler Museum for a tour, Rybovich Marina for lunch, and the awe-inspiring Steve Wolf Collection in Boca Raton, and Club 66 with a collection of classic muscle cars from 1966 to 1972. Past stops have included The Breakers, the Society of the Four Arts, the Ann Norton Sculpture Gardens, The Hangar, Sailfish Club, The Mar-a-Lago Club, other private car collections, yachts, and more.

Sunday, the finale, Mar-a-Lago's great lawn was filled with automobile connoisseurs and exquisite vintage cars and modern-day marvels. It was a vision for enthusiasts and eventgoers alike. Historically significant racing cars, sports cars from the 1920s, exotic cars, and modern hypercars filled the field.

Ferrari, Porsche, Bentley, Maserati, Lotus, Bugatti, Aston Martin, Jaguar, Mercedes Benz, Alfa Romeo, Rolls Royce, Lamborghini, Pagani, and more were present. Noteworthy were those with a racing pedigree and documented participation in famous events like the Monte Carlo Grand Prix, Le Mans, Targa Florio Rallye, Daytona, Goodwood. One-off street cars, interesting prototypes, and nostalgic celebrity cars also were present. Inside the original gold gilt ballroom, was a sensational presentation of art by Kirill Basov, the entertainment director at the Breakers Palm Beach and CEO of Uki Productions. Gourmet food prepared by award-winning, five-star chefs from Mar-a-Lago, plus liquors and cigars with a fine array of products from luxury sponsors enthralled all. Many automobile awards were presented, including People's Choice, Most Elegant, Kennedy Era Award, Most Significant Racing History, Best Porsche, Most Beautiful Ferrari, Best Sounding Sportscar, Lady's Choice, English Sophistication, and Best Pre-War Classic. Automobile style, design, and racing heritage is the focus for enthusiasts during the three-day event. However, the mingling of location, art, architecture, gourmet food, cigars, Champagne, spirits, and luxury items all come into play making The Palm an event to remember.

Scott Shrader and Tara Meredith, the founders of The Palm Event, donate a portion of the proceeds to a Place of Hope, which rescues abused and neglected children in Palm Beach County and Treasure Coast.

MET GALA 2023

Metropolitan Museum of Art

BY R. COURI HAY

Penelope Cruz, Dua Lipa, Michaela Coel, Roger Federer, and Anna Wintour co-chaired this year's Met Gala that celebrated the late designer Karl Lagerfeld. The exhibition Karl Lagerfeld: A Line of Beauty features over 150 extraordinary garments spanning from the 1950s to his final collection in 2019. The show includes his work from Chanel, Fendi, Chloe, and his own eponymous brand. In 2013 Lagerfeld said, "I've always known that I was made to live this way, that I would be this sort of legend." Jared Leto dressed as the designer's pampered cat, Choupette, the heir to the bulk of Lagerfeld's nearly 300-million-dollar fortune. Leto arrived unrecognizable in his white furry costume but finally removed the feline's head for the photographers. Pearls, tweed, camellias, and cats: the holy quadruplet of this benefit's theme and included a long line of stars dressing on theme, such as Kim Kardashian who dripped in thousands of real pearls, Kylie and Kendall Jenner, Nicole Kidman, Selma Hayek. Cardi B. Rhianna was the last to arrive at 10:31, a full four hours late to the event. The singer stunned in a cocoon of white camellias that she unbuttoned to reveal a gown with a deep décolletage, and a twenty-foot train. Other standouts included Lil Nas X covered in silver glitter and crystals, and wearing sky-high platform boots; Doja Cat had a prosthetic nose and lips to mimic the feline look of Lagerfeld's famous cat. The show will run through July 16 and should not be missed. Here is a selection of the best dressed stars.

VOYAGE TO CHAMPAGNE

BY R. COURI HAY

R. Couri Hay is the travel editor and society columnist for this magazine. Couri began his career at Andy Warhol's Interview and he wrote for Town & Country and People. Couri also appears on CNN, PBS, FOX and VH1 commenting on Hollywood. He lives in NYC and Southampton and is the CEO of his own PR firm.

ROYAL CHAMPAGNE HOTEL & SPA

It's a fast overnight flight to Paris, so once arrived, you're ready to jump into the luxury sedan sent by the Royal Champagne Hotel in Epernay. They whisk you to the romantic world of castles, châteaux, and vast vineyards of the varieties of grapes that ultimately become Champagne. There are over 370 Champagne houses using grapes from 20,000 farmers in the region. On the 90-minute drive from Paris, you roll through picturesque villages and miles of grapevines to arrive at a sleek, modern, low-slung hotel perched on a hill with the best views in Epernay, the seat of Champagne. The view from the hotel is like a Cézanne painting. The hamlet's ecru and terracotta-colored roofs surrounded by endless vineyards is a perfect setting for this elegant 5-star hotel. My room was a minimalist wonder, spacious and chicly appointed in neutral tones, allowing the eyes to focus on the view through floor-to-ceiling windows leading onto the private balcony.

I arrived in late January, traditionally the quietest time of year when the vineyards are asleep, but the Champagne still flows, and the area's nine Michelin-starred restaurants are mostly still open because the region is becoming a year-round destination. The hotel also possesses a world-class spa with both indoor and outdoor Olympic-length pools heated to resemble a dip in the warm waters of St. Barts. There's a sauna and steam room and a wide variety of treatments. I had a massage, a facial, and a glass of Dom Ruinart Blanc de Blanc Champagne to put me in the perfect mood. The hotel has lovely restaurants and bars, including the one-Michelin-starred Le Royal, and a breakfast buffet that was nothing less than sublime. Dinner was also a treat, and the service was impeccable, both for the humans and dogs. Yes, I encountered two dogs, a brown Rhodesian ridgeback and an adorable tri-color King Charles cavalier spaniel, sitting quietly at the table next to ours. Très Français, n'est-ce pas?

CUISINE SOLUTIONS' INTERNATIONAL SOUS VIDE DAY

I spent my first day at the celebration of International Sous Vide Day hosted by Cuisine Solutions, the world's largest and most trusted producer of sous vide foods. The event, held at the picturesque Château Comtesse Lafond, also celebrated the 81st birthday of Dr. Bruno Gossault, the master of sous vide and the greatest scientific innovator of the technique. Guests included the company's chairman, Stanislas Vilgrain; the chief strategy officer, the chef Gerard Bertholon; and the CMO, Tom Donohoe. During the event, Donohoe surprised his girlfriend, Allison Sells, by asking her to marry him, with a diamond the size of the Ritz. She said yes, and no fewer than 14 Michelin-starred chefs led the applause. Cuisine Solutions held concurrent sous vide celebrations in Washington, DC, and Bangkok – the company has a significant presence in North America and Asia, as well as Europe.

LE PARC LES CRAYÈRES

On another night, I went to the very grand two-Michelin-starred restaurant Le Parc Les Crayères. We had the truffle tasting-menu, each course paired with the appropriate Champagne, including an extraordinary bottle of Jacques Selosse V.O. that took us to the heavens. In truth, every course was celestial. Standouts were the roasted scallops with black truffle slices and the black truffle capellini. The chocolate cream, caramelized pecans, and cherry confit with truffles were magnifique. It's the only way, really! The restaurant is in the Domaine

Les Crayères, a small hotel formerly the chateau of the De Polignac family, which had a long history as part of the French nobility. In 1775, Yolande Martine Gabrielle de Polastron, Duchess of Polignac, became a favorite of Marie Antoinette, and subsequently spent years living at the Palace of Versailles.

AVENUE DE CHAMPAGNE

A tour of the Champagne houses is de rigueur, but plan ahead as these private tours book up quickly. The first thing you need to ask your driver to do is ride down Epernay's famous avenue de Champagne. Along the treelined road you'll pass all the grand mansions of Champagne, including Ruinart, Moët & Chandon, Veuve Clicquot, and Krug, among many other houses whose vintages are superb but not as well known outside France. Ask your concierge for a few ideas if you're in the mood to be adventurous.

Champagne has a long history, going back to the fifth century, when the Romans planted vineyards in this region of northeastern France. The pinot noir grapes that thrived in this climate produced a pale, pinkish wine, far different from the lush reds from the central Burgundy region. It was an accident of nature that created the bubbly we know and love today.

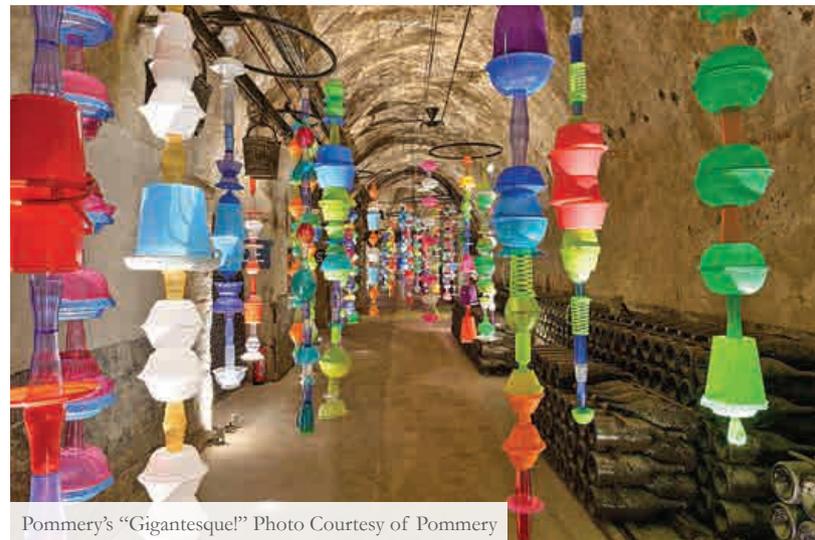

The cold winters in Champagne caused fermentation to halt and restart in the spring, releasing carbon dioxide trapped inside the bottles. The pressure from the gas often caused the bottles to explode, but those that survived contained bubbles, which was originally considered a flaw. In the 1600s, winemakers, like the Benedictine Monk Dom Pérignon, were still trying to rid their wines of bubbles, but the sparkling versions of Champagne wines grew in popularity, eventually becoming a favorite among the French nobility. By the 19th century, winemakers had learned how to create bubbles deliberately, and advances in these methods by the house of Veuve Clicquot made the production of sparkling wine on a large scale feasible. Champagne houses blossomed in the 1800s, and the modern Champagne industry was born.

HOUSE OF POMMERY

If you can visit only one house, I suggest Pommery because it has the most extensive and dramatic chalk caves — twelve miles to be exact — almost 100 feet belowground, which serve to ventilate the cellars. There is also a large and fun art installation throughout: a giant tree festooned with oversize fruit, an enormous glass box that blows a blizzard of feathers, giant screens of crashing waves, and another depicting a storm in a forest. The caves also have carved sculptures on the walls, some permanent, some temporary, the remnants of past art exhibitions. Madame Pommery, who created the estate in 1868 after her husband's death, and her daughter, Louise, were art lovers and patrons of up-and-coming artists. The company continues to support artists today, hosting annual exhibitions in the cellars.

Bring your walking shoes. I counted 121 steps to get down to the cave, but it's worth it. Over 25 million bottles of Champagne are stored there. You read that right! Along the corridors, you'll see the different sized bottles, including Piccolos, Salmanazars, Balthazars, Nebuchadnezzars, and Goliaths. You can tour on your own or with a private guide (which I suggest), and at the end is a tasting of different vintages. Pace yourself.

HOUSE OF RUINART

The Benedictine monk Dom Thierry Ruinart, a native of Champagne, spent time in Paris in the 17th century, where young aristocrats were enthusiastic about an exciting new wine with bubbles. Dom Ruinart traveled widely but eventually returned to his home turf, working in the wine cellars alongside another monk, Dom Pérignon. Together, the two developed methods to improve sparkling wine production, solving the problem of bottles exploding under pressure during the fermentation process.

Dom Ruinart's nephew Nicolas Ruinart took up his uncle's interest in winemaking and, in 1729, founded Maison Ruinart, the world's first Champagne house. Louis XV had just authorized the transport of wine in bottles rather than barrels; this meant Ruinart's Champagne could be sold throughout France and beyond. In 1768 Ruinart acquired its Roman-era chalk quarries, and five miles of tunnels 125 feet below the city of Reims were hollowed out to store bottles. Classified as a historical monument in 1931, these chalk crayères, providing stable temperatures and perfect humidity levels, make for a fascinating tour. The Ruinart Blanc de Blanc pressing is one of my favorite Champagnes.

HOUSE OF DOM PÉRIGNON

Dom Pierre Pérignon, the Benedictine monk whose efforts shaped the foundation of the champenoise method, making the production of sparkling wine commercially viable, is so revered that his statue stands at the entrance to Moët & Chandon's headquarters in Epernay. When he died in 1715, he was buried in a part of the abbey cemetery traditionally reserved only for abbots as a show of respect.

The Pérignon House is in the former Benedictine Abbey of Hautvillers on a hillside overlooking the Marne Valley. Originally founded in AD 650, the abbey was destroyed and rebuilt more than once through the centuries. The current building, where Pérignon lived and worked for 47 years, went up in the 16th century with the support of Catherine de' Médiçi. Who else would tell you these things?

HOUSE OF KRUG

The House of Krug was founded in 1843 by visionary Joseph Krug with the goal of blending wines from different years to consistently produce the very best. Krug's singular approach has given it the reputation as haute couture Champagne, and you will taste it on your tour. Its signature Krug Grande Cuvée is aged for over 20 years. Housed in the family's circa 1868 estate, the House of Krug features a collection of unique relics, including a portrait of the founder and his notebook containing his vision for his Grand Cuvée. A wall of 400 wines is where the cellar master auditions wines to be used in creating each year's new edition; a music room contains the reserve wines; and the Krug yurt in the garden is where you'll experience immersive "echoes" tastings, where wine is paired with music.

HOUSE OF VEUVE CLICQUOT & ITS GHOST

Founded in 1772 by the trader Philippe Clicquot-Muiron and taken over in 1798 by his son, François, this renowned Champagne house truly blossomed with a woman at the helm. When François unexpectedly died, his widow (veuve in French), Barbe, took over the business. She proved to be a passionate winemaker, introducing innovations like the recipe for rosé Champagne, still used by most modern Champagne houses today.

The house's history is noteworthy. Its 15 miles of chalk cellars date to the Middle Ages. A faded Red Cross sign on the chalk walls is a reminder of when the cellars were used as an infirmary during World War I. Also on display is one of 46 antique Veuve Clicquot bottles found in 2010 in an early 19th-century wreck at the bottom of the Baltic Sea, near Finland's Föglö Islands. Madame Clicquot's original mansion is still used by the company for visiting VIP guests. I encountered Barbe's charming ghost when I slept in her bedroom. Have you ever?

HOUSE OF TAITTINGER

Pierre Taittinger bought a Champagne house in the 1930s and relaunched the business, offering elegant sparkling wines under the Taittinger name. The family's third generation still runs the house today. The Taittinger House, which includes the ruins of the 13th-century Saint-Nicaise Abbey, destroyed during the French Revolution, and UNESCO-listed Roman-era chalk caves, is undergoing a two-year renovation, so tastings have been detoured to the delightful Counts of Champagne residence in Reims.

Owned by Taittinger, the 13th-century Gothic-style pile — Demeure des Comtes de Champagne in French — served as the residence of the counts of Champagne when they came to Reims for the coronation of the kings of France at the Cathedral of Reims. After being partially destroyed during WW I, Taittinger bought it and restored it, and today it's used for cultural events.

THE RITZ-CARLTON

SOUTH BEACH

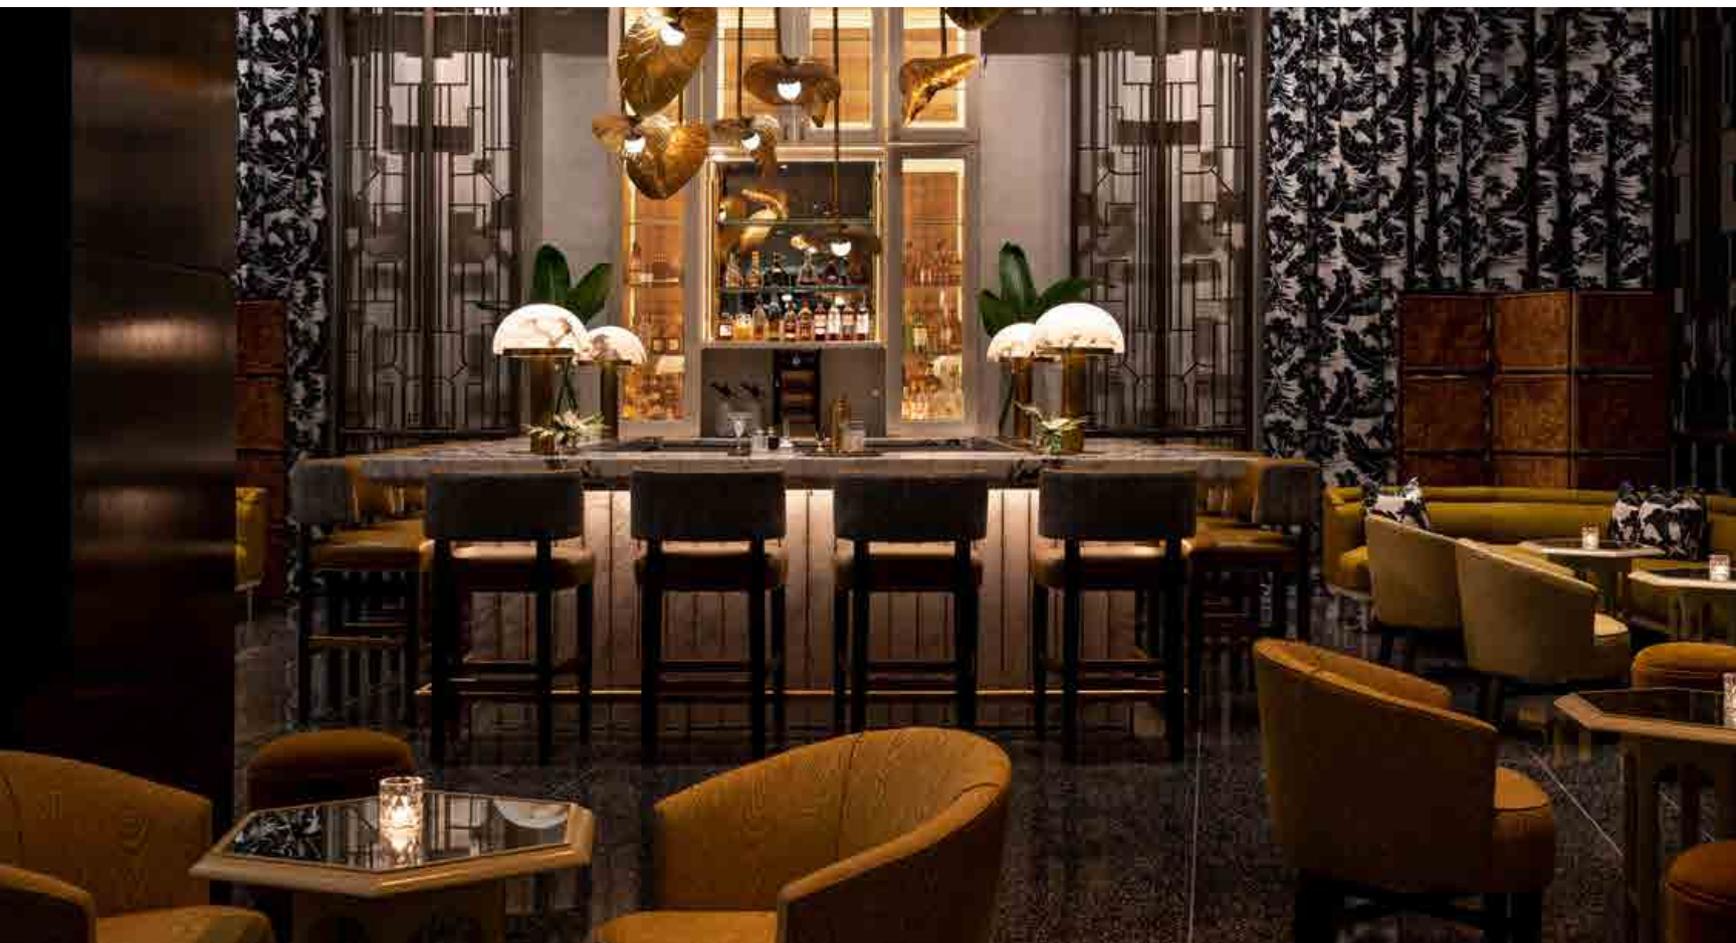

BY INNA DESILVA

The Art Deco building that houses The Ritz-Carlton, easily one of the best hotels in Miami's South Beach, hugs the corner of Lincoln Road and the Atlantic Ocean. Inside this magnificent building you can find serenity and excitement under one roof. In February 2020, the hotel completed a $90 million, multi-year renovation. The lobby is incredibly chic and features a small jewel of a bar called Lapidus, which serves elegant cocktails like Little Havana and Hemingway Sour.

The front desk is amazing and really does try to fulfill every wish of a hotel guest. The huge pool is the centerpiece of this property and is busy until evening with kids enjoying the invitingly warm water while their parents are enjoying fresh coconuts with rum.

My corner room had a bank of windows looking out to the front and side of the hotel. It was around 500 square feet and had a magnificent bathroom. I was addicted to lying in bed and watching the ocean's waves. If you can book a room at the Club Level, do so because it's worth it. Club Level includes amenities like a private oceanfront lounge; complimentary drinks and self-serve culinary presentations throughout the day: breakfast, lunch, light snacks, hors d'oeuvres, and desserts; and a dedicated concierge. Because I eat a simple breakfast, I loved walking into the lounge without waiters or menus. I grabbed a tea and some smoked salmon, and I was on my way to spend the day at the beach.

The beach is beautiful and has full service, including daybeds and drinks. Lincoln Road shops and restaurants are only two blocks from the Ritz-Carlton, making it easy to wander around looking in boutiques and galleries and finding plenty of happy hour places. You can return to dine at the hotel's restaurant, Fuego y Mar, which faces the pool and has excellent food, including my favorites: Key West ceviche and ahi tuna poke. Another option is the famous Bagatelle, which The Ritz-Carlton bought in January 2022. This international brand with locations worldwide is known for great food and a glamorous fun crowd. Enjoy lobster fettuccini or barbecued catch of the day.

The Ritz-Carlton South Beach is a wonderful place to spend a weekend or a week while enjoying the best of everything.

2023 has proven to be a traveling theater act for me and my team. Some past and upcoming events are listed below. The 2023 summer season will bring new experiences in the arts and culture of the East End, and you can learn about them in my journal between now and Labor Day.

Our team has partnered with David Hornung and Jason Wilhoite of D&J Concepts in Southampton to open our first office and dedicated showing space. We intend to keep the ball rolling, as our partnership with Triangle Loft NYC will have our small team expanding our reach and artists to the top floor of the Flatiron Building in New York's Meatpacking District.

OSCAR MOLINA

First and foremost, it has been an absolute joy to assist J. Oscar Molina in his rise to stardom within the East End arts community and beyond. An international talent, Molina's sculpture from his

Alice Young, Neil deGrasse Tyson, Sylvia Channing at Women's Work

Children of the World series were showcased at the entrance to the Southampton Art Center's East End Collected 7 group exhibition.

The Women's Work exhibition at Oscar Molina Gallery has been a joy to watch unfold since its opening in March. In early April we held a successful artists talk. Featuring the artists

Lucy Cookson, Arta Brito, Allison Eden, Kelynn Alder, Anna Jurinich, and more, the show ran until the 21st of May. Women's Work was an incredible show of 17 diverse female artists. Each of the artworks covers womanhood specific to the artist's experience.

The next exhibition coming to the gallery is House and Home, opening May 25th. This show focuses on the designers Glen Mayo, Flavio Franco, Franco Cuttica, Allison Eden, and J. Oscar Molina, with visual support from the photographer Mary Ellen Bartley.

The opening ceremony of House and Home will honor Iris Dankner, the founder of Holiday House NYC, a showhouse displaying the talents of top interior designers and lifestyle brands, while raising critical funds for breast cancer prevention and treatment. Iris Dankner made it her mission to use awareness in the designer world to raise funds for breast cancer research and to support women who need help fighting this disease. The mosaic glass artist Allison Eden will be featured at Holiday House NYC this summer.

Lucy Cookson, Blue Octopus, 2021, watercolor and gouache on paper, 60 x 40 in. print

LUCY COOKSON

Lucy Cookson has been a longstanding force within the arts community of the East End. As a trustee of Guild Hall, Lucy sits on the committee for the artist-in-residence program, which provides collaboration, conversations, and partnerships with regional artists as well as with the East End's many cultural institutions. Lucy also serves on the board of visitors at the Savannah College of Art and Design.

Cookson is a multi-disciplinary American artist whose process focuses on using water as a vehicle for movement and motion to capitalize on the transparent properties of delicate pigments. Her mediums of choice include watercolor, oil, hand-embellished digital prints, mixed media, and needlework. "Since childhood the sea has been my inspiration. I have lived, loved, and painted at the water's edge," she said.

Her upcoming exhibition at the Chase Edwards Gallery Bridgehampton is set to take place on May 27 and will be a showcase of expression through the natural world. Cookson ties her art process to her deep relationship with nature. Joined by other 21st century women artists, Cookson recently showed at the Oscar Molina Gallery's Women's Work exhibition.

STELLA FLAME

Stella Flame is delighted for the upcoming grand opening of her eponymous Stella Flame Gallery on July 8 in the same space as the former RJD Gallery. Some of you may know me as the former curator of the RJD Gallery on Main Street in Bridgehampton, where Stella Flame Gallery will reside. I'm thrilled at the opportunity to curate once again on the same premises.

As a gallery owner, Flame's mission is to curate fine art and jewelry collections. Visionary guest jewelers such as Pinar Hakim and Nada Ghazal alongside celebrated artists from around the world, including Sandy Cohen, Andrew Cotton, Jojo Anavim, and WhIsBe, will show at the Stella Flame Gallery.

EL TACO BAR

The work of my team continues to expand. We recently finished installing a mural at the eL Taco Bar in Sag Harbor. A creative endeavor for everyone involved, the mural is our first foray into creative concept-to-deliverable on a large scale, quite literally making our mark. The restaurant opens at the end of May.

eL Taco Bar will be a hotspot in the middle of Main Street, with curated cocktails and an extensive tequila list in addition to authentic and approachable Mexican fare created by the renowned chef Laurent Tourondel. eL Taco Bar will be open late for grabbing a taco and craft margarita while chilling with friends to the sounds of rotating DJs on weekends.

LONGHOUSE RESERVE

This year's new beginnings include our partnership with LongHouse Reserve. Our shared goal is keeping true to the wishes of LongHouse's director, Carrie Rebora Barratt. She has an open-to-the-public philosophy for the space, allowing access to all to enjoy and interpret the reserve. LongHouse's mission is to continue the vision of its founder, Jack Lenor Larsen, who believed in the refreshing and healing possibilities when art and design combine with nature.

I will be continuing last summer's Insider/Outsider Artist Talks with a new lineup of artists out in the wonderful outdoor reserve and sculpture garden, unconfined by walls or ceilings.

ARTIST: GUY STANLEY PHILOCHE

GIVE US OUR FLOWERS

BY LEXI WOLF

Guy Stanley Philoche, Tyre Nichols

BORN IN HAITI

For 15 years, Guy Stanley Philoche has been attracting international attention for his impressive body of work, which often references important social and political themes. The Haitian-born artist immigrated to Connecticut when he was just three years old with his mother, father, and band of brothers — all of whom have a deep passion for athletics, a passion he does not share.

Philoche said, “Who in their right mind would want to be an artist? There are times when I wish I had a more straightforward, simpler life. It’s in your blood, it’s in your DNA. I’ve made so many personal sacrifices by being an artist, but it’s something that I have come to terms with. I want my work to provoke, inspire love, inspire happiness.” This calling led him to go out on his own, first attending Paier College of Art and then Yale. He now lives in New York City and frequently shows his art on the East End.

MUHAMMAD ALI & JACKIE ROBINSON

His current series, Give Us Our Flowers, was born during a period of mourning. After the sudden death of his best friend, Philoche wanted to produce something to give voice to unsung Black heroes, who, like Philoche’s friend, have not received proper recognition. Through his art, he pays homage to Black icons and everyday figures of the past and present. The artist has recently made several new additions to the series, including a painting of Tyre Nichols, the 29-year-old Black man who was killed at the hands of five police officers during a routine traffic stop in Memphis. Philoche was deeply affected by this case of unnecessary brutality. “Tyre was very much like me, a free spirit who marched to the beat of his own drum. He loved his mama, photography, and skateboarding,” he said. The painting features Nichols on his skateboard donning a T-shirt that reads: “I AM A MAN,” and Vans sneakers, the quintessential shoes for skateboarders. He’s surrounded by butterflies and Philoche’s signature daisies, his mother’s favorite flower. “I painted him the way he should be remembered: full of life and living with joy doing what he loved most.” He has also created portraits of Muhammad Ali, Jackie Robinson, and Misty Copeland, all trailblazers for the Black community and who paved the way for future generations.

“MY BODY, MY CHOICE, MY RIGHTS”

Philoche’s paintings include colorful daisies, but he paints his figures in black and white with muted backgrounds. He says this allows “the viewer to focus on the subject matter at hand. The collection also includes the iconic singer Nina Simone; his friend, the actress/producer/screenwriter Lena Waithe; a mother and her two sons; and a young girl jumping rope, wearing a T-shirt that reads: “My Body, My Choice, My Rights.” Philoche says, “I wanted to make sure to call out specific people like Lena as well as different archetypes, like the mother who is working every day for a better tomorrow for her two sons.”

THE PHILOCHE COLLECTION

As a dedicated philanthropist, Philoche has made an unwavering commitment to help his fellow artists. “No one opened doors for me. I had friends who were famous in the art world, but they never did anything to help me. I’m all about sharing the love. There’s enough for everybody, and everybody needs a shot. I’m thankful to now have the opportunity to help others.” Since 2020, he has purchased over 150 works of art from up-and-coming artists, creating The Philoche Collection, which he continually adds to. “Instead of buying that cool $20,000 Rolex watch, I went on Instagram and used my money to start buying up artworks of other artists and raising awareness about them,” he said.

Philoche also generously donates his time and work to benefit a multitude of charities, including The American Cancer Society’s Pink & Black Tie Gala, Kids with Cameras, My Language Project, The Leukemia Needs Foundation, ARTrageous!, and Tibet House.

Give Us Our Flowers was featured in a show at Cavalier Gallery during Black History Month and is available at Philoche’s studio by appointment, Tuesday through Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. You can set up a visit by emailing guy@philochestudios.com. His works will also be on view at the Hamptons Fine Art Fair from July 13 to July 16.

HAPPY CAT SANCTUARY

DISNEYLAND FOR DISADVANTAGED CATS

BY CHRISTINE MONTANTI

Imagine a location for furry felines that is so spectacular, its picturesque property and fantasyland ambiance is like Disneyland for disadvantaged cats. Comprised of numerous custom built tree forts, hammocks, cat tunnels, heated and air-conditioned enclosures, cozy beds, hand crafted water fountains, and plenty of delicious gourmet food, this magical Long Island haven known as Happy Cat Sanctuary, is not only a reality, but a dream come true for less fortunate cats who have suffered from the most deplorable and abusive living conditions.

Chris Arsenault, founder of Happy Cat Sanctuary, has selflessly devoted the past 17 years of his life rescuing, caring for and housing over 300 injured, abused, and feral cats. The noble Long Island-man transformed his home into a fairytale-like cat sanctuary shortly after his 24-year-old son, Eric, tragically died in a motorcycle accident in 2006. At the time of his son's sudden passing, Chris was working as a conductor for the New Jersey Transit when he discovered a colony of 30 sick kittens and decided to foster and nurse them back to health. Realizing the joy and fulfillment it brought him by saving these animals, Chris decided to devote his future and his life's mission to caring for disadvantaged cats and launched the Happy Cat Sanctuary in 2006. It's a lot of work, but I love it," confesses Arsenault. "Just creating all of this has made me really happy."

Aside from the incredible accommodations for these lucky felines, the sanctuary provides the highest level of veterinarian care; in fact, the sanctuary even has their own vet technician that comes on premises weekly to treat and conduct routine checkups for the cats. In addition, Happy Cat Sanctuary has an amazing leukemia enclosure that offers indoor and outdoor housing where these special needs cats can live a full life comfortably with appropriate care and lodging. Arsenault's devotion to these special needs kitties is truly a testament of human compassion.

Numerous cats have come to the Happy Cat Sanctuary because they were left behind due to a variety of circumstances including homeowners who were forced to move due to Covid-19. "Many homeowners felt they would rather leave their animals behind instead of bringing them to the shelter because they were putting the cats to sleep," says Arsenault. Some of the kittens and cats are adoptable, but, unfortunately, most are not because of medical and behavioral issues or because they are semi-feral. "We love feral and handicapped cats. I wish I could help more, but I don't have enough property, and this acreage is not really big enough to handle more than I have."

Arsenault would like to do more for the cats, but his property is not big enough to handle anything extra as the entire house and acreage is being utilized. He has been reduced to living in minimal living conditions as he is currently residing in the boiler room.

Arsenault's goal is to purchase the house next door, now in foreclosure, so he can expand the sanctuary and provide himself with a habitable living space. In order to make this happen, and secure the future of Happy Cat Sanctuary, he desperately needs outside financial support. "The house next door is really the key to the future of Happy Cat Sanctuary," explains Arsenault. With over 300 cats, Happy Cat Sanctuary is eager to expand by purchasing the property next door to the sanctuary. Arsenault needs donations to make this happen.

Donate today at happycatsanctuary.org. Happy Cat Sanctuary is a 501(c)3 non-profit organization based on Long Island, New York. Arsenault's mission is to save the lives of at-risk cats and ensure they are provided with the quality of life every animal deserves.

HARRIET NEWMAN COHEN & MARTHA COHEN STINE

THE DIVORCE BOOK FOR MEN AND WOMEN

BY BENNETT MARCUS

Harriet Newman Cohen and Martha Cohen Stine
Photography by Andrei Severny

COHEN STINE KAPOOR LLP

Meet Harriet Newman Cohen and Martha “Marti” Cohen Stine, the mother-daughter legal duo who are principals of their firm Cohen Stine Kapoor LLP, specializing in family and matrimonial law. “We were one of the first mother-daughter law firms, and we’re one of the only mother-daughter law firms in New York,” says Harriet.

ANDREW CUOMO & LAURENCE FISHBURNE

Both lawyers have decades of experience under their belt, representing high-profile clients, including Andrew Cuomo, Paul George, actors Laurence Fishburne and Linda Lavin, the wives of Harvey and Bob Weinstein, comedians Louis C.K. and Howard Stern, singers Ute Lemper and Isabel Leonard, and other high-net-worth individuals during challenging times in their lives. Both are consistently listed in Super Lawyers as among New York’s top 50 female attorneys and top 100 lawyers in general. They also hold the highest rating from Martindale-Hubbell.

STREAMLINED SERVICES

In January 2021, mother and daughter joined forces and relaunched their practice as Cohen Stine Kapoor LLP, a leaner, more effective boutique law practice with five attorneys. “With remote court appearances, we can easily appear in any county or even another state. For example, I appeared remotely in West Virginia, because of Zoom capability,” Marti Cohen Stine said.

HARRIET NEWMAN COHEN

Harriet had a circuitous path to becoming known as the “doyenne of matrimonial and family law attorneys.” She entered law school at 38, after years as a stay-at-home mother of four and a stint teaching math. “I didn’t want to continue to be a schoolteacher, I wanted to go into a profession where women were in a man’s world.” She was one of only a handful of women at Brooklyn Law School in those days. “I felt that I had to make my mark in a man’s world. I wanted to make a difference and have a voice that was going to be heard.”

PRESIDENT OF THE NY WOMEN’S BAR

Harriet’s many achievements in the field include serving as president of the New York Women’s Bar Association and as a member of the Matrimonial Mediation Subcommittee of the New York State Supreme Court. She helped negotiate and draft NY’s Equitable Distribution Law and served on the Child Support Commission that drafted the Child Support Standards Act. She authored The Divorce Book for Men and Women and writes an annual New York Law Journal article on family law. Harriet is often selected as an attorney for the child in contested high-conflict custody cases and as a neutral evaluator in complex financial disputes where a judge feels that an outside experienced lawyer can work with the parties and their lawyers to help effectuate a settlement.

LOTOS CLUB BOARD & STECHER & HOROWITZ FOUNDATION

Harriet serves on the Stecher & Horowitz Foundation board, which organizes the NY International Piano Competition and Young Artists Series. “We have a competition open to pianists of all nationalities, identifying young artists and talent from around the world. It’s a very gratifying way to give back,” she says. She is also on the board of directors of the Lotos Club, a prominent literary and cultural club founded by Mark Twain. She was also awarded the Medal of Merit, the Lotos Club’s highest award.

MARTHA COHEN STINE: NY COUNTY LAWYERS ASSOCIATION

As an undergrad at New York University, Marti knew she wanted to be a lawyer. “Harriet was in law school while I was in college, and I would sit in on her classes. I loved the classes, and my mother was an inspiration. I was always vocal and outgoing, and I’m a good writer. I figured if she could do it, so can I! She warned me that I had to be top of the class and make law review, and I did. I never dreamed that someday we would work together. We know how lucky we are and feel like our family can help other families during their most difficult times to turn a new chapter.” Marti received her JD from the Cardozo School of Law, then spent the first ten years of her career as a litigator at Shea & Gould before joining her mother’s practice and focusing exclusively on family law. She has been a top attorney in family law for over 25 years. Marti sits on the board of directors of the New York County Lawyers Association (NYCLA) and chairs its Matrimonial Law Section, and presents continuing legal education programs; she is often a speaker or panelist. Marti is also chair of the NYCLA Foundation, the charitable arm of NYCLA, which supports pro bono programs.

Stephen G. Rickershauser, Martha Cohen Stine, Ankit Kapoor, and Harriet Newman Cohen

A SOUTH FORK IN THE ROAD DINE, SLUMBER AND SPLURGE IN THE HAMPTONS

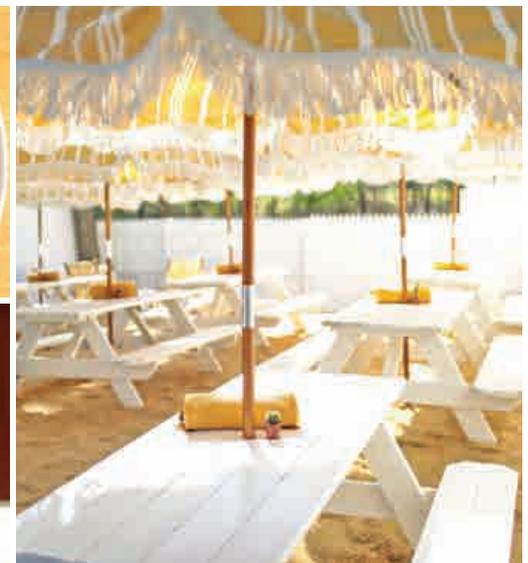

EAST HAMPTON

BY KAREN HOLLY BERLINER

As you drive east along Route 27, you know you're entering East Hampton as you pass the large and beautiful Georgica Pond. Also known as Main Steet, the route is lined with historical inns, a bounty of boutiques, top notch restaurants and, of course, a landmark windmill or two.

Rita Cantina

RITA CANTINA

Located in Springs, this modern Mexican cantina features the cuisine of the renowned chef Eric Miller, known for his prior successful restaurants, including Bay Kitchen Bar. His partners Adam Miller, who is behind Rita Cantina's creative and mindfully curated bar program, and Marc Miller, who handles operations, complete the Miller family dream team.

Designed and custom built by Adam Miller, the space itself is resplendent with Oaxacan textiles and vibrant pieces of pottery creating its authentic vibe. The indoor dining room features an inviting bar and dining tables leading directly to a back patio with lush plants and white picnic tables sitting on a bed of sand and beneath a canopy of yellow-and-white striped umbrellas. This array has you whooshed off to a Mexican resort beach.

Rita Cantina's menu pays homage to Mexican cuisine with an emphasis on local offerings, straight from local farms and waters of Gardiner's Bay and beyond. With a menu that features a range of ceviches, quesadillas, tacos, slow-cooked dishes, and large plates, every palate can be satisfied. Signature dishes, such as the local littleneck clams with chorizo, serrano and tecate or the seafood ceviche with fluke, scallop, squid, shrimp, habanero and pomegranate, are winning choices among others. Large plates, such as the local market catch — whole fish roasted with citrus — is both aesthetically pleasing and flavorful. Why not pair this with a refreshing cocktail mixed with tequila or mezcal, such as the horchata colada with rum blend, house made and dairy-free horchata and pineapple. Frozen and original margaritas hit the spot anytime. Tres leches cake with strawberries and passion fruit complete the meal with flair.

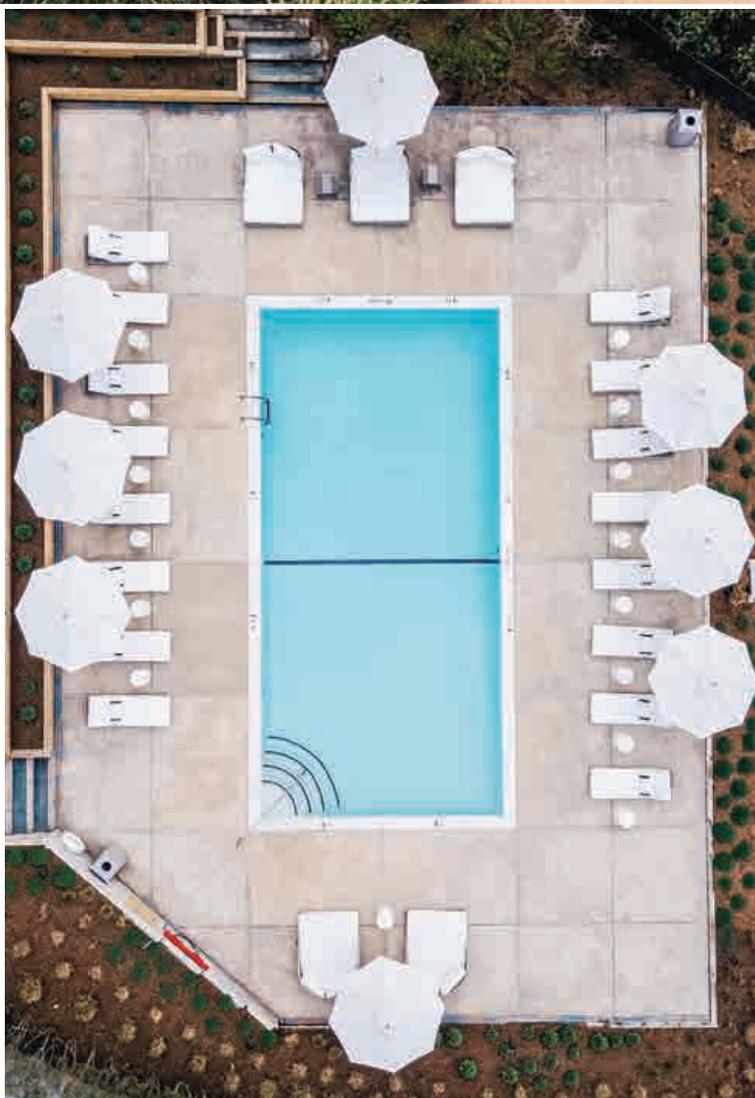

EHP Resort & Marina

EHP RESORT & MARINA

This Hamptons landmark underwent a multi-million-dollar transformation and reopened as EHP Resort & Marina. Featuring a contemporary Mediterranean vibe, this sprawling waterfront property offers open-air dining, private accommodations, curated activities, and more. Historic exteriors blended with contemporary interiors make for stylish and comfortable cottages and suites. Most suites and cottages feature private balconies, backyards or decks, spacious living areas, and a fully equipped wet-bar or kitchenette. Resort amenities and activities include a tennis court, a swimming pool, a state-of-the-art fitness center, complimentary bikes for venturing out, and a wellness-fitness calendar with classes such as yoga.

Helmed by the executive chef Dane Sayles, EHP offers three unique eateries. Sí Sí's signature paella, roasted striped bass or the bucatini verde with lobster are popular choices among so many other dishes. Sunset Harbor offers a range of shareable seafood dishes and its popular sushi rolls. Buongiorno, the resort's Italian bakery and espresso bar, offers a variety of light morning bites and rich select coffees, with an ample stock of imported Italian goods for purchase. With two full-service marinas, EHP accommodates the yachting community. EHP's marina located on Three Mile Harbor accommodates boats from 25 to 120 feet across 58 slips, with professional dockhands in season to assist. Shagwong Marina, about a half mile from EHP, accommodates boats from 25 to 45 feet across 40 slips, with professional dockhands on staff in season as well. Exclusive membership packages allow for added amenities throughout the summer season.

El Turco

EL TURCO

El Turco is located close to the heart of East Hampton and offers a unique dining experience. Every aspect of each course is rooted in authentic Turkish ingredients and flavor notes. The dishes are presented with wine pairings and cocktails to further elevate the dining experience. An eclectic range of live entertainment and curated music are featured during dinner.

El Turco has proudly created a chef's tasting experience of Turkish food showcasing the grand tastes and traditional expressions of the rich cultural heritage mixed with a contemporary nod to bold flavors. Each dish on the menu is based on classic Turkish recipes, reimagined by the culinary team led by its executive chef, Guney, with dishes originating from areas throughout Turkey, including its Aegean, Anatolian, and Mediterranean regions. Dishes include pilaki or classic mains such as alinazik kebab, a smoked puréed eggplant topped with cubes of sautéed lamb. The menu also features a variety of summer salads and small plates, such as manti, beef dumplings topped with garlic yogurt, sumac, and dry mint. Additionally, El Turco Catering offers traditional Turkish cuisine for delivery or take-out. Chef Meze offers sublime menus and white-glove service for all types of local parties and affairs.

BOSTWICK'S CHOWDER HOUSE

Some things are better left just as they always have been. Bostwick's in East Hampton is a perfect example of this as its classic and very popular menu has returned this season, with favorites such as baked stuffed clams, seared tuna seaweed salad, pickled ginger, and spicy Asian and wasabi sauces or the beloved raw bar sampler, served in its simple perfection, featuring three oysters, three clams, and three shrimp with cocktail sauce. Homemade chowders and soups, such as the lobster bisque, continue to be hits. Local fluke Milanese sautéed with a panko crust and topped with baby arugula, tomatoes, and onions, tossed with lemon vinaigrette is fresh and inventive.

Bostwicks Chowder House

Sautéed crab cakes with remoulade sauce, vegetables, and rice or a potato is consistently delicious. Tuna poke bowl with rice and a flavorful mango salsa, edamame, cucumbers, pickled ginger, wasabi cucumber sauce, and sesame seeds surpasses the ordinary poke bowl.

The Millhouse Inn

THE MILLHOUSE INN

This boutique destination inn is open year-round, with 10 rooms and suites, each beautifully designed, some with a fireplace. Mornings here are about breakfast, as the menu offers a variety of tasty and inventive choices. A signature dish is blueberry pancakes, fluffy and dusted with powdered sugar and cinnamon. A new lunch menu item along with other sandwich choices is the pair of Montauk lobster salad rolls served with a salad of heirloom tomatoes and baby greens with a sherry vinaigrette. Coffee and teas are offered with great pride and expertise. Enjoy anything from an English breakfast tea to an extra strong and rich cup of Baby's la tasse Cajun coffee. The coffee menu playfully invites you to "watch your spoon stand up all on its own."

SUMMER SPIRITS, PROHIBITION-STYLE

BY SHARON ROTH

Summer '23 is finally upon us! After a record warm winter where New York got perhaps two inches of snow — (Remember? Eve of February 27th?) — we're still more than eager for our East End balmy days and majestic sunsets by the sea.

Apropos of nothing and just because, I am declaring summer '23 Prohibition-Era Cocktail Summer. We need something fitting to imbibe on our many veranda-styled homes and inns from that timeless era. Plus, they happen to be delicious.

It is a little-known fact that the way we currently drink in America stems from that time. The craft cocktail (mixed drink) rose to unprecedented popularity during Prohibition, born out of the need to mask the often rancid taste of bootleg alcohol — and many of our present day bar staples were either created or cemented into favorites then, such as the Old Fashioned and the Sidecar. Speakeasies — those '20s hidden gems of dim lighting and creative libations — have similarly evolved into a beloved facet of chic modern nightlife.

Prior to Prohibition, distilled spirits accounted for less than 40 percent of the alcohol consumed in America. We were mainly drinking beer, wine, and champagne. By the end of the “noble experiment” (lol) distilled spirits made up more than 75 percent of alcohol sales, proving once again that the best way to popularize something is to tell people they can't have it.

So there we have it: 103 years after Prohibition went into effect at midnight January 17, 1920, a country still obsessed with craft cocktails.

While there are endless classic cocktails to choose from, and many a mixologist has devised the most sumptuous modern interpretations, we only have room for three. So here goes, just to get us started:

SIDECAR

Few cocktails can rival the iconic Sidecar: It's one of the great sour drinks found in every bartending guide published around Prohibition. In true '20s/'30s fashion, add a sugar rim for a sweet contrast:

- 2 ounces cognac or Armagnac
- 1 ounce Cointreau orange liqueur
- ¾ ounce lemon juice
- Garnish: lemon twist or orange twist

MARY PICKFORD

America's sweetheart of the 1920s, Mary Pickford starred in silent movies alongside Charlie Chaplin, and rum was one of Prohibition's hottest commodities. The story goes that she, her husband Douglas Fairbanks, and Chaplin were in Havana when a bartender whipped up this tropical concoction and named it in her honor:

- 2 ounces light rum
- 2 ounces pineapple juice
- 1 teaspoon grenadine
- Garnish: maraschino cherry

CORPSE REVIVER

This one looks like fun, and not just because of the name! Meant initially as a hangover cure, this classic ensured its popularity by its inclusion in the 1930 Savoy Cocktail Handbook:

- 1 ounce gin
- ½ ounce Cointreau
- ½ ounce Lillet Blonde
- ¾ ounce fresh lemon juice
- Dash of Absinthe

We are all set for our Summer of Prohibition-Era cocktails! (Gracefully) grab your vintage glass from that era (called coupe glasses), fill it with your craft cocktail of choice, and head to your nearest '20s-style veranda (if you don't have one, The Pridwin in Shelter Island and Sag Harbor's American Hotel both evoke that time beautifully, though only the Pridwin actually dates from the 1920s; the American Hotel is far older).

Let's toast to a magical, unforgettable vintage-chic summer 2023!
