July Fourth in the Hamptons is the place to be. The unmatched beauty of its beaches and countryside is truly a treasure. Life-changing, I'm convinced. Spend time here, slow things down a little, and detach from your smartphone. You'll see what I mean.

Of the many freedoms July Fourth represents, my favorite is freedom of the press. Let us not forget the importance and the ideas of a free nation, and how we reached where we are today. Freedom impacts our lives every day, and it's worth protecting.

This summer is special for Social Life Magazine, as we are celebrating 20 years in print. Where did the time go? I don't know. What started out as a simple idea has evolved into a top publication of the Hamptons. I remember the long nights my staff and I put in over all these years. Seeing how all the articles, covers, and event photos come together to make an issue has made a deep impression on me. Working on this magazine has shaped thoughts and ideas in me, and has changed my life forever. I'm looking forward to another 20 years in print and great experiences and memories to come.

The most exciting social happenings this month are two Polo Hamptons events — Saturday, July 22 and Saturday, July 29 — a polo match and cocktail party in Bridgehampton. Christie Brinkley will host the July 22 event. These will be the pinnacle events of the summer, and I recommend attending. For more information, go to polohamptons.com

This holiday weekend is a great time to relax and spend time with family and friends. Summer in the Hamptons is the perfect time to share life with people who mean the most to us as well as to meet new friends — building memories that can last a lifetime. The Hamptons offers the perfect setting for celebrating life.

For some people, July Fourth marks the beginning of the summer. But not for me. Turn the pages in this issue of Social Life to see what you might have missed in June.

Happy July Fourth!

Justin Mitchell

As we come together to honor the birth of our country, there is no better place to embrace the spirit of freedom and patriotism than the Hamptons. The East End is a fascinating amalgam of rural farmlands and wetlands alongside luxurious symbols of success. Here we see all sides of American life.

And yet what is the American identity? What do you feel when you see the American flag? This is an important time to reflect on the values and ideals that make America so extraordinary and that make you an American. This day, marked by celebrations and a shared sense of patriotism, serves as a reminder of our collective journey toward freedom, unity, and the pursuit of happiness.

Have you ever taken a moment to pause and truly contemplate the astonishing bravery of the colonial patriots who fought for this country's independence? Can you imagine someone giving up their life for you to enjoy freedom? It's important to not just honor those who helped to create this democracy, but have respect for the men and women who continue to fight for the principles upon which our great nation was founded. The Fourth of July is a day to celebrate the resilience and strength of the American spirit, as we come together to commemorate our independence.

Amid the parades and barbecues, let us also remember the importance of unity and inclusivity. On this day, we celebrate the diversity that enriches our country, recognizing that it is our shared experiences and differences that make us stronger and more vibrant as a nation.

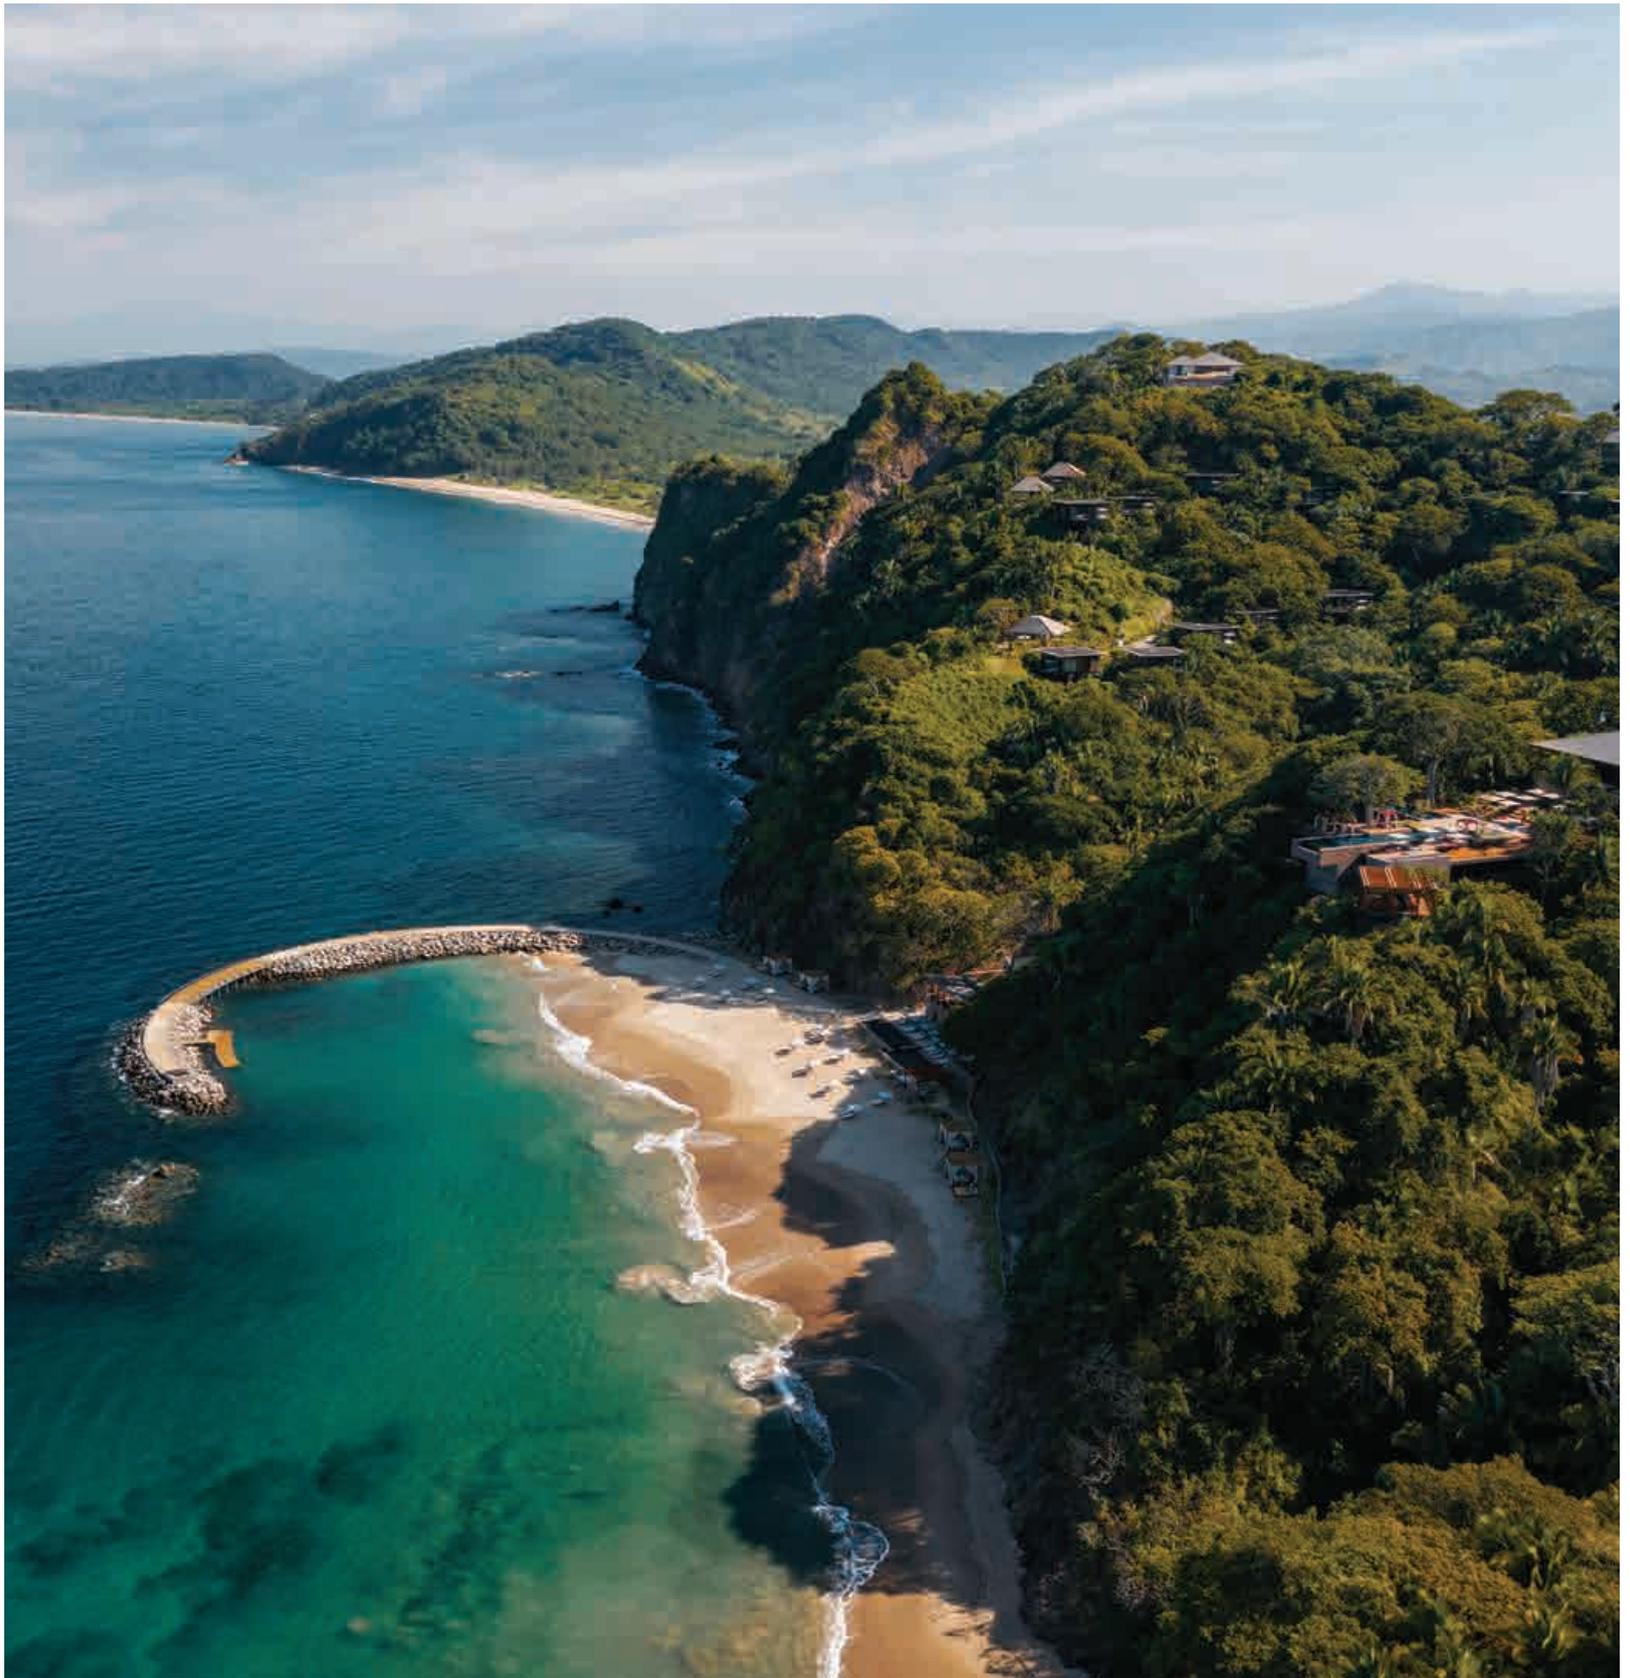

As we gather with family and friends, let us cherish the freedoms we enjoy and the opportunities that lie before us. Let us honor the values of liberty, equality, and justice for all, ensuring that they resonate not only on July 4th but every day of the year.

I encourage you to take a moment on this day to reflect on what it means to be an American and the role we play in shaping the future of our nation. We all should be so proud to be a part of this great nation. Let us use this occasion to engage in meaningful conversations, foster understanding, and work toward building a society that upholds the principles upon which our nation was founded. We are experiencing such an important time in history to enjoy and engage in these essential conversations.

I wish you a joyful and memorable Fourth of July celebration. May this day serve as a reminder of the strength, resilience, and unity that define us as a nation.

Warmest regards,

Devorah Rose

This month we celebrate the nation's legacy, the Fourth of July Weekend. I can't think of a more spectacular getaway destination than the Hamptons to spend Independence Day. This patriotic holiday is celebrated by many residents in the privacy of their exclusive country homes or rental properties while enjoying the company of family and friends. What better way to relish the pleasures of the picturesque landscapes on the East End than with traditional backyard barbecues, picnics, family reunions, and leisure activities. In the Hamptons, since the Fourth of July is celebrated over an extended period of two full weeks, there is plenty of time to enjoy the festivities.

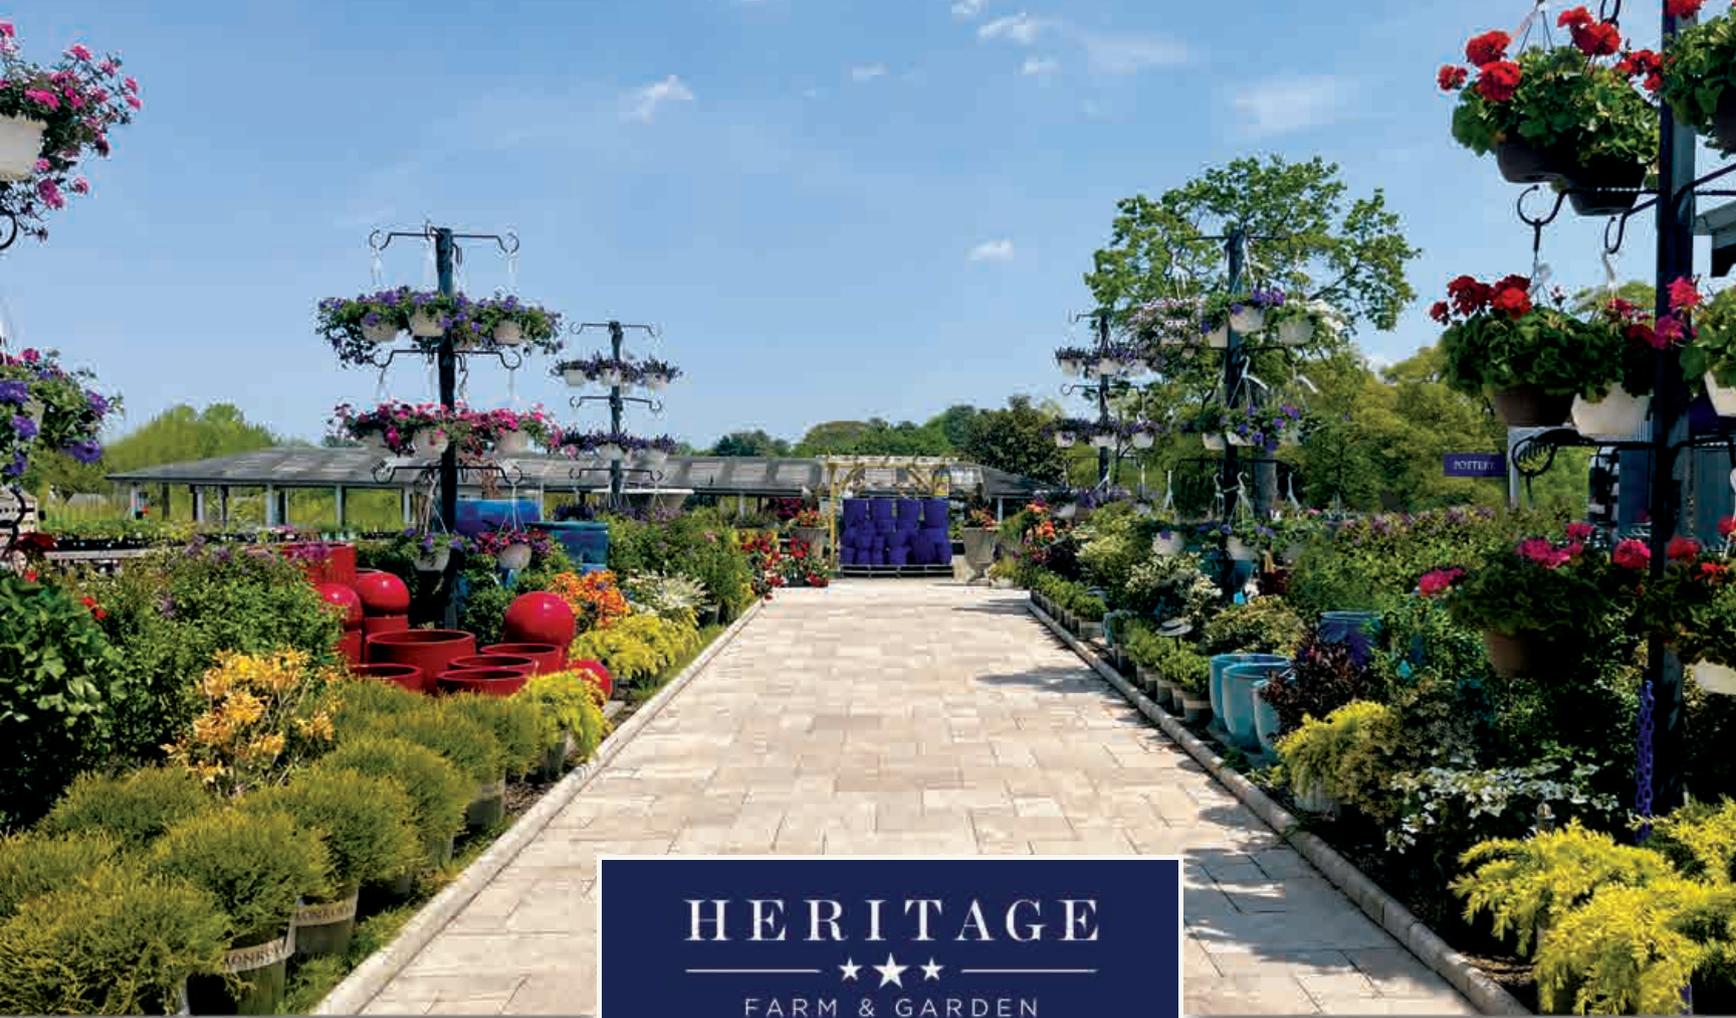

For many other residents, the East End is also renowned for its glamorous social scene, and the 4th of July is no exception. Private parties and galas are hosted by influential residents and renowned organizations and are set in extravagant venues, showcasing the best of the Hamptons' world class entertainment and culinary offerings by world famous chefs. From exclusive beachfront soirées to elegant private events, guests indulge in delicious cuisine, drink refreshing cocktails, and dance the night away. These elite gatherings offer a glimpse into the luxurious lifestyle for which the Hamptons is famous, making the 4th of July a truly memorable affair.

Regardless of how you choose to spend your 4th of July, please don't forget to give thanks for our freedoms and liberties fought for and established by our nation's first generation of Americans. Enjoy your holiday!

Warm wishes,

Christine Montanti

ANGEL RAMOS

SHAPING THE FUTURE OF BESPOKE
AND READY-TO-WEAR FASHION IN NEW YORK

BY CHARLES LYNCH

New York's dynamic fashion scene is set for a sartorial upgrade as Angel Ramos, a master of high-end menswear, partners with the iconic bespoke tailoring house Michael Andrews Bespoke. This union is not merely a joining of forces but the dawn of a new era in custom tailoring excellence and ready-to-wear fashion.

Ramos, known for his seamless blend of tradition and contemporary aesthetics, has been a vanguard in the city's style circuit since being named "Best Dressed Man in America" by Esquire magazine. The recent acquisition by Michael Andrews Bespoke promises a transformational synergy that will expand the horizon of bespoke tailoring.

Beyond custom tailoring, the partnership brings exciting news for lovers of ready-to-wear fashion. Ramos's Greenwich Village location (13 Christopher Street) will now feature an exclusive ready-to-wear line, broadening its sartorial offerings. The collection will echo the signature style of Ramos — detail-oriented, structurally pure, and brimming with character — catering to the needs of the modern fashion enthusiast seeking instant gratification.

While his Christopher Street location embraces ready-to-wear fashion, Ramos will shift his custom tailoring to the Michael Andrews showroom in NoHo. This move aligns perfectly with Michael Andrews Bespoke's reputation for premium, fit-focused tailoring that has charmed style connoisseurs for over a decade. The inclusion of Ramos's design expertise in their lineup is set to elevate their offering further, redefining the realm of menswear.

Through this partnership, Ramos will continue to create timeless custom pieces as well as ready-to-wear options that stand out in today's fast-paced fashion world. This collaboration is poised to set new benchmarks for custom tailoring and ready-to-wear in New York, uniting tradition with innovation, and craftsmanship with style. Fashion-forward New Yorkers, get ready for a game-changing wardrobe upgrade.

SHANI GROSZ

A WOMAN IN POWER DESIGNING TO EMPOWER WOMEN

By JONATHAN VALDEZ

PHOTOGRAPHY BY TYLER PATRICK KENNY

Shani Grosz

“You made me feel beautiful even when I thought I couldn’t.” An incredible statement from a customer who hand wrote a letter to inform New York-based fashion designer Shani Grosz that her dresses are not only beautiful but oftentimes pivotal in helping to elevate women’s confidence no matter what is going on in their lives.

From Emmy-winning, A-list actresses to almost every news-woman in the country to women in the boardroom and at cocktail hour on the Upper East Side and in the Hamptons, Shani’s designs have been all over the world and travel on more planes than you can imagine! Hand-sketched and designed by Shani herself in New York City, the fabrics are sourced from all over the world, which means Shani often works day and night to ensure that her customers not only have the perfect dress, but keep coming back for more.

There is a reason why Shani Grosz is a secret weapon among women who are truly in the know. That is because Shani knows how to fit real women who depend on Shani’s eponymous label to let them shine. They know that the fit will be true to size, the material and design will be unique and fabulous, and the compliments will be overflowing.

Living up to the saying “The devil is in the details,” Shani creates the open work designs on the fabrics she uses in her creations.

After she sketches her design, she laser cuts the fabric, an exacting and labor-intensive act of artistry. Appliqués are hand placed on every dress. The time and care that goes into a creation by Shani is why you will stand out in the best way possible. Shani’s dresses are designed to be worn twelve months a year rather than only one season, a rarity in a world consumed with fast fashion.

She is known for interesting but classic designs. If women on camera and on step-and-repeats constantly wear Shani’s designs it is because they film and photograph like perfection. Something to keep in mind if you have special occasions this summer where cameras will be snapping away.

A Shani dress feels like a hug from a friend, and if you ever get the chance to meet Shani Grosz that is exactly what you will get, a big hug from your new friend who cares not only about how you look but more importantly how you feel. “When a woman looks good, they are empowered. I want nothing but the best for each one of my customers,” Shani says.

A POWDER ROOM FOR YOUR DOG

BY JAMES JULIAN

Winsome Lennon, Stephen Suk and Duke (Chief Dog Officer)

Pooch Power Room, founded by Winsome Lennon, is a concept born of love for animals and care for the environment. Pooch Powder Room will pamper your dog with accommodations that are both luxurious and convenient. The company's doggie lavatory, suites, and pet-friendly installations are exquisite additions to fine homes. Choices range from the Premier Model to the Elite Series, where extravagant European pieces can complement, enhance, and transform your existing décor. See the opposite page for a look at one of the elegant designs.

Doggie urgency will no longer be an issue. On the commode, activate the remote lid lift or automatic sensor lid lift. For smaller dogs, the company offers a refreshing table tub with an accompanying towel warmer.

Larger dogs can experience a personal mini shower with mounted and handheld sprayers, also with an accompanying towel warmer.

Pooch Powder Room is truly good for the environment. It is a misconception that doggie deposit is a natural fertilizer. Deposits cause grass discoloration and breed bacteria and other microbes. Pooch Powder Room's luxury lavatory will help preserve outdoor spaces and safeguard the beauty of your lawn.

Pooch Powder Room's builder, Joseph Di Staulo Homes, has generational experience. His professionalism and high work ethic were passed on by his father and mentor, who began building high-end homes in 1957. He has an excellent reputation in the industry and is a reputable builder of new construction in the affluent Alpine, New Jersey, area. This match of expert workmanship and superb client service is deserving of our clientele.

Winsome Lennon has fond memories of her childhood home amid rolling hills and brilliant color-swept meadows, where her two dogs, Prince and Morgan, roamed. Prince was a handsome mixed-breed hound and Morgan, a bold protector, was a spotted English setter adorned in beautiful tan-and-white spots. As the dogs aged, their days were less active. Winsome recalls, "Amusingly, both dogs no longer desired to endure the rainy days or cold nights' air, making this apparent through their stares out the front door, then a hasty retreat down the foyer. We provided creative ways for them to access life's necessities, and this is how the idea of Pooch Powder Room began."

Powder Room's architect can guide you on room additions or remodeling existing spaces. With this company, you can expect prompt and courteous service. Though the company does not provide coaching, they are happy to discuss details with your dog trainer. Pooch Powder Room invites you, the trendsetters and innovators, to accompany them on this journey of impeccable taste and environmental consciousness.

STEPHEN T. GREENBERG, MD, FACS

THE LATEST COSMETIC SURGERY PROCEDURES
WILL HAVE YOU LOOKING HOT THIS SUMMER

BY LUNA MACNISH

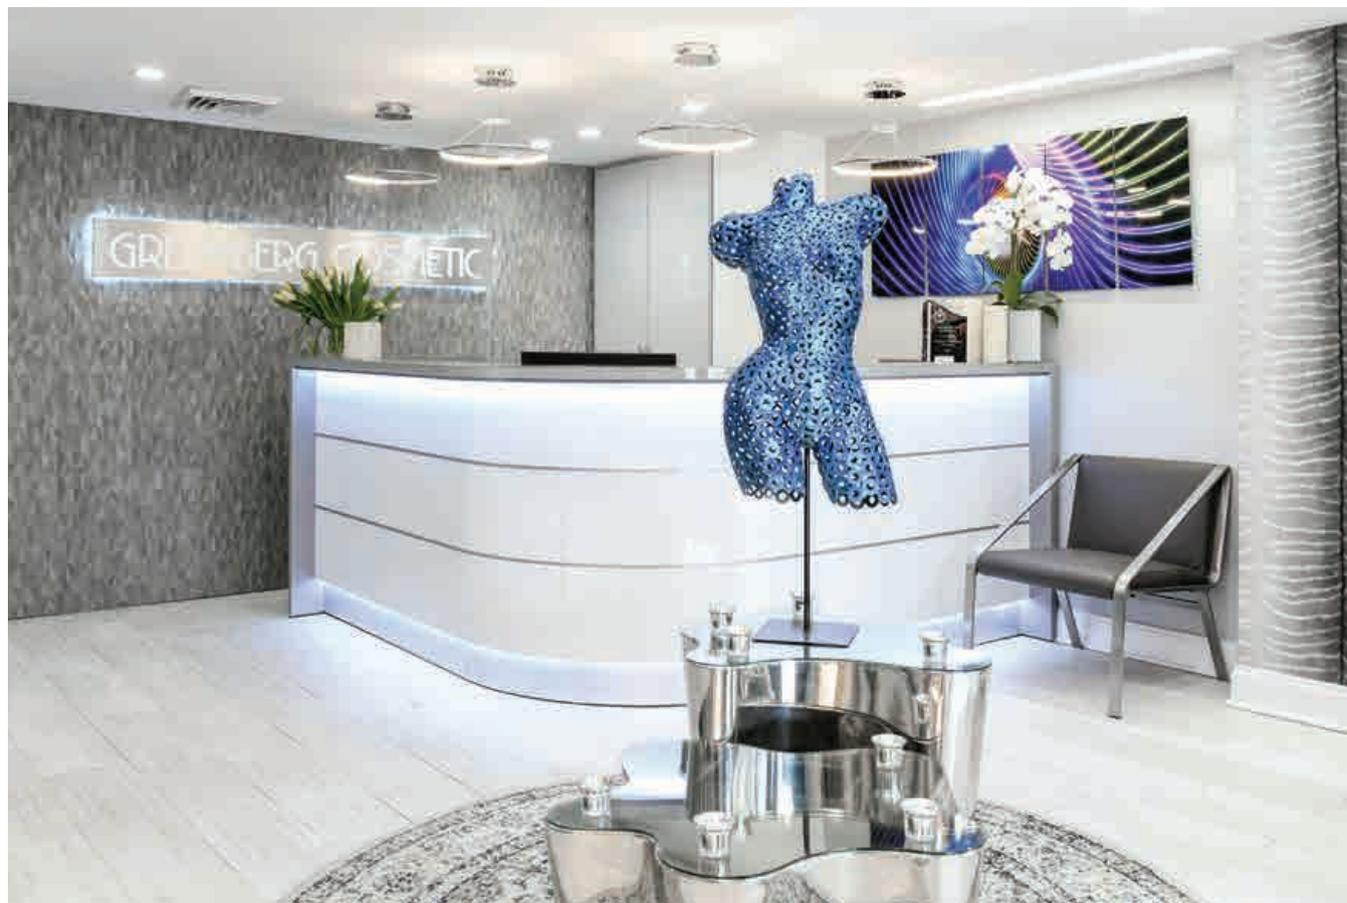

Dr. Greenberg, Photography by Neil J Tandy

Now more than ever, Stephen T. Greenberg, MD, FACS, can count on the latest, exciting technology to help achieve the best possible cosmetic surgery results. While the true secret to maintaining a youthful look is paying attention to the basic issues that you can control — adequate sleep and hydration, watching your diet, and making time to exercise — Dr. Greenberg can help you obtain the look that you're striving for by using the available advancements in technology to assist you in attaining your goals. Supplementing a healthy lifestyle with cosmetic surgery procedures will leave you in the best shape that you can be in . . . healthy and beautiful both inside and out! Media confronts us with hundreds of alternatives for improving our appearance, regaining our youth, and toning up our bodies. Dr. Greenberg knows which techniques, products, and technology are the best for each of his patients.

Breast augmentation, breast lift, and breast reduction provide beautiful, natural-looking results. Combining these procedures with liposuction, tummy tuck, body lift, facelift, eyelid lift, or other non-surgical services is most effective.

Regardless of which procedures you select, you can turn back the hands of time! The hottest surgical techniques to make you look younger include eyelid lifts, facelifts, deeper laser resurfacing, and rhinoplasty. The eyelid lift takes only about an hour and provides a youthful appearance to both the upper and lower lids. A facelift, whether it is mini, micro-mini, lower, or a full lift, takes years off of facial appearance. A face lift is a great way to pull up excessive skin, rejuvenate the neck, and lift the jowls. Mini, or modified facelifts are often performed on much younger patients before the signs of aging are advanced. Overall, the natural look is of utmost importance.

Combining laser resurfacing procedures and rhinoplasty is effective in completing a full facial rejuvenation.

In addition, injections work well to eliminate facial lines and wrinkles. Botox and Juvéderm, coupled with non-surgical skin tightening and collagen induction therapy, ensure phenomenal results.

If you're struggling with those last few inches, body contouring can be the answer. The most common contouring technique is liposuction. Dr. Greenberg uses the latest and most advanced technology for excellent results and a fast recovery. Smart Lipo MPX is ideal for the neck, jawline, arms, breasts, bra fat, abdomen, love handles, saddle bags, inner and outer thighs, and knees. It's also an excellent complement to Cellulaze, the first FDA-approved procedure to permanently get rid of cellulite.

Also consider the fat-freezing technique Coolsculpting. It gets rid of love handles as well as abdominal and thigh fat. There is no down time and results can show in as little as two months.

Another avenue to consider is having a tummy tuck (abdominoplasty), especially effective post-pregnancy or after significant weight loss. This procedure improves abdominal contouring and can have you in great shape quickly. Abdominoplasty effectively reduces or eliminates stretch marks, excess skin, and corrects weakened abdominal muscles.

A non-surgical toning option is the newest Emsculpt Neo device, which is the first non-invasive device designed to eliminate fat cells and build muscle non-invasively by a unique combination of radiofrequency heating and rapid muscle contractions (HIFEM: high intensity focused electromagnetic energy) in a single 30-minute session. This revolutionary treatment has zero downtime and produces effective results to shed inches and tone quickly. This is also a fantastic post-tummy-tuck and liposuction adjunct to enhance surgical results. The Emsculpt Neo can be used on the abdomen, love handles, thighs, arms, and calves.

For over 30 years, Greenberg Cosmetic Surgery and Dermatology has been providing the proper mix of these procedures to provide the most successful improvements in appearance with a significant reduction in the signs of aging. Using the most state-of-the-art technology to obtain the best and most natural results. You can make time reverse in Dr. Greenberg's caring, safe, and supportive environment.

Now is the best time to get into your best possible shape and show off a younger and more vibrant you! For more information and to schedule your personal and complimentary consultation, call 631.287.4999 or visit greenbergcosmeticsurgery.com.

Attain Medspa is based on integrative medicine and promises to make your life easier with an all-encompassing Wellness Center. The goal of the Wellness Center is to determine your needs for skin care, weight-management, and possible health issues, quickly and professionally. Attain offers more than a dozen services, including peels, fillers, dermal-planing, IV therapy, laser treatments, hair removal, Emsculpt, contouring, and facials. “No matter what the budget is, walk out of Attain looking better,” says Lauren Ben Meir.

VALUE-ADDED HEALTH BENEFIT

In addition to top-notch spa services, Attain Medspa helps to assess your health via consultation and bloodwork. Attain Medspa has a licensed physician’s assistant (PA) on site, who reports to Attain Medspa’s medical director, a licensed physician.

Beyond a complete range of spa services, you can get a script to have your blood drawn. Within 48 hours your results will be ready, and you may come in for a consultation or opt for an online meeting. If the PA believes your bloodwork indicates a potential problem, the PA will discuss this with the medical director physician before discussing with you the health ramifications of your bloodwork and referrals for an appropriate physician. This is a great alternative for people who don’t have a regular physician or have been putting off getting bloodwork.

This value-added benefit at Attain Medspa — two consultations, bloodwork script, and physician referrals if necessary is only $150 total. “It’s amazing that we are in charge of our lives, but not in charge of our health,” says Ben-Meir. Attain Medspa’s goal is to keep you in charge.

DR. KEITH DURANTE

A CURE FOR BALDING AND THINNING HAIR

BY AMY POKOLIOFF

Being a surgeon is a skilled and learned discipline; however, being a gifted surgeon who understands the artistry of transplanting hair requires another layer of talent. Keith Durante, MD, FACS, originally a renowned microvascular surgeon, is well known throughout the Hamptons and Metro New York as a leading hair transplant surgeon. Follicular unit extraction (FUE) is his precision technique, and his practice is solely devoted to hair transplantation. His practice's motto is "Hair is all we do." Dr. Durante extracts one hair follicle at a time and then re-implants it where it will have the most natural result. Dr. Durante's years of experience in microvascular surgery — joining or repairing damaged blood vessels during reconstructive surgery — has given him unique expertise for transplanting hair follicles.

"Leonardo da Vinci determined a standard of beauty that divides a face into thirds. The distance between a chin and nose, a nose and eyebrows, and eyebrows and hairline should be the same measurement. A hair surgeon needs to understand facial anatomy and perform transplantation that is a natural complement to the face," said Dr. Durante.

Hair transplantation is a $5 billion industry and growing. Both women and men can suffer from baldness. Dr. Durante has been seeing an increase in balding among the younger generation, and photos on Instagram have made people more self-conscious about their appearance. "Until recently, I was seeing a lot of people in their 40s. Now I'm seeing more and more young men in their 20s who are seeking my assistance," said Dr. Durante.

Dr. Durante likes to remind his patients that hair is a garden we must nurture and grow through self-care. He recommends adaptogenic supplements — herbs and plant parts that help our bodies deal with and recover from stress. They provide vitamins that help supplement the scalp and provide natural support to thicken hair. Through his advice and hair transplants Dr. Durante wants to offer a long-lasting solution not only for an improved appearance but also for improved well-being.

Dr. Durante can completely restore a front hairline that looks natural with no detectable signs of surgery. "I think for me it is about continuing to perfect my work and continuing to make people happy because hair loss can be treated," he says.

TIPS FOR CONTROLLING YOUR BLOOD SUGAR LEVEL

BY KRISTY ROWLING

Controlling your blood sugar is integral to losing weight and preventing diseases such as diabetes, heart disease, dementia, stroke, and cancer. We can store some sugar in our liver and muscles; however, when they reach capacity, our body stores sugar as fat. This of course causes weight gain. Luckily, there are some pretty simple ways to successfully manage our blood sugar on a regular basis. Here are some tips:

Eat fiber with every meal. Fiber slows the absorption of sugar, which means less of a blood sugar spike. Non-starchy vegetables are a great source of fiber. So, aim to fill up half of your dinner plate with them. Carbohydrates are broken down by the body into sugar, which enters the bloodstream. So as carbohydrates are consumed, your blood sugar level increases. There are two types of vegetables — starchy and non-starchy — and they have entirely different impacts on your blood sugar level. Although a non-starchy vegetable may be rich in fiber, antioxidants, vitamins, and minerals, it is higher in calories and carbohydrates. Unfortunately, America's favorite vegetable, the potato, falls under the starchy category. This is why mashed cauliflower has become a popular alternative. A 1½ cup serving of cauliflower includes 8 grams of carbohydrates and 4 grams of fiber, while the same serving of potato includes 39 grams of carbohydrates and 5 grams of fiber. If you fill half of your plate with non-starchy vegetables at every meal instead of starchy vegetables, you will see a huge positive difference in blood sugar, insulin, and weight. As someone's intake of non-starchy vegetables goes up, their risk of stroke, heart disease, weight gain, type 2 diabetes and pre-diabetes decreases.

HERE IS A LIST OF NON-STARCHY VEGETABLES:

- ✓ Arugula
- ✓ Artichokes
- ✓ Asparagus
- ✓ Bell peppers
- ✓ Bok choy
- ✓ Broccoli
- ✓ Brussels sprouts
- ✓ Cabbage
- ✓ Cauliflower
- ✓ Celery
- ✓ Collard greens
- ✓ Cucumber
- ✓ Eggplant
- ✓ Endive
- ✓ Green beans
- ✓ Hearts of palm
- ✓ Kale
- ✓ Lettuce
- ✓ Mushrooms
- ✓ Onions
- ✓ Radicchio
- ✓ Radishes
- ✓ Snap beans
- ✓ Snow peas
- ✓ Spaghetti squash
- ✓ Spinach
- ✓ Tomatoes
- ✓ Zucchini

Have dessert after a fiber-rich meal or add fiber to your dessert. Sweets spike your blood sugar since refined carbs and added sugars enter the bloodstream quickly. Fiber slows the absorption of sugar from food. So, if you've just had a really healthy, fiber-rich meal, it's a way better time to eat dessert than on an empty stomach. Not every dessert has fiber in it. Try my black bean brownie for a delicious, fiber-rich dessert.

Avoid refined sugar. Try having some berries for dessert instead. Experiment with other sugars such as coconut sugar or maple syrup, which have a lower glycemic index than white sugar. Most important, never drink sugar. Sugar-containing drinks, such as sodas, blended coffee drinks, and juices lead to rapid glucose spikes. If you are someone who craves juice or soda, gradually cut back by diluting your drinks in half with regular or sparkling water. Little by little, you will crave the sugar less and less.

Practice moderation, even for healthy meals. Although it's usually the foods that have too many carbs such as rice, pasta, potatoes, and fried foods that cause a blood sugar spike, simply eating too much of anything will also cause a spike. Don't wait all day to have one meal and then eat too much. It will backfire.

Ditch white flour. Start to bake or purchase food made with almond, tiger nut, or coconut flour. Foods with white flour are ultra-processed carbs and quickly convert to sugar in the bloodstream.

Finish eating a few hours before bedtime. It will give your body a break from needing to process glucose, decreasing the release of insulin. This can lead to more stable overnight glucose levels which helps you tap into your fat stores instead for energy.

Include apple cider vinegar with a high glycemic meal. Add 1-2 tablespoons of apple cider vinegar to a glass of water.

Snack smart. Carrots and seeded crackers with hummus or a handful of almonds will not spike your blood sugar but a bag of chips will.

Exercise. Your body draws on sugar reserves in your muscles and liver for energy when you work out. As your body rebuilds these stores, sugar is removed from your blood. The more intense your workout, the longer you will have low blood sugar afterwards.

DR. DILIP D. MADNANI

LIFE-CHANGING NATURALYFT

BY LAURA HILTON

Renowned facial plastic surgeon Dilip Madnani, M.D., is in high demand in New York circles, with his trademarked NaturaLyft procedure. It's topping the popularity charts with women and men sprucing up their summer looks. Board-certified by both the American Board of Facial Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery and the American Board of Otolaryngology–Head and Neck Surgery, Dr. Madnani has been treating clients in New York since 2010, specializing in facial plastic surgery, especially facelift surgery, along with lasers, and injectables to improve the shape and surface of the face.

NaturaLyft is his signature in-office facelift performed without general anesthesia. Also referred to as a rhytidectomy, this facelift effectively removes excess skin and tightens underlying tissue, diminishes jowls, and softens facial creases while restoring a more youthful face and jawline profile.

Dr. Madnani customizes his facelift procedures for each patient depending on their specific concerns and desired outcome. He's known for creating natural, long-lasting results, whether performed alone or combined with other procedures like a brow lift or eyelid lift.

The NaturaLyft procedure can be performed in Dr. Madnani's accredited surgical suite in either his Fifth Avenue or Woodbury office. Local rather than general anesthesia affords a quicker and more comfortable recovery with less down time. Incisions are placed in natural creases around the ear and in the hairline, depending on the specific techniques to be used. The underlying muscles and soft tissues of the face are lifted and repositioned using a variety of techniques, and extra skin is removed to achieve a more youthful, natural look. Skin is repositioned over the new facial contours and excess skin removed before incisions are sutured closed. The NaturaLyft typically takes between one to two hours to complete, depending on the number of areas to be corrected.

For more information about NaturaLyft and to schedule your personal consultation, visit drmadnani.com or call one of his two offices.

SOLLIS HEALTH

24/7 CONCIERGE MEDICAL SERVICES

By JOCELYN BRANDEIS

Scott Braunstein, M.D.

I recently spoke with Scott Braunstein, M.D., the national medical director of Sollis Health, a private 24/7 urgent and emergency medical concierge service. Sollis has ten medical centers nationwide across New York City, the Hamptons, Los Angeles, Palm Beach, and San Francisco. Sollis handles common illnesses to medical emergencies and everything in between with little to no wait. Sollis features in-house labs, on-site imaging, and ER-trained physicians, which means whatever your medical concern, you'll always have the ultimate luxury: peace of mind.

Sollis Health's Water Mill medical center is open daily from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. The center features four exam rooms, X-ray, EKG, mobile ultrasound, and more. Sollis also offers same-day house calls from Westhampton to Montauk all summer long (available for an additional fee).

According to Dr. Braunstein, "Opening a Hamptons location was an obvious choice for us. Many of our members have a second home in the Hamptons, and we want to provide them with expert medical care when they are out East. Sollis is not your typical doctor's office. Their commitment to excellent service, attention to detail, and thoughtful amenities deliver a five-star hospitality experience. They like to say, "less hospital, more hospitality."

A Sollis membership is also universal. Members have access to all their nationwide locations as well as on-demand virtual visits, available 24/7. And care doesn't end when members leave a Sollis center. When follow-up is needed, Sollis's deep network of the nation's leading specialists allows them to secure expedited appointments for members as well as VIP services at hospitals. "As a member of Sollis, you always have access to top quality care whenever you need it — our team of emergency-trained physicians are available at our centers, or via telehealth and even house calls," Dr. Braunstein said. Sollis offers tiered membership rates for families, bespoke corporate offerings, and all-inclusive membership tiers. Annual memberships start at $3,500. Please email or call for more information.

OXIDATIVE STRESS

WHY IT IS HARMFUL TO YOUR CELLS

BY JOSEPH V. CASSARINO

Joseph V. Cassarino

Everything we eat, breathe and drink in modern times is toxic and causes Oxidative Stress. What we are eating results in the production of reactive oxygen species — oxidative stress and free radicals. The body produces free radicals during normal metabolic processes. However, oxidative stress can damage cells, proteins, and also play a role in development of a range of health conditions, including memory, cognition, movement, cellular cycle and blood sugar response challenges. Oxidative stress can be associated with aging, inflammation responses, circulatory flow, heart function, reproduction and more.

We are all now absorbing more Oxidative Stress inside our cells than our cells can process out. Most of us eat processed foods, drink toxic alcohol, breath polluted air and drink polluted water and we are also absorbing pesticides on fruits and vegetables and maybe even the grass in your front lawn or nearby park. Toxins are embedded into just about every food we eat. Additionally, electromagnetic frequencies emitted from cell phones and towers, smart TVs, and electric outlets in our homes and those EMFs also add oxidative stress to our cells.

Protecting your health is as important as protecting your wealth. It is no secret that glutathione is the peptide in the cell that helps the body process oxidative stress. A simple Google search of the word glutathione in front of the name of any concern will produce tens of thousands of research reports indicating how glutathione depletion is associated with almost every major health category. The science and data show proper glutathione balance is associated with optimal health. Glutathione, if you are not aware, is known scientifically as nutrition for oxidative stress, free radicals and toxins inside the cell. In fact, the origin of the immune system begins with glutathione and if glutathione did not exist, human life would not exist! This is how critically important healthy levels of glutathione is to life.

There is a safe way to help with Oxidative Stress all natural to your body as nature intended ProImmune® - Immune Formulation 200® is a natural scientific discovery and revolution by Dr. Albert B. Crum, M.D. MS, D.Sc.-Hon. A graduate of Harvard Medical School, Dr. Crum is also a 2018 Albert Nelson Marquis Lifetime Achievement Award recipient.

ProImmune® - Immune Formulation 200® is the only formula in the world that induces each of the three hundred trillion cells in the human body to produce glutathione intracellularly as nature intended. No other glutathione product or precursor in the world permits the cell to manufacture glutathione inside the cell or to receive nutrition for optimal glutathione production inside of the cell. All other glutathione products including N-Acetyl L-Cysteine (NAC) have to attempt to make its way into the cell and other glutathione products or precursors lose a large percentage of glutathione making its way into the cell which is inefficient. Only Dr. Crum's miraculous scientific discovery works in a way, in which, cell's produces only as much glutathione that is needed, while each cell discards any excess glutathione in order not to over-toxify the cell. Glutathione replenishment also supports A1C goals by helping with oxidative stress inside cells. Google the word Glutathione and A1C and read the research about glutathione synthesis. Glutathione is also known as the master antioxidant and life extending molecule.

ProImmune® - Immune Formulation 200® is available at thebestimmunesupport.com with free shipping and coming to Amazon soon. Joseph V. For a touch of Fourth of July patriotism, I often make delicious Bob's Red Mill gluten-free muffins. Adding raspberries, coconut, and blueberries can turn this basic recipe into an explosion of color. Your taste buds will awaken and your guests will be delighted.

FIREWORKS MUFFINS (12 to 14)

2 cups Bob's Red Mill gluten-free 1-to-1 baking flour
 2 tsp. baking powder
 ½ tsp. salt
 1 stick butter, softened
 1¼ cups plus 2 tsp. sugar
 2 large eggs
 ½ cup buttermilk
 ½ cup sweetened shredded coconut
 ¼ cup blueberries
 ¼ cup raspberries

Preheat oven to 425. Line muffin pans with paper liners. Whisk together flour, baking powder, and salt. Cream butter and 1¼ cups sugar until light and fluffy. Beat in eggs one at a time. Add flour and beat until blended. Beat in buttermilk. Gently fold in fruit and coconut. Spoon batter into muffin pans and sprinkle with remaining sugar. Place in oven and immediately reduce temperature to 375 and bake for 30 minutes.

Let the muffins cool to develop flavor. Place them on a bright white platter with blueberries and raspberries sprinkled between the muffins. Enjoy the tasty treat and compliments from your guests. Let the holiday celebrations begin.

ANIMAL ADVOCATE

PHOTOGRAPHY BY HOWARD STERN

In the realm of animal welfare and advocacy, Beth Ostrosky Stern stands out as an influential figure, driven by a profound passion to make a difference. However, her impact extends beyond the public eye. She is also a loving and devoted wife to Howard Stern. Together, they share a deep-rooted passion for giving voice to the voiceless. In our exclusive interview with her, Stern candidly opens up about her profound passion, while giving us insights on her current projects and dispelling common misconceptions.

We are given so much information every day, so it's hard to scratch beyond the surface of what we see. Especially on Instagram, people tend to make quick judgments, something Stern knows well. She says, "People think my life is so very glamorous with Howard and that I have other people doing the messy part of pet foster work. Not true! I am currently fostering 19 kittens and adult/senior cats. That's a lot of poop to scoop! What I have chosen to do with my life is a passion and a 24/7 commitment. I put the animals first since I have no human children. Howard and I also have seven resident cats which are mostly special needs, and one new resident bunny we fell in love with." It becomes evident that Stern's life revolves around the well-being of the animals she cares for, illustrating her unparalleled dedication.

Her focus on helping animals has also led her to a fun new project. Beth is always looking for new ways to bring attention to her advocacy work. “I’ve recently collaborated with the amazing jewelry line Star Animal Sundays to co-design a pendant necklace and bracelet that we are currently offering to help save more lives. Named the Spirit Unity collection, 100% of my proceeds go directly to Beth’s Furry Friends Foundation. Through my foundation, I provide medical care for my fosters and specialty surgeries for other rescued animals. I am wearing the necklace in my photo shoot,” Stern says.

Stern’s unwavering commitment to making a difference is most commonly seen on Instagram, where she shares a lot of her life with her following. While social media has become a powerful tool for Stern to reach and impact a vast audience, it also presents its own set of challenges. “It’s amazing that I can reach so many people via Instagram. It’s a tool that has allowed me to make a difference and further my work. Yet, there is a darker, more stressful side to having a presence on social media. Every day, I block about 10 to 15 people who have commented nasty things and hurt my feelings regarding my rescue work. The criticism is painful, but I try to take a deep breath and find solace in TM meditation and cuddling with one of my cats. I remind myself that every day I am fortunate to be able to save lives, and I’m doing my best. I have to stay focused on my mission and resist the temptation to respond to criticism, as my husband advises. Blocking accounts has become a necessity, and it angers me that some people believe they are saving a life by merely emailing me about a situation without taking further action. I genuinely wish I could save them all.” Stern’s resilience and ability to balance taking care of her animals while staying positive despite toxic keyboard warriors is something everyone can admire.

Beth Stern’s passion reveals itself in her work at the North Shore Animal League America. “The cage-free feline facility at North Shore Animal League America that I helped create, Bianca’s Furry Friends Feline Adoption Center, has played a pivotal role in the growing success of our feline adoptions. The spacious, open rooms provide a joyous environment for cats awaiting their forever homes. I hope to see more shelters emulate this cage-free approach,” Stern says.

Stern is delighted that certain states have passed laws banning pet stores from selling pets because this helps shelters to showcase adoptable pets in a positive environment. “There is now no need to visit a pet store other than to purchase supplies and food,” she says. Stern’s vision for creating a positive and enriching environment for animals in need is one that continues to drive her forward. Beth Stern provides brighter futures for animals by spreading awareness, compassion, and love every step of the way.

MARIA FISHEL

MARIA FISHEL

BY EMILY KATE FASSBERG
PHOTOGRAPHY BY MARSIN MOGIELSKI

In the picturesque enclave of the Hamptons, nestled amid the serenity of nature and the allure of luxurious estates, Maria Fishel, a woman driven by a deep passion for philanthropy, has been making a significant impact. Through her involvement in various initiatives, Maria has channeled her resources and influence to foster positive change. We delved into Maria's notable philanthropic activities and learned about her motivation, background, and the profound influence she has had on the community.

One of Maria's most significant philanthropic ventures is her support for the Samuel Waxman Cancer Research Foundation. Every July the Fishels host a grand affair attended by 500 esteemed guests under a large tent. For over a decade, Maria has been hosting remarkable events in the Hamptons, raising funds to fuel groundbreaking research in the pursuit of cancer cures. Through her dedicated efforts, she has successfully raised millions, transforming the lives of countless individuals affected by this relentless disease.

Maria opens her doors to an array of captivating events, including the Valentino Summer Escape, a poolside lunch party where VIP clients from Valentino are welcomed. This is one of Maria's most special events as Valentino is her favorite brand. Maria also has partnered with esteemed fashion house Oscar de la Renta for an upcoming polo event.

Her passion for preserving cultural heritage is evident through her involvement with the French Heritage Society. In a forthcoming cocktail party, Maria plans to raise funds to protect French architecture and promote education. Drawing inspiration from her own garden, she envisions a captivating event where guests will be serenaded by musicians, relishing French cuisine against a backdrop of an enchanting French Riviera theme.

Maria's commitment to cultural diversity goes beyond creating visually stunning events; it extends to her desire to promote inclusivity and celebrate different cultures. In a groundbreaking collaboration, Maria joined forces with El Museo del Barrio, a renowned institution dedicated to showcasing and preserving Latin art and culture. Together, they plan an exciting summer event that will bring a taste of Latin heritage to the luxurious setting of the Hamptons. Maria envisions an immersive experience where guests will be transported to the vibrant streets of Latin American cities.

The event space will be transformed into a captivating fusion of colors, textures, and sounds, reminiscent of the region's rich culture. Through exquisite Spanish and Latin cuisine, expertly curated by renowned chefs, Maria will ensure that every bite becomes a sensory journey. Beyond the artistic beauty and culinary delights, this collaboration holds a deeper purpose. Maria and El Museo del Barrio are united in their mission to support a noble cause, raising funds to further the museum's initiatives and expand the reach of Latin art and culture. Through this collaboration, she hopes to inspire others to embrace and appreciate the richness of different cultures, recognizing that diversity is a strength that brings people together in meaningful and impactful ways.

Maria's events often attract notable figures, including the renowned chef Jean-Georges and other talented chefs. Their participation adds a layer of excitement and culinary excellence to Maria's philanthropic endeavors.

Through their skills and expertise, these chefs elevate the dining experience at Maria's events, creating unforgettable moments that further engage guests and raise funds for important causes.

Maria is also committed to health, wellness, and women's empowerment. She is collaborating with Elysian, a prominent women's magazine, for a planned cocktail party at her home. Maria will create an intimate and inspiring atmosphere where guests can engage in meaningful conversations about personal well-being, empowerment, and self-care. This event will serve as a platform to amplify the voices and experiences of women while fostering a sense of community and support.

Maria is known for her impeccable taste and attention to detail. When working with Preston Bailey, the renowned event designer, and his team, their combined expertise creates unforgettable experiences. Maria's flair for artistic compositions and Preston's knack for grandeur result in breathtaking and immersive events that leave guests in awe. Their collaboration brings together the best of both worlds, resulting in truly extraordinary celebrations.

Maria's roots trace to Ecuador, where she developed a love for nature through her mother's passion for gardening. This love blossomed further when she settled in the Hamptons.

Embracing her Ecuadorian heritage, Maria frequents the flower district, using her exquisite taste to create stunning floral arrangements that grace her prestigious events. Her fondness for animals is expressed through her support for wildlife conservation, which she plans to further explore.

Despite her busy schedule and philanthropic commitments, Maria understands the importance of maintaining a strong bond with her loved ones. Maria's family remains her priority, and her love for hosting and cooking allows her to create treasured memories with loved ones. During the winter months, Maria and her husband embark on rejuvenating journeys to Florida, where they cherish moments together.

Maria's philanthropic endeavors have sparked inspiration within the Hamptons community. By leveraging her presence and influence, Maria has motivated others to get involved and contribute to causes that resonate with them. Maria's charismatic personality and genuine passion for making a difference have made her a natural leader and advocate for philanthropy. Her friends, who have witnessed firsthand the positive change she has brought about, have become her most ardent supporters. Inspired by Maria's efforts, they too have embraced the spirit of giving back and actively participate in various charitable activities. Maria's journey in philanthropy is a testament to the transformative power of one person's dedication and compassion.

POLO STAR AND PHILANTHROPIST

BY EMILY KATE FASSBERG
PHOTOGRAPHY BY MARSIN MOGIELSKI

Born in the picturesque region of La Pampa, Argentina, Martin Pepa developed a love for horses and passion for polo at an early age. Little did he know that his equestrian pursuits would eventually lead him on an incredible journey, settling down in the prestigious Hamptons. We delved into Pepa's polo career, his philanthropic endeavors, the influence of the Hamptons on his lifestyle, and his unique experiences as a polo player.

Pepa's polo journey began when he joined his school's team, showcasing remarkable skill and dedication. His talents did not go unnoticed, and he soon found himself working alongside esteemed professionals. Starting in 2002, he worked for Peter Brand and continued to expand his horizons with Lin Hersch in 2004. Currently, Pepa plays for the Equuleus Polo team, a testament to his exceptional abilities.

The Equuleus Polo team embodies a unique sense of unity and camaraderie, resembling a tightly knit family. At the heart of this close group is Pepa, a talented and dedicated polo player. Their shared passion for polo and unwavering commitment to excellence create the foundation for their remarkable journey. As they embark on their polo adventures, the Equuleus team traverses the globe, participating in prestigious tournaments and challenging matches. The bond they share extends beyond the confines of the playing field, as they form enduring connections and friendships with fellow polo enthusiasts from diverse cultures and backgrounds. Within the team, Pepa's boss assumes the mentor-like role, providing guidance, wisdom, and support. The mentor-student dynamic goes beyond the technical aspects of polo. Pepa's boss serves as a source of inspiration, instilling core values such as sportsmanship, teamwork, and resilience. In essence, the Equuleus Polo team exemplifies the power of sport to forge lasting bonds, transcend barriers, and create a sense of belonging. Through the mentorship, camaraderie, and shared experiences, they not only excel in their pursuit of polo excellence but also inspire others to embrace teamwork and resilience.

Pepa's passion for polo has taken him on a global adventure. From participating in Aspen snow polo to competing in beach polo events in Miami, he embraces opportunities to test his mettle in diverse environments. His recent presence at the Cannes Festival and Formula 1 demonstrates his diverse interests and cosmopolitan nature. Through these experiences, Pepa has developed a broader perspective on life, emphasizing the significance of giving back and helping others.

In addition to his remarkable polo career, Pepa actively engages with the Hamptons community to promote the sport. He helps manage the polo property, encouraging individuals to play and imparting his knowledge to aspiring young players. Pepa's dedication extends beyond the polo field, as he participates in charity events in Florida and Argentina. Notably, he contributes to the Cancer for Kids charity event in Florida and supports underprivileged individuals and older generations in Argentina. Pepa's goal in life is to make a positive impact and lend a helping hand to those in need. For Pepa, it is not just about playing polo or personal accolades; it is about leveraging his platform and resources to bring about meaningful change. His involvement in charity events in Florida and Argentina not only demonstrates his commitment but also inspires others to contribute to their communities. Pepa serves as a role model, showcasing the power of compassion, empathy, and philanthropy. Through his actions, he encourages individuals from all walks of life to recognize their own capacity to make a difference and to actively engage in charitable endeavors. Pepa's philanthropic efforts not only create tangible benefits for the communities he serves but also leave a lasting impact on the lives of individuals who have been touched by his kindness and generosity.

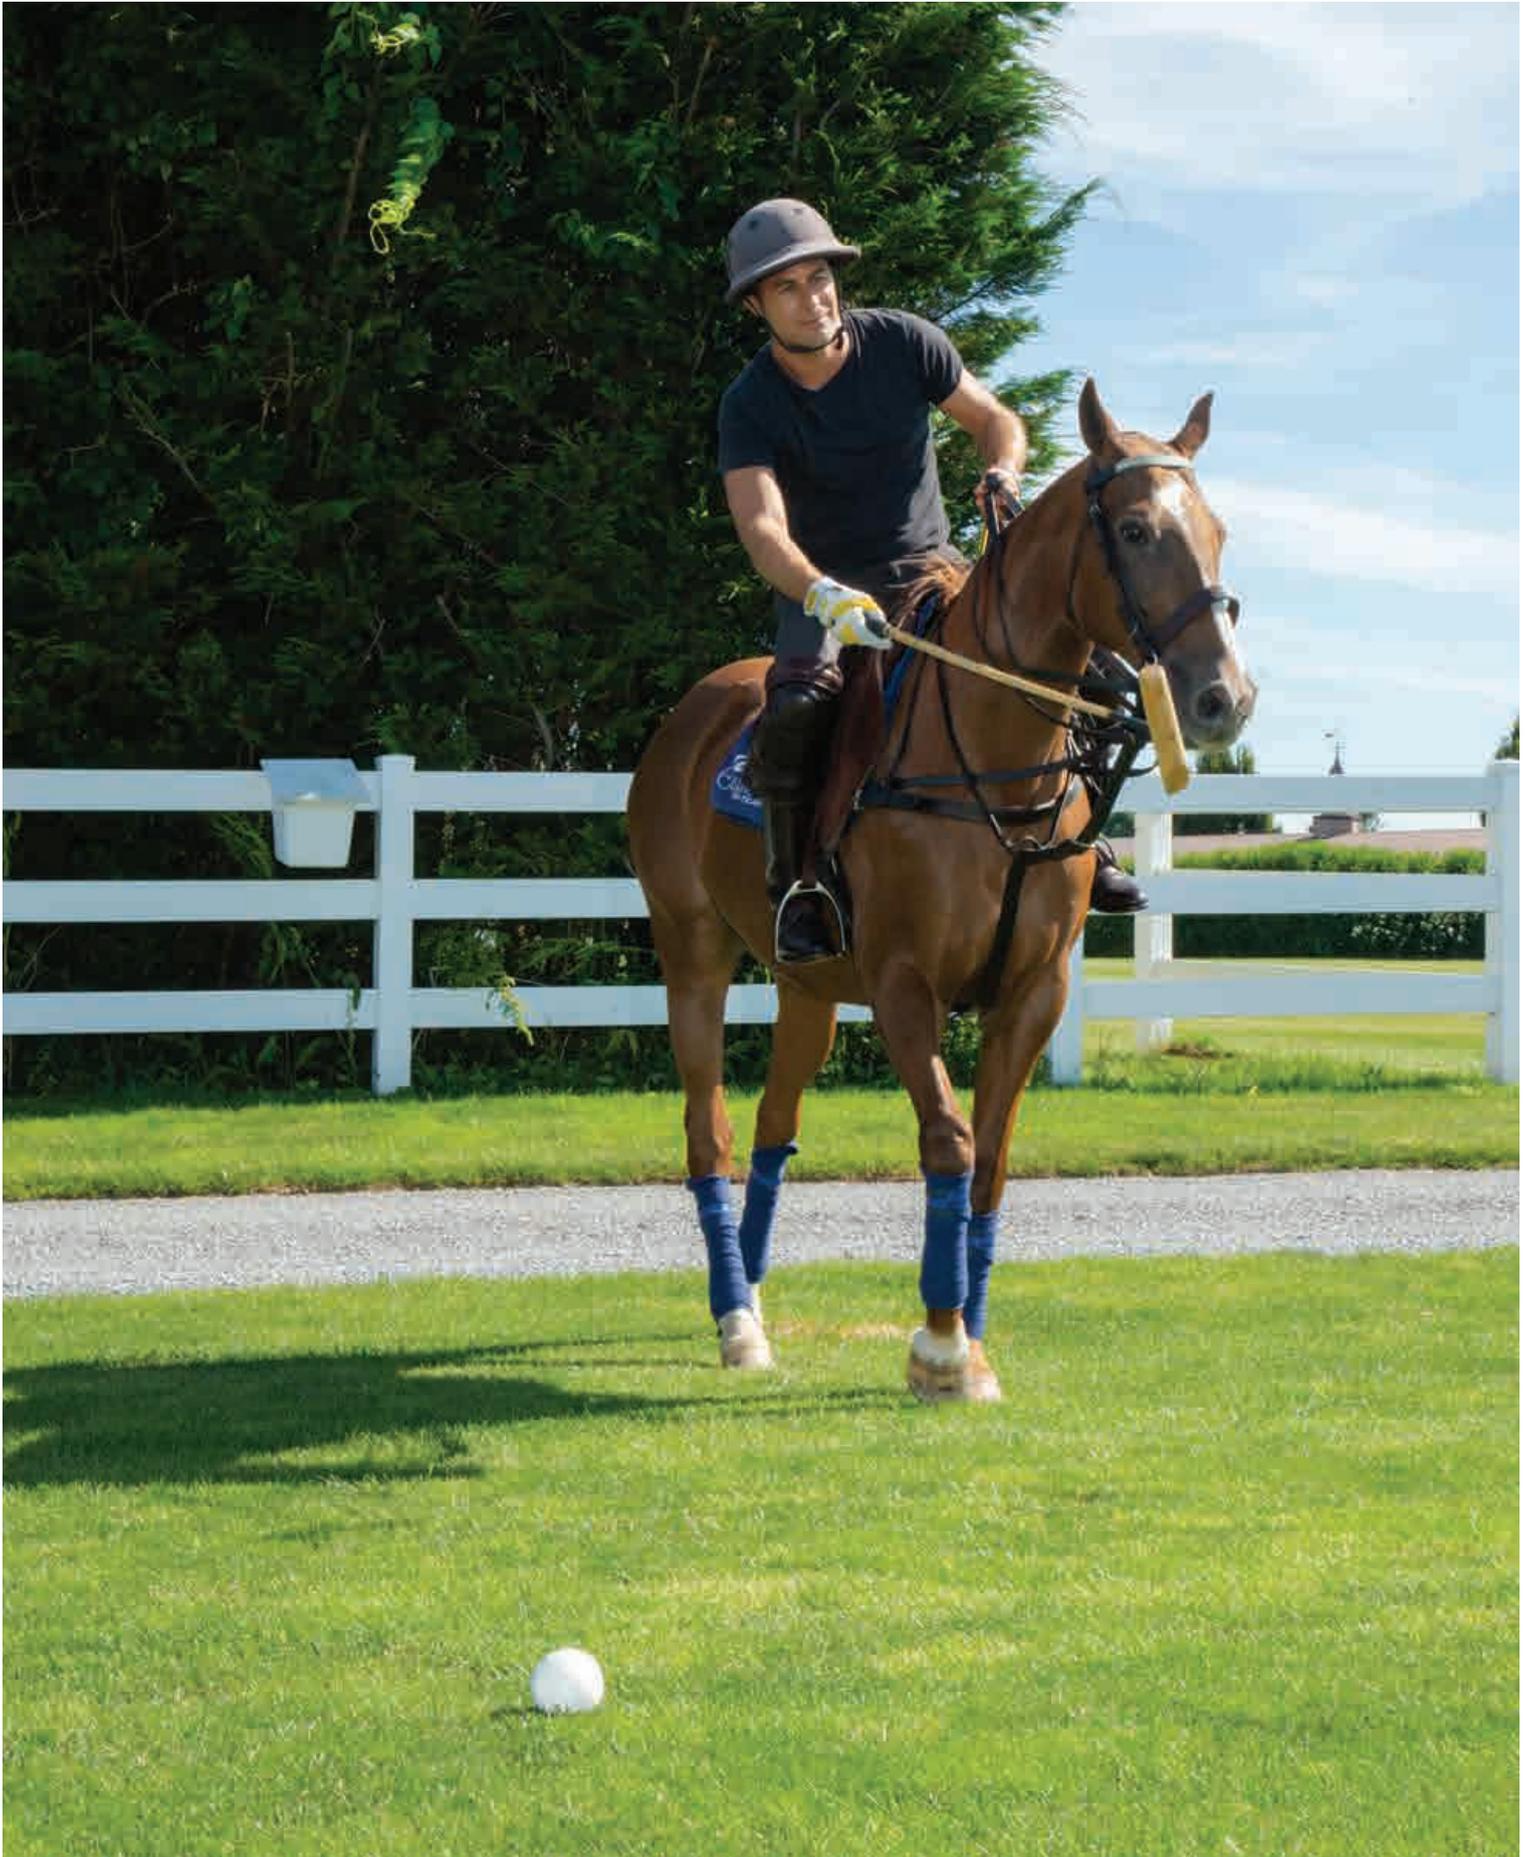

Living in the Hamptons has undeniably influenced Pepa's polo career and lifestyle. With a classic approach, he frequents the same restaurants, creating a sense of familiarity and comfort. When he's not on the polo field, Pepa enjoys the beautiful beaches, relishing the coastal ambiance. The marina of Sag Harbor, Surf Lodge, and Tutto Il Giorno have become staples in his leisurely pursuits. Engaging in various sports like tennis, golf, and soccer adds a well-roundedness to his lifestyle.

Throughout his polo career, Pepa has had numerous memorable moments. One standout occasion is the Mercedes cup at the Bridgehampton polo event. This prestigious tournament brings together exceptional players and showcases the intensity and thrill of the sport. These experiences fuel Pepa's passion and reinforce his commitment to polo.

Pepa has mastered the art of balancing his demanding polo career with a vibrant Hamptons lifestyle. His day-to-day routine includes waking up early, meeting with fellow players and grooms at the barn while enjoying mate tea, and meticulously planning his day around games. He prioritizes physical fitness by dedicating time to the gym, stretching, riding, and practicing. In the afternoon, Pepa finds solace on the beach, cherishing the beauty of the sunset.

In Martin Pepa, we find a remarkable individual who embodies the values of dedication and philanthropy. His journey serves as an inspiration to all, reminding us of the transformative power of pursuing our passions, supporting others, and embracing the joy and camaraderie that come with being part of a close-knit community united by a common goal.

RULES, HISTORY, AND ETIQUETTE

POLO

BY DEVORAH ROSE

Polo, often referred to as the “sport of kings,” is a unique blend of elegance, excitement, and tradition. With its long history, thrilling gameplay, and stylish atmosphere, polo has become a symbol of sophistication and luxury. Originating in ancient Persia, it has a rich history that spans centuries and has since gained popularity worldwide. To fully appreciate and participate in a polo match, understanding the rules, history, and etiquette is essential.

What’s really going on? You’re going to want to rip this page out of the magazine and carry it with you as a quick cheat sheet.

TEAM COMPOSITION

A polo match consists of two teams on horseback, each comprising four players. The players are assigned specific positions: No. 1 (the most forward position), No. 2 (midfield), No. 3 (pivot), and No. 4 (defender). The teams aim to score goals by striking a small, hard ball into the opposing team’s goal using long-handled mallets.

GAME DURATION

A polo match typically consists of four to eight periods called “chukkers” or “chukkas,” each lasting seven minutes. After each goal is scored or at the end of a chukker, the teams change ends to account for any field variations.

EQUIPMENT

Players ride on specially bred and trained polo ponies. They wear helmets for safety and carry mallets made of bamboo or composite materials. The polo ball is hard plastic, allowing it to roll smoothly across the grass.

GAMEPLAY

Players must demonstrate skillful horsemanship, precision ball control, and tactical teamwork. They maneuver their horses to gain control of the ball and strategically position themselves to score goals. Physical contact between players is allowed but must be kept within certain limits to ensure fair play.

ETIQUETTE

Good manners are an integral part of the polo culture, emphasizing sportsmanship, respect, and elegance. Players are expected to dress smartly, wearing traditional polo attire that consists of white pants, a collared shirt, and knee-high boots. The etiquette extends beyond appearance and encompasses conduct on and off the field. A handshake between teams before and after a match signifies respect and camaraderie. Polite applause and recognition for impressive plays, regardless of the team, is encouraged. Good sportsmanship is paramount, and disputes are typically resolved through friendly conversation and mutual understanding.

Spectators, too, are expected to adhere to certain rules of etiquette when attending a polo match. The field is reserved for players and their mounts, and crossing it is both dangerous and disrespectful. It is customary to applaud after a goal is scored but to refrain from excessive cheering. At halftime break, known as divot stomping, spectators are invited to step onto the field and replace the divots (chunks of turf) that have been torn up during play. This intermission allows for mingling with fellow polo enthusiasts, picnicking, and savoring the atmosphere of the event.

Polo matches are renowned for their fashion-forward spectators. The dress code often leans towards elegant and sophisticated attire, with women favoring summer dresses, hats, and statement accessories, while men opt for tailored suits or smart casual outfits. The glamorous ambience of polo events sets the stage for a vibrant social scene and lots of fun mingling.

Polo is more than just a game. Its rich history, intricate rules, and specific etiquette make it a sport that embodies tradition, elegance, and camaraderie. Understanding the rules allows spectators to fully appreciate the skill and strategy of the players. Recognizing the game's history provides a deeper connection to its roots and evolution. Adhering to proper behavior, both on and off the field, ensures that the spirit of sportsmanship and respect is upheld. Immerse yourself in the world of polo and experience the thrill of this noble game firsthand.

JEAN SHAFIROFF, HONORARY BOARD MEMBER,
INTERVIEWS J. JORDAN LIPPNER,
CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF THE SOUTHAMPTON ANIMAL SHELTER FOUNDATION

BY JEAN SHAFIROFF

Jordan, what led to your involvement with the Southampton Animal Shelter?

I rescued my first dog 14 years ago and doing so literally changed my life. That may sound like a grandiose statement but to anyone reading this who has rescued an animal, you know exactly what I mean. Rescuing Jack, an 8-year-old Labrador-Rhodesian ridgeback mix, opened up my heart in ways I had never imagined possible. It was no coincidence that two weeks later I had my first date with my future wife, Dr. Jennifer Jablow, who was herself very involved in the animal rescue community.

A few years later, Jen and I began visiting the shelter, volunteering to walk some of the dogs. It was on one such visit that we met a border collie mix that had been rescued by the shelter from Puerto Rico, and we happily adopted him shortly thereafter. The Hamptons can be a small community, and we had the pleasure of getting to know Brigid Fitzgerald and Renee Schlather, who were already on the board. They asked me to join, and I can honestly say doing so was one of the easiest and best decisions I have ever made.

You are relatively new to the board. How did you so quickly become chairman?

One of the advantages of being new was that I brought fresh eyes and energy to the organization. When our prior board president was stepping down, I felt a pull to run for chairman to help re-energize the shelter and my fellow board members agreed, unanimously electing me last summer.

What distinguishes the Southampton Animal Shelter from other rescue organizations?

First, let me tell you a bit about the Southampton Animal Shelter. We really are an amazing organization. Founded 14 years ago by a handful of animal advocates, including Susan Allen, one of our current board members, we are the leading no-kill open admission animal shelter on Long Island. Being open admission is key to our mission and one of the things that separates us from many of the other animal shelters out there. While many shelters will pick and choose which animals they rescue, we open our doors to the many cats, dogs, and bunnies that unfortunately get abandoned by their human families for various reasons, be it financial, time commitment, or change of heart. While most shelters will turn away a pregnant dog with heartworm, we will happily take her in, cure her, and deliver her babies. This is in addition to taking in strays and rescuing animals from kill shelters around the state and elsewhere. But we do not simply take in these animals. We care for them, provide any necessary training and medical care, and ultimately place them in loving homes.

J. Jordan Lippner

Jean Shafiroff, Rebecca Seawright and Elizabeth Shafiroff

Over the years we have saved thousands of perfectly fun-loving animals from homelessness and death, and, in turn, placed them in their forever homes. And I would be quite remiss if I did not emphasize that it is not just the animals that benefit, but as I can personally attest to, people's lives are greatly enriched and enhanced by adopting an animal. It is a beautifully symbiotic relationship.

What do you say to people who want to go to a breeder or a pet store?

Three things. First, mixed-breed dogs are typically far healthier than purebred dogs. Purebred dogs are the result of too much inbreeding and often have health complications and shorter lifespans. Second, you can find any breed you want at a shelter, be it at the Southampton Animal Shelter or elsewhere, including purebreds. For example, my wife and I have three rescues, two of which are purebred shih tzus. Third, pet stores notoriously support puppy mills, which lock dogs in cages 24/7 with little to no medical care, force them to breed, and then ship out their puppies for sale. When you buy at a pet store you are literally funding the torture of animals. So, in the end, what do I say? I say come visit us at the shelter. I would be happy to give you a personal tour and help you find your next family member.

Now that you are chairman, what is new at the shelter?

With my fellow board members, including three new members who have joined in the last year, we are more focused than ever on growing our outreach in the local community and expanding our donor and volunteer base. To this end, with the help of my new colleagues Sarah Freedman, William Matsuka, and Bonnie Klapper, we just held our first annual Charity Golf Tournament at the spectacular Sebonack Golf Club. When we announced the event, we sold out within days, and everyone had a fantastic time. This was on the heels of our sold-out event this past Valentine's Day, Puppy Love — dinner and dogs at Main Prospect restaurant. And, just ten days ago, we held our first annual Garden Tour, where attendees got to walk the beautiful gardens of six different private estates in Southampton, followed by cocktails with our canines. (The dogs just drank water.) Our event chair, Sandra McConnell, and her co-chairs, Lynn Hamer, Rebecca Williams, and Tish Rehill, were phenomenal, and it was a great success that we look forward to repeating for years to come.

And your famous summer gala, Unconditional Love, is yet to come.

That's right Jean, as you know as our gala event chair — thank you! On July 22nd, we will be dancing the night away at the Muses in Southampton, celebrating the shelter, our donors and supporters, and honoring two tremendous and well-deserving honorees. We are honoring Jon Ledecy, co-owner of the New York Islanders, entrepreneur, animal supporter, and proud uncle to Olympic and world champion swimmer Katie Ledecy. Jon is truly one of a kind, one of the friendliest and warmest people you will ever meet. Second, we are honoring Matt Meeker, CEO of BARK, dog lover, entrepreneur, and navy veteran. BARK believes that "Life is better with dogs," and we at the Southampton Animal Shelter could not agree more. BARK enthusiastically advocates for fostering, dog-friendly spaces, community services to help people keep their

Viennese Opera Ball

Aristocratic young women used to make their debuts into society in front of the reigning English monarch until Queen Elizabeth II ended the custom in 1958. Nowadays, these ladies make their debut in society in Paris and New York. In 1982, Cornelia Guest, whose parents were C.Z. and Winston F.C. Guest, and whose godparents were the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, was declared "The Deb of the Decade." This year, fashion influencer and socialite Sofie Mählkvist has been dubbed "The Deb of the Year" after months of parties in London, Paris, and Stockholm. Sofie, who wore a chic chignon styled by celebrity hairstylist Chaz Dean to accommodate her elegant diamond tiara, donned a white gown and long gloves as she made her curtsy at the 67th edition of the Viennese Opera Ball at the Plaza Hotel, while the flash bulbs popped. The ball's president, Silvia Frieser, presented 18 girls from around the world, with Sofie representing her native Sweden. Peter Thomas Roth and Jean Shafiroff were honored at the ball

The Mi Amor Graciousness (MAG) Gala took place on May 18 at The Plaza, in support of survivors of domestic violence and human trafficking. It was an evening of compassion meets-fashion. The evening raised funds for three charities: Safe Passage Heals, Hope's Door, and Team TLC NYC, and raised awareness of the importance of the work of the Luisa Diaz Foundation.

Survivors of domestic violence who have completed the program to break the vicious cycle of domestic abuse walked in the MAG Gala's empowerment fashion show, dressed by designers Jovani, Anne Fontaine, and Chiara Boni. The "Runway of Hope" signified the transition from a place of darkness to one of hope and light.

This year's celebration also included an official proclamation from New York City declaring May 18 each year as Kindness is Cool Day.

ROUND HILL HOTEL & VILLAS

JAMAICA'S TOP RESORT

By R. COURI HAY

R. Couri Hay is the travel editor and society columnist for this magazine. Couri began his career at Andy Warhol's Interview and he wrote for Town & Country and People. Couri also appears on CNN, PBS, FOX and VH1 commenting on Hollywood. He lives in NYC and Southampton and is the CEO of his own PR firm.

Round Hill Hotel

Round Hill Entrance

You can imagine my surprise when I looked over at the next table, while having lunch on Round Hill's panoramic seaside terrace, and saw our Secretary of the Treasury, Janet Yellen, and her family. They were laughing and nibbling on fresh salads from the resort's organic gardens, as a dozen Secret Service agents tried to blend into the foliage. The resort is no stranger to VIPs — I just missed Michael Douglas and Catherine Zeta-Jones, who were here for a wedding the week before. No one does "I do" festivities better than Round Hill. I accidentally witnessed a glowing couple say their vows with the sea behind them before having a glamorous party on the beach with 100 friends.

"The spirit of Round Hill — very quiet, very elegant."

Ralph Lauren

A STORIED PAST

Originally, Round Hill was part of a sugarcane plantation owned by Lord Monson. Round Hill resort was the brainchild of John Pringle, a Jamaican-born entrepreneur whose socialite mother owned a hotel in Montego Bay. Pringle served in the British Army, worked for Elizabeth Arden in New York City, opened a haberdashery, and after marrying and having kids, returned to Jamaica. Round Hill opened in 1953 with Noël Coward as its first shareholder. Today, VIP shareholders include shoe designer Vanessa Noel and Blackstone founder Stephen Schwarzman and his wife, Christine Hearst Schwarzman.

MEET THE HOTELIER

In his office at Round Hill, the managing director, Josef Forstmayr, has a glorious letter from Queen Elizabeth II, naming him Jamaica's honorary consul general to Austria. Among the many famous guests at Round Hill, Forstmayr is especially fond of Goldie Hawn and Kurt Russell and Sir Paul McCartney. "Four of Paul McCartney's children grew up here: Stella, Mary, James, and Heather. They all used to spend every Christmas here, and he's an incredible person." Forstmayr currently serves as the director of the Jamaica Tourist Board, the Montego Bay Chamber of Commerce, and he chairs the Montego Bay Arts Council.

Josef Forstmayr, Ricky Lauren, Ralph Lauren

FROM ASTAIRE TO THE SOUND OF MUSIC

Adele Astaire, Fred's sister and dance partner, owned Round Hill's Villa 25, which was later used by JFK. Kennedy actually edited and rehearsed his presidential inauguration speech there, and parts of it are still displayed in the cottage. Oscar Hammerstein owned Villa 12 and met the real-life Maria Von Trapp there. He wrote The Sound of Music, as well as several other musicals, in the three-bedroom property.

Angela Bassett, Whoopi Goldberg, and Taye Diggs lounged in the private pool while taking in the spectacular hillside views of the Caribbean from Villa 11, the set of the 1998 movie How Stella Got Her Groove Back. A few years later, Diggs and Idina Menzel had their wedding at Round Hill.

PRINCE HARRY & MEGHAN MARKLE

In 2017, Prince Harry brought along his then girlfriend Meghan Markle for the wedding of his best friend and former wingman Tom "Skipper" Inskip. The visit was important because attending the Round Hill nuptials took their relationship to the next level, since Markle met the prince's closest friends. Harry served as an usher. Several months later Harry and Meghan announced their engagement. There's definitely something about the seaside air at Round Hill.

The couple stayed at Villa 16, the same one where author Ian Fleming, creator of James Bond, stayed. The glamorous, ultra-private villa has six bedrooms, two pools, and stunning views of the Caribbean, with decor by Ralph Lauren.

Harry and Meghan loved hanging on the beach, and their villa was equipped with a state-of-the-art kitchen where the future Duchess of Sussex could whip up dinner for her prince. That's if she wanted to cook — Round Hill's villas come fully staffed with a designated chef, a housekeeper, and a gardener. You really don't have to lift a finger at this resort, except to raise a flute of Champagne to your lips.

HIGH ROCK

Ralph Lauren designed the 36 luxurious ocean-view guest rooms at The Pineapple House, the main hotel at Jamaica's Round Hill Hotel and Villas, but this was no mere interior design gig. It was a labor of love. "The greenness of Jamaica is gorgeous,” said the designer. “The air is very mild. It feels like a paradise. There’s a naturalness and ease of living. It smells like a beautiful place.” Lauren and his wife, Ricky, own two of the 27 villas on the lush 110-acre property. One, called High Rock, sits on the resort’s highest point: “We made the house what it should be,” Lauren said of the place he’s owned for more than thirty years. “It’s in the spirit of Round Hill — very quiet, very elegant.”

WHITE ORCHID

The Laurens’ other property, White Orchid, which they purchased in 1996, is down the hill, directly on the beach, and was once owned by William and Babe Paley. Lauren decorated this one with a classic feel. “The White Orchid is clean, barefoot, and luxurious,” he said. “It’s like being on a boat.”

Ralph Lauren has put his stamp of approval on Jamaica as a vacation destination, according to Josef Forstmayr, Round Hill’s longtime and popular managing director who worked with the designer on its recent update. “We go there as often as we can escape,” said Ricky Lauren, who penned a book about Jamaica titled My Island.

Vogue called one of Lauren’s runway shows, complete with wicker chairs, tropical plants, and woven basket patterns, a “love letter to his Round Hill, Jamaica, home.” Lauren’s show notes read: “Everyone wishes for a magical place where they can step out of time into the beauty of nature. For spring,

Ralph Lauren

I wanted to share the mood, the light, the blue-and-white freshness of my retreat in Jamaica.” An unofficial ambassador for the island nation, Lauren was named an Honorary Commander of Jamaica’s Order of Distinction, and his face appeared on a postage stamp, an honor shared by Winston Churchill and Princess Diana.

JUSTIN BIEBER, JACQUELINE KENNEDY, AND NOËL COWARD

Round Hill is Jamaica’s most personal, elegant, and private resort, and Lauren was not the first bold-faced name to discover its charms. John and Jacqueline Kennedy honeymooned at a seaside villa at the resort. James Bond author Ian Fleming, Errol Flynn, and Noël Coward, all visited before later buying their own homes here. During the 1950s and ’60s, Princess Grace Kelly, Claudette Colbert, Clark Gable, Yul Brynner, and Alfred Hitchcock could be found sunning and swimming at Round Hill. Visitors have also included Pierce Brosnan. Justin Bieber visited before marrying Hailey Baldwin.

ULTIMATE HOSPITALITY

Round Hill has its own concierge at Montego Bay's airport, ready to assist you and arrange private transportation to the resort, about 20 minutes away. Before our trip, they sent us a full, written itinerary for our stay. How perfect!

Our villa included a daily New York Times, afternoon tea, full use of the fitness center with instructor, non-motorized water sports, shuttle to Tryall Golf Club, and, if you need it, supervised activities for kids — all at no extra charge.

DINNER ON THE BEACH — WITH CANDLES AND TABLECLOTHS

We had an unexpected and fun surprise on our first evening! It turns out Mondays are designated for beach barbecue parties, and longtime general manager Josef Forstmayr continues the tradition in signature Round Hill luxury style. This means tables with red tablecloths, candles, and fine silverware set on the beachfront, while buffet tables with various cuisines are placed under trees. We had fresh corn, chicken, brisket, and sautéed shrimp. The executive chef Martin Maginley oversees everything, and much of the produce is grown in the resort's organic gardens.

VILLA 12

On this trip, we ended up in Villa 12, now owned by shoe designer Vanessa Noel. The villa is perched high on the hill with magnificent views of both Round Hill Bay and Montego Bay. The charming, secluded villa boasts three ensuite bedrooms, living and dining rooms, and expansive terraces with breathtaking views. We had our own large pool set in a lush green garden. The cottage comes with its own staff — a chef, housekeeper, and gardener. Needless to say, everything was always immaculate, and what fun it was to order banana pancakes for breakfast or any time we chose.

IN-VILLA DINING

While there are several dining options, the cook in your villa will pamper you. Start your day — whether you're up with the roosters or sleeping in until midafternoon — with those aforementioned insanely delicious banana pancakes accompanied by freshly brewed Jamaican Blue Mountain coffee, on your private patio overlooking the sea. Try the cinnamon french toast, coconut pancakes, fresh tropical fruit plate, or more traditional breakfast dishes like omelets and cereal.

Of course, they serve up authentic Jamaican breakfasts: dishes like ackee, a gorgeous tropical fruit; saltfish; and organic callaloo, a leafy green with boiled yams.

You literally do not need to leave your villa. You can eat all your meals there in total privacy. Lunch offerings include a variety of soups with local flavors, including pumpkin chicken and vegetable pepper pot, organic salads, wraps, fresh fish, and fried chicken.

Among the in-villa dinner dishes, you'll find fresh steamed Caribbean fish, shrimp or vegetable curry, pastas with local vegetables, and chicken prepared in various ways, including barbecue and jerk. I'm getting hungry just thinking about it. If you want to go to the dining room, consider Jamaican night, an expansive buffet with all the local specialties, including oxtail, fish escovitch, and red pea soup.

ROUND HILL SPA

The spa offers an extensive menu of treatments, full salon, and pool. If you like yoga, ask for Donovan, and there are delightful masseuses who do reflexology, massage, and perfect mani-pedis.

ALLIGATOR PARK

After breakfast, it's fun to go exploring; be sure to check out the alligator farm and zoo at Jamaica Swamp Safari Village, close to Round Hill. Here you will see a variety of indigenous animals, including snakes, parrots and other birds, monkeys, raccoons, and even a boar. If you ask and tip a little bit, the guide will get some big hunks of beef to feed Sammy B. the one-thousand-pound alligator that lives in his own pond. The James Bond movie Live and Let Die was filmed here, notably the scene where Roger Moore escapes over the backs of several alligators. It's fun to Google the video on your phone while you are there.

ROSE HALL, HAUNTED HOUSE

If you like history, definitely go to Rose Hall Great House, a Georgian-style 18th-century plantation, probably the most famous in Jamaica. Completely restored in the 1960s and furnished with antiques, the historic house and extensive grounds are open for tours and located near Round Hill.

According to legend, Rose Hall is haunted by Annie Palmer, known as the "White Witch," a reported murderess. Married to John Palmer, who owned the plantation until Annie murdered him, she is also said to have offed her two subsequent spouses, as well as some of the plantation's enslaved workers, one of whom, legend says, later murdered Annie.

Johnny Cash recorded a song called "The Ballad of Annie Palmer," with the lyrics: "Where's your husband, Annie, where's number two and three. Are they sleeping 'neath the palms beside the Caribbean Sea? At night I hear you ridin', and I hear your lover's call. And still can feel your presence round the great house at Rose Hall."

It is claimed that she still walks the property, and so strong is her curse that no one has dared sleep there since the 1980s, when a couple got scared off by the ghost. Annie is buried there, and by the ocean under three palm trees lay her three murdered husbands. Rose Hall even offers haunted night tours, not recommended for children under ten. rosehall.com

RESTAURANTS — FARM-TO-TABLE

THE GRILL

By now you've probably worked up an appetite. The Grill is Round Hill's rooftop dining spot, where you can enjoy the balmy ocean breezes while taking in the panoramic views. The food here is modern Caribbean, much of it locally produced, with snapper, grouper, and local lobster straight from the sea. Ingredients are organic and sustainably grown.

SEASIDE TERRACE, BAREFOOT ELEGANCE

The stone terrace overlooking the sea serves lunch as well as other themed meals, including a Caribbean curry night on Wednesdays and authentic Jamaican food on Fridays, with a popular live show appropriate for all ages. Highlights on the Jamaican menu include firecracker coleslaw, gazpacho shooters, jerk chicken, braised oxtail, and crispy fried conch, plus terrific vegetarian options. Desserts are homemade, and there's a flambé station with Jamaican rum. Tip: The à la carte menu is always available as well, so you can join in the seaside fun, and you won't go hungry if the day's cuisine is not to your taste.

The draw here is an informal and fun lunch and dinner, but with elegant touches like candlelight and tablecloths. Barefoot elegance best describes the ambience. The menu here highlights the clean Caribbean cuisine of the James Beard Award-winning chef Martin Maginley. He has updated classic dishes from the resort's beginning, including lemongrass lobster bisque, grilled tuna filet, beef Wellington, and his signature Scotch bonnet ice cream.

AFTERNOON TEA

Round Hill's ultimate experience is teatime, served daily at 4 p.m. in the lounge, perfect for a break from the sun or to meet friends old and new. The tea fare is traditional, with perfect cucumber sandwiches, fruit, and pastries. Try the chocolate chip cookie and the tiny brownies, a decadent delight. Check out the black-and-white photographs of famous guests — such as the McCartney family and Ralph Lauren and others from the past — dotting the walls of the Round Hill's cocktail bar, the perfect place for pre- or post-dinner cocktails, with sunset views and a musician tickling the ivories. Round Hill is heaven. roundhill.com

BRYAN FEDNER AND STAYMARQUIS

REVOLUTIONIZING THE HOME RENTAL INDUSTRY

BY EMILY KATE FASSBERG

Alex Goldstein, Bryan Fedner

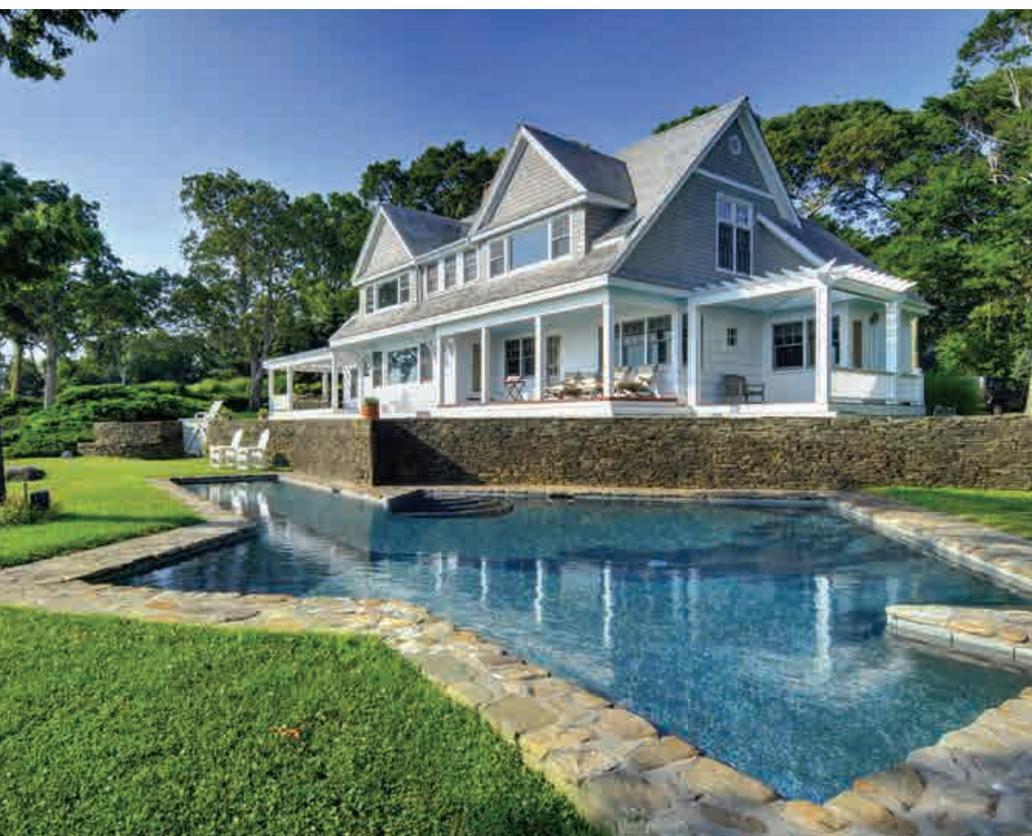

Bryan Fedner and Alex Goldstein are remarkable entrepreneurs known for their exceptional vision and relentless drive, which have propelled them to establish and successfully grow StayMarquis. Through their strategic thinking and innovative approach, Bryan and Alex have revolutionized the home rental industry, leaving an indelible mark as two inspiring entrepreneurs who consistently push boundaries and achieve remarkable success. StayMarquis was born out of a disappointing vacation rental experience in 2008 when the founders, Bryan and Alex, rented a Hamptons home that fell short of its advertised allure. Determined to prevent others from facing similar letdowns, they embarked on a mission to revolutionize the industry. The early stages of the company were not without challenges. StayMarquis overcame obstacles and established itself as a trusted rental platform. They played a pivotal role in legitimizing the vacation rental industry in the Hamptons, offering more than just a booking platform by ensuring guests' vacations went as planned with comprehensive rental management and property services.

What inspired you to co-found StayMarquis, and what were the key challenges you faced during the early stages of the company?

The concept for StayMarquis all started in 2008 when Alex and I rented a Hamptons home sight unseen through Craigslist that showed a picturesque property with seven bedrooms, pool and a tennis court. Upon our arrival, we were disappointed to find that the property only had three bedrooms, the pool was closed, and a tennis court didn't actually exist. After living through that experience which ruined a vacation for a dozen people, we vowed to never let that happen again to anyone.

At first, there were many homeowners and local real estate agents who questioned and discredited our service. Educating everyone on the new way people were renting properties was the greatest challenge that we had to overcome. And overtime we did, and those original naysayers now refer business to our rental platform. It's really come full circle.

How has StayMarquis contributed to the growth and development of the vacation rental industry in the Hamptons?

We legitimized the vacation rental industry in the Hamptons during a time when Airbnb and VRBO completely upended the industry in the Hamptons by changing the way guests searched for and booked properties, but they are marketplaces that simply connected guests and homeowners. Our service does so much more. We are the ones that actually make sure guests' vacations go as planned, bringing the "hospitality to the home," while providing a full suite of rental management and property management services to owners so they can be as involved or uninvolved as they like. Our boots-on-the-ground team fully vets and prepares each property, and generally ensures seamless rental execution for the benefit of both guest and owner.

Can you share any memorable or interesting stories from your career in the vacation rental management industry in the Hamptons?

One day I'll write a book with all the crazy stories and requests that we've received over the years, but one story that I will always remember is one that speaks to the dedication of our team. It was a windy day in May and one of our property managers was at a property preparing it for a guest that was to check-in within the hour. While he was walking around the property, he saw the wind had blown a large beach umbrella into the pool. After the attempt to fetch it with a skimmer was unsuccessful and being that he did not have a bathing suit, he decided to jump into the pool in his boxers to get it. It was a wet rest of the day for him, but the guest was happy. From that day forward, all of our property managers carry bathing suits in their car.

How do you ensure that StayMarquis stays ahead of the competition and continues to provide exceptional services in the ever-evolving vacation rental market?

Continual reinvestment into our technology and personnel. I'll be the first to admit that we are not perfect, but our technology is the most sophisticated in the industry, bar none. Our people are the most dedicated, hardworking, honest and thoughtful people in the market, bar none. We live to service our clients — both owners and guests. It takes constant reinvention and gathering open and honest feedback from our clients that allow us to drive forward and in the right direction.

What are your plans and goals for StayMarquis in terms of expansion or diversification of services?

We've carved out a nice niche for ourselves helping people buy, renovate, rent and manage vacation homes. Given the platform we built, proprietary technology, operational expertise, brand value, and our proven unique ability to monetize a niche real estate asset class, we have a tremendous opportunity to further expand our core rental and management business, grow our brokerage business where we represent buyers, and other ancillary services and verticals, which I'll save for another day.

THE HAMPTONS POOL

AN EMOTIONAL AND SPIRITUAL OASIS

BY THOMAS DAY LEE

Sweet dreams are made of this: Stuart Andrews recommends pools as balms for the soul, such as the soothing sounds of serenity provided by the waterfall in the infinity-edge pool above or a serene, secluded garden pool seen at right.

The quintessential Hamptons summer lifestyle for many is outdoor living with a focus on poolside living. The pool and the area around it are used as “outdoor rooms,” the seamless flow between interior and exterior. If you’re considering designing and building a pool or renovating an older existing pool, you’ve got a daunting project ahead. With that in mind, Social Life sought out an expert to bring us up to speed on what’s involved in creating a special pool.

We asked Stuart Andrews, the owner of Shinnecock Pools in Southampton, for his take on what makes a great pool and what he sees as his clients’ chief concerns. Andrews — who has been building and caring for luxury pools in the Hamptons for more than 20 years — was forthright and even philosophical. “For many of my clients, building an amazing pool is often how they want to proclaim their success. If you’re a corporate CEO, work on Wall Street, or are in charge of a hedge fund, you spend your days creating something that’s invisible and intangible to most people, and no one can see what you’ve made,” says Andrews. “For many successful people, creating an amazing pool is a metaphor for what they’ve achieved. And they truly are works of art. A lot of people choose to express themselves through the artistry of a pool.” Andrews, who has built and maintains some of the most dazzling pools on the East End, humbly offers that he is more of a facilitator than anything else. “My job is to listen and listen carefully to their ideas and hopes and then bring my client’s vision to reality. And that reality reveals their personal passions intensely. No two of my pools are the same; they’re like snowflakes!” he added. Even though he’s built pools costing seven figures, he prefers to focus on the intangible when discussing them, “I like to quote the author Joan Didion, who wrote; ‘A pool... is a symbol not of affluence but of order, of control over the uncontrollable. A pool is water, made available and useful and is, as such, infinitely soothing. . . Isn't that wonderfully put? Think about it. Water is the essence of life. Your pool offers so much. Quality time with your kids. Or imagine that skinny-dipping moment when you're alone with your partner, late at night. It's connecting your soul and body in a basic element, water. When immersed at the perfect temperature, with low-level lighting on a starry night, you achieve a Zen state of mind," says Andrews.

"Having a pool can be critical to your well-being," he insists. "It's not always about getting into your pool but knowing that it's there for you at any time, that you can look forward to that moment after a hard day at work, to have time to yourself to be at peace, surrounded by the liquid perfection that exists in your backyard. It's a source of calm, comfort, and belonging," he adds. That's never more true than on a Friday afternoon when harried New Yorkers are chomping at the bit to get out of the city, away from their office and out to the Hamptons. "Many times the very first thing they do when they get to their house is to get out of their clothes and into their pool," says Andrews. "And my job is to ensure that their experience, that split second of relief, is absolutely perfect. However, for people to drift into a meditative state when they get into their pool, everything must be flawless. The tile must be immaculate. The water condition must be just right. The temperature must be perfect," he cautions. "That's where I come in. That's my job and frankly, my passion," he emphasizes. Stuart Andrews is indeed the caretaker of the oasis.

RICK FRIEDMAN

THE HAMPTONS FINE ART FAIR

BY BRIAN AKER

SUMMER'S MOST ANTICIPATED ART EVENT

The Hamptons Fine Art Fair is one of the nation's most important art events, drawing art collectors from across the country and across the globe in pursuit of rare pieces, masterworks, and the discovery of remarkable upcoming talent. Produced by art connoisseur Rick Friedman, the fair is celebrating its fourth year and returning to the Southampton fairgrounds July 13-16. This year's promises to be the largest and most spectacular event yet, because the fair adds some of the most acclaimed galleries in the world. Yes, you can find something to fit nicely over the sofa, but you may also find an incredible timepiece, a crocodile fossil, or even a Picasso of your own to elicit awe and envy.

JEWELRY, WATCHES, FOSSILS, ANTIQUES, AND ART

Friedman takes immense pride in the fair's growth over time. "Last year was really successful in that we exceeded sales and attendance expectations, so this year we have increased the scale of what we are offering by 60% to ensure that we have the top art vendors to create a special experience for our guests," says Friedman. "This year we have about 130 vendors from all over the world, which will not only encompass art, but also jewelry, watches, antiques, and much more." Galleries include M.S. Rau and Bill Hodges Gallery. Notable artists on view will be Jean-Michel Basquiat, Guy Stanley Philoche, and David Hockney. Friedman also created a separate building, called the Luxury Pavilion, to showcase elite brands and high-profile collectible items. He refers to it as "the art collectors' miracle mall of luxury products and services."

The Hamptons Fine Art Fair doesn't specialize in any particular kind of art, as tastes run the gamut, but it does focus on high-quality, rarer pieces and sought-after artists. Friedman shares what attendees have to look forward to: "There's a big trend in urban art or street art, so we are bringing innovative artists and their works to reflect the demand in that category and capture that client who wants to learn about and see more of it. A lot of galleries across the country are adopting urban artists alongside their more traditional offerings, so we want to be reflective of that trend and offer those pieces. We also have what we will call 'blue chip' pieces, including prints by artists like Roy Lichtenstein, Andy Warhol, and Alex Katz, whose prints are very popular and draw clients. Last year one gallery alone did over one million dollars in sales of prints in the four days of the fair."

Beyond the two-dimensional offerings, jewelry and watches will also be well represented, with vendors from across the country bringing in collectible and high-end, highly sought-after name brands. Jewelers will offer rare, large precious gems both set and unset, in addition to showstopping pieces.

And another category broadening the art category is the emergence of the market for natural art, with one vendor bringing pieces created by nature over several thousand years. "We have a vendor coming that specializes in fossils, who is bringing a stone with an 11-foot ancient crocodile fossil. That is definitely a conversation starter,” Friedman says with a laugh.

Ceravolo, Batman and the Movie Star, oil and acrylic on canvas, 2023, 50 x 72 in.

50TH ANNIVERSARY OF PICASSO’S DEATH

The fair will also be celebrating Picasso on the 50th anniversary of his death. “We have a major display coming from London with 30 works by Picasso, with lectures and a reception built around that. There will be many Picassos for sale, giving people the opportunity to not only see them, but to own them, and that is tremendously convenient to bring so many pieces together in one place to provide options for owning a Picasso. Unlike museum shows, all these Picassos will be available for immediate acquisition. A vendor is coming from Philadelphia with a stunning collection of Norman Rockwell. He has many of the artworks used on the cover of The Saturday Evening Post, for which Mr. Rockwell produced the cover art for many years. He is bringing the best covers with him, and he is going to show the original paintings that were made into the covers. These are some of the most iconic images in Americana, and Rockwells are becoming harder to find, even as the values are soaring.”

ARTISTS’ HALL OF FAME, BLUE CHIP MASTERS, AND LGBT TEA DANCE

Events at the fair will include many lectures, a Hall of Fame paying tribute to five notable local artists, and a Friday-night LGBT Tea Dance as part of the special Bastille Day celebration. Food and alcohol will be plentiful, as guests explore the grounds and the 70,000-square-foot pavilion complex, allowing an estimated 12,000 or more art enthusiasts to view all the vendors over the course of the weekend. Art prices range from $10,000 to the sweet spot of $30,000 to $50,000, yet many pieces offered top the $100,000 price point.”

“People come to the Hamptons Fine Art Fair from everywhere as they are looking for special pieces to decorate their primary homes, vacation homes, and offices. These are often investors looking for serious prestige investment art, and we have everything from emerging, mid-career, and blue-chip Masters,” says Friedman. This is the largest cultural event in the Hamptons; nothing else even comes close.”

M. S. RAU

PRESTIGE ART & JEWELRY IN THE HAMPTONS

BY BRIAN AKER

HAMPTONS FINE ART FAIR

As a highly respected purveyor of fine antiques, art, and important jewelry, Bill Rau knows exactly what the luxury client has on their wish list. Rau is the owner of M.S. Rau, the iconic antique store on New Orleans' fabled Royal Street, where you feel like you're shopping in a museum. Rau will be staging a stunning exhibition at the Hamptons Fine Art Fair (July 13–16) in Southampton, bringing with him one of the most impressive collections of fine art and jewelry in the country. Having taken part in last year's successful fair, Rau returns with treasures that will beguile and prove irresistible to discerning collectors.

PICASSO, MONET, RENOIR, AND RARE JEWELS

"We are bringing high-value jewelry and rare fine art, including some really powerful Impressionist and Old Master paintings that will astound," says Rau. "We bought a couple of important collections, which brought us a Picasso, an incredible Monet, an extraordinary Renoir, and a Matisse that is just utterly amazing. We have these masterworks as part of nearly 60 that we will show, and then there is the jewelry. We were fortunate enough to acquire some exceptional objects from a collector, which include stones that never, ever come to the market and are the best of their type. Our jewelry will be captivating and enticing to that client looking for something unique and showstopping."

Knowing that there is an expanding market for rare gems, Rau is wise to bring those with marquee appeal. "We have two really important gemstones, a ten-carat blue diamond and a ten-carat pink diamond. We were also able to get pieces that had not been on the market in 20 or 30 years. Jewelry prices have done so well over the years, especially for colored gems. It is a very smart investment at this time." Among the most notable stones Rau has is a 37-carat cushion-cut Brazilian Paraiba, a stone that is currently in high demand and which Rau describes as "the best Paraiba in the world" for its beauty, clarity, and depth of color.

AN EXTRAORDINARY MATISSE

The Hamptons Fine Art Fair is in its fourth year, and it has already attained a reputation for amassing the most impressive art on the market. This year promises to be even more stellar for the level of world-renowned masterworks that will be present, including a group from Rau's New Orleans gallery. One painting has never been for sale and will surely be on the shortlist for every serious collector who attends. "The Matisse is a rarity that we bought directly from the Matisse family," says Rau. "It has never been on the market, and is in the top 3% of all Matisses, size-wise. Not all paintings by Matisse were signed, but this is signed, and it was painted during an important period during World War I, after he escapes Paris in 1917 and goes to Nice, to be farther away from the fighting. In Nice, Matisse stayed with Renoir, who at first did not like him and thought Matisse was just a wannabe artist. Then, when Renoir saw what Matisse was doing with light and color, Renoir was amazed and had nothing but the most complimentary words for him. And that was about the time Matisse broke through.

"In 1952, MoMA in New York did a retrospective of Matisse's work. They took the very best paintings from around the world, and it just blew people away. The painting we have for sale was in that exhibition. So, you have this giant painting direct from the family, and in perfect condition, unlined — the great majority of them that are over 100 years old are lined. I'm not even sure that anything could be any better than this piece staying in the Matisse family all these years, where it was cherished and protected. To finally come to market now is extraordinary in the art world, and now, it is among the most valuable."

FAMILY-OWNED BUSINESS, FOUNDED IN 1912

Rau's gallery, M.S. Rau, has become an institution in New Orleans and a magnet for serious collectors throughout the world, having been in business since 1912. They specialize in museum-quality art and antiques, as well as fine jewelry of unsurpassable craftsmanship. What Rau is bringing to show at the Hamptons Fine Art Fair is a curated selection in alignment with the tastes of the cognoscenti, whose preferences for distinctive, prestigious pieces drive local attendance and beckon art enthusiasts from many countries.

ALEX-STAR

CONTEMPORARY URBAN ARTIST, MASTER OF VIBRANT COLOR

BY MARY ELLEN LYNCH

Alex-Star, Brooklyn Bridge, mixed media, 17 x 37 in Alex-Star has been a professional artist for more than 20 years. His special interests are New York City and contemporary life. See his website for a look at his other works, past and current, including prints for sale. Alex-Star has a yearly pop-up gallery at the Bryant Park holiday venue.

In his own words:

“My art is a dance between reality and a dream. After years of studying art, I am trying to capture the first joy I had in drawing as a child by combining reality and abstraction.

My imagination work plays with the illusion of perspective and the two-dimensional flatness of paper or canvas. I combine words with shapes to create another dimension, drawing inspiration from things I hear around me. By using the power of words, I aim to inspire others to believe in themselves and their unique perception of reality. I rely on my intuition and also incorporate elements of chance to give life to new forms.”

AND SIPPING EXPERIENCE

BY ALEXANDRA SPIRER

On May 27, four soulful events were attended by artists, art curators and collectors, business owners, executives, entrepreneurs, and the cultural elite of the Hamptons, for a fun-filled and festive holiday Saturday. ART & SOUL: Hamptons was created by Yaya Reyes to celebrate influential and emerging artists who are Black, Indigenous, and people of color (BIPOC) living in the Hamptons community and beyond. The events supported and connected artists with art curators and collectors.

EVENT 1: ART WALK

Stop one was the Southampton African American Museum (SAAM), founded by Brenda Simmons. SAAM is currently featuring the international contemporary artist Demarcus McGaughey, who has a residency through July 22. Stop two was the Southampton Arts Center (SAC), where A Moment in Time: Iconic Images By Harry Benson is showing through July. Stop three was Hidden Gem NY, a home décor and lifestyle boutique, owned by sisters Tanya Willock and Temidra Willock-Morsch.

EVENT 2: VIP BRUNCH

A sold-out brunch was at 75 MAIN on its private outdoor patio. Some of the Hamptons and NY socially connected Black and Brown women were in attendance, with a special presentation by Demarcus McGaughey, who gifted guests with his limited-edition print of Cool Cat, a painting of his great uncle John Crenshaw. McGaughey created the original mixed-media painting during his fall 2022 artist residency at Ma's House & BIPOC Art Studio, on the Shinnecock Reservation.

EVENT 3: ART EXHIBITION

Raindrop's Café, a cozy event venue owned and operated by members of the Shinnecock Indian Nation, hosted this event. Featured art included original works by Alvin Clayton-Fernandes, Errin Whitacker, Tohanash Tarrant, and Kim Wright. Guests had the opportunity to meet each artist in a space filled with a rich history of the Native American Shinnecock Tribe's contribution to the Hamptons.

EVENT 4: SIPPING EXPERIENCE

The day wrapped up at Raindrop's Café, with an organic wine bar sponsored by Ettore Wine (produced in California), flavored sparkling water sponsored by SOVANY, and delicious Native American bites catered by Poppin Patties (owned by Deana Smith). RACHEL'S RADAR

STEVEN VAN

BY RACHEL HELLER

Writer, actress, host, and art consultant Rachel Heller is also the Sponsorship and Brand Relations Manager at Talent Resources
@rachelhellerxo | @talentresources | talentresources.com

The artist Steven Van balances the fine line between reverie and the tangible. He had a fascination with the visual luxuries of Suesian art and a hunger to explore the charms of real and unreal cultures. This Georgia-based artist is known for his meticulous draftsmanship and articulation in executing hallucinatory perspective and line, which contribute to the timeless quality of his visual discourse. Sometimes occupying surreal surroundings, sometimes poised in a soundless lagoon of negative space, his abstract compositions dictate a distinctive presence, awakening the royal breeze of a new Renaissance-era.

Van's finely created works communicate a sacred, time-honored juncture. Devoted to authentic, creative intuition and infusing a native, urban taste into his work, his art is grounded in a diverse range of foundations from Renaissance painting, Surrealism, and landscape to contemporary graffiti and platinum age colors.

Steven Van was born in Fallbrook, California, in 1986. He apprenticed with the renowned artist and muralist Eddie Lopez, in Murrieta, California, for seven years while he also studied painting. Van's style evolved from Pop Art to street art, then finally to abstraction.

For the last 19 years, Van's work has been exhibited in museums, galleries, corporate spaces, and private collections around the world. Van has worked with national brands such as Coca Cola, Ford, and Chevrolet. Van has also donated artworks to several causes and charities for autism, dementia, and cancer all over the world.

What made you go into art?

My journey into art began in early childhood right outside my house. I absorbed a lot of my creative stimuli and appreciation for art from looking up at the trees, the birds, the stars, collecting rocks, and understanding silence. Since then, I can go to that peaceful place anytime I want.

How would you describe your aesthetic?

Through design and color, I hope that my art impacts everyone on the same deeper level as it does me with the feeling of their own individuality and story. My work is bold in both medium and philosophy. All of my artworks are composed using black because all things in nature are black until exposed to the light. I'm also reaching a stage in my work where little by little I'm using only a small number of forms and colors — finding simplicity in balance of shapes and composition that allows the eye to follow and flow in harmony with the image.

What music inspires your creativity?

Classical music is my primary source; otherwise, I always love hunting for good tunes in any genre.

What are your recent showings?

I'm currently showcasing a few paintings at the Luxuria Living Gallery in Palm Springs, California. I had a group show at the Anderson Smith Gallery in Atlanta, and I also have an unveiling coming up at the Europa Village Wineries in Temecula, California.

Who owns the Coca Cola rabbit?

Coca Cola does.

Why do you create art?

Creating is my exertion to self-awareness. I search through creation, producing an experience equal to the viewer.

My work has subjectively diverse interpretations as each exists as a reflection versus a resulting final product. The world I see and hold in respect impacts the greater obsolete manners of my craft. Creating is my vehicle that teaches me how to change every situation into a favorable circumstance. All of my artworks are composed using black because black is simple, straightforward, and uncomplicated.

How long is the production time for one of your artworks?

In a perfect world about a month to complete.

MITCH KOGEN

GIVING BACK THROUGH AMERICAN MUSCLE

BY AMY POLIAKOFF

Mitch Kogen is passionate about American muscle cars and helping people. Restoring and selling expensive vintage cars is just one of the ways he raises funds for his charity, Riley's Path, part of the Sharing Network Foundation. This charity provides vital financial assistance to transplant patients and their families in times of crisis.

Working with the master mechanic Ray Congdon on Shelter Island, Kogen restores coveted vintage models like a 1965 Mustang Fastback or a 1970's Jeep Renegade as one of the ways he raises funds to support the backbone of organ donations in American healthcare.

The Sharing Network Foundation supports the work of the New Jersey Sharing Network, the non-profit organization responsible for the recovery and replacement of donated organs and tissue for the thousands currently waiting in New Jersey for transplantation.

Riley's Path was founded when Kogen's daughter passed away just days after her fifth birthday in 2013. Kogen believed that beyond darkness there was light. He understood that in this world we are all connected. He asked himself, Could I save a life while one was being taken from my family? The power of healing prompted Kogen and his family to donate Riley's two kidneys. As a result, a new kind of healing and strength emerged, and the Kogen family found purpose in helping others.

"Having just lost a child, I realized how difficult life is for other families trying to survive. Every day lives are affected by organ donation. When one can't work, how are bills paid, and how are the children to survive? What are families doing to get by while struggling? This really was the catalyst for me. How can I heal? How can I heal myself by helping others? I realized what I do for a living is not who I am. My passion and purpose on the road to heal was simple: I needed to give back to the community that has helped my family during this time," Kogen said.

Riley's Path (a nonprofit 501(c)(3), the first family fund in the Sharing Network Foundation dedicated to organ procurement, has been devoted to this cause for over a decade and has touched hundreds of families in need of organ donation through crisis funding, holiday gifts, scholarships, and more. The Sharing Network Foundation supports the work of the New Jersey Sharing Network, the non-profit organization responsible for the recovery and replacement of donated organs and tissue for the thousands currently waiting in New Jersey for transplantation.

Riley's Path eases financial stress and hardships for families in need. Over 750 families have received funding to assist with medical equipment, medication, insurance coverage, rent, utilities, transportation, groceries, gift cards, and more. In 2023, four scholarships were awarded to high school students for their outstanding dedication and commitment to spreading the life-saving message of organ and tissue donation.

THE GITTY FOUNDATION FOR METASTATIC BREAST CANCER RESEARCH

BY AMY POLIAKOFF

In the United States, nearly 300,000 women — one in eight — and 3,000 men are diagnosed each year with breast cancer. If caught early at stage I, there is a higher survival rate than at stages II, III, or IV. Unfortunately, between 20 and 30 percent of women with early-stage breast cancer go on to develop metastatic disease, or stage IV. This means that the cancer has traveled to other areas of the body from its point of origin.

Gitty Leiner was diagnosed with stage I breast cancer at 47. She had a double mastectomy and reconstructive surgery only to find out eight months later the cancer had spread to her spine.

to provide services via teletherapy and pursue a doctorate in speech-language pathology at Massachusetts General Hospital Institute of Health Professions (MGHIHP), in Boston.

Lanier and her partner, Philip Pravda, decided to start a nonprofit 501(c)(3) organization dedicated to advancing research and promoting education about metastatic breast cancer. “We want to help other people and fund advanced research because there really are few foundations that specifically raise money for stage IV metastatic breast cancer. There really is no cure for stage IV breast cancer. You are just basically in remission, but it’s constant work,” said Pravda.

*Hope and Perseverance
Can Lead to a Better Tomorrow.*

With a strong leadership team that includes Jaqueline F. Bromberg, MD, PhD, and David Knorr, MD, PhD — both medical oncologists at Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center (MSKCC) — the organization has begun to raise funds. Leiner’s longtime good friend and Pravda’s brother-in-law, famed comedian Elon Gold, performed on the Upper West Side at Stand Up NY. All seats sold out in just two days to see Gold, who has been on Curb Your Enthusiasm and late-night comedy shows like The Late Late Show with James Corden. This launch event included an auction, gift bags, and some introductory remarks from Dr. Bromberg. One hundred percent of donations from this first Gitty Foundation event went to fund research at MSKCC.

Gitty Leiner may have overcome her hardest battle and found herself blessed by remission, but she has no intention of stopping the fight for a better tomorrow. Leiner and Pravda are already planning future events to raise funds through a future “comedy for a cause” event at the Laugh Factory in Los Angeles. “Hopefully we can build this foundation big enough to not just focus on one particular hospital or set of doctors but to help other areas of metastatic cancer,” said Pravda.

Dr. Bromberg and Dr. Knorr — and others at MSKCC — are working on cutting-edge research, including immunotherapy, which uses a person’s own immune system to fight cancer. Organizations like the Gitty Foundation provide hope and support for this critical research.

“I have been blessed to have Phil, an amazing daughter, and an incredible team at Sloan Kettering. Having a support system is so important. I started this foundation because I need to find a cure to not only be here for my daughter but give others the hope and opportunity to be there for their loved ones. It is time for us all to find a cure,” said Gitty Leiner.

► For more information on the foundation, go to gittyfoundation.org. Donations can be made through its website, or you can text Gitty at 53555. Please follow the foundation on Instagram @gittyfoundation along with its Facebook and Twitter accounts.

CEO JAN HAVERHALS

MILESTONE SCIENTIFIC

BY BENNET MARCUS

“Give the mother a better experience.”

DISRUPTIVE TECHNOLOGY FOR PAINLESS INJECTIONS

Medical science has made enormous strides over the decades. However, one medical procedure that had not changed is hypodermic needle injections. But one company, Milestone Scientific, saw room for improvement: making them painless through computer-controlled injection instruments.

How does that impact your everyday life? Let's take the dentist. “In general terms, nobody likes to go to the dentist,” says CEO Jan Haverhals, “because of the anxiety and pain associated with it.” Dentists use long syringes, delivering local anesthetic manually. Then they leave for ten minutes, and if you are not numb when they return, you'll get another injection. “That's exactly what you do not want as a patient. You want to get out of that chair as soon as possible,” says Haverhals.

CONTROLLED FLOW, NO COLLATERAL NUMBNESS

With Milestone Scientific's technology, the injection flow is like an IV infusion, enabling the dentist to inject a single tooth instead of the whole mouth, meaning no collateral numbness. The anesthesia kicks in within 60 seconds, saving the dentist's and patient's time. The good news is, Milestone Scientific's computerized injections have become widely used. With 19 U.S. patents and 133 foreign patents, the company is the leader in computer-controlled injections, and is expanding into larger markets, such as anesthesiology. It has proven especially useful for epidural analgesia.

EPIDURAL ANALGESIA FOR LABOR

In short, this technology is safer than the manual injections traditionally administered during labor. The technology is objective rather than subjective, reducing human errors. “It takes the guesswork out,” says Haverhals. “If you ask people about their experiences with an epidural analgesia, 90% will say it was not very pleasant. My daughter got an epidural for the birth of her first child, and they made five attempts to place the needle,” he says. “The procedure worked, but now she has scar tissue on her back, which is also an emotional thing. So, let's not brush it under the carpet. The reason to change is to give the mother a better experience.”

GLOBAL BUSINESS BACKGROUND

Haverhals joined Milestone Scientific in 2020. Born in the Netherlands, he studied pharmacy science, attended business school, and started his own company in the chemical industry. He eventually landed in the United States, where he met the founder of Milestone Scientific. Haverhals says, “He was looking for his successor. And after 11 months, he offered me the position of CEO.”

SOFO FOUNDER ANDY SABIN

SOUTH FORK NATURAL HISTORY MUSEUM & NATURE CENTER

BY BENNET MARCUS

SUMMER GALA ON JULY 29: ANDY NEEDS HELP TO SAVE THE PLANET

Andy Sabin is excited about the South Fork Natural History Museum and Nature Center's 34th annual summer gala on July 29. "We're honoring the two founders of Patagonia, Malinda and Yvon Chouinard, and my friend Dan Emmett, a very important environmentalist," said the philanthropist and environmentalist who founded the SoFo Museum in Bridgehampton.

"We're very pleased to have Basil Seggos, the New York State Commissioner of Environmental Conservation, who was also brave enough to have driven two ambulances of the 108 we've delivered to Odessa to help the Ukrainian Territorial Defense Fund," Sabin added. "He's a very brave guy, in addition to someone who cares about the environment. He visited my rattlesnake den in New York State."

SECRET TIMBER RATTLESNAKE DEN

Rattlesnake den? "Well, you laugh," Sabin said, "but it's the largest population of timber rattlesnakes in the world." Sabin bought the land to preserve the snakes' existence because at one time there was a bounty on rattlesnakes Upstate. "They would give people $10 a snake for every one they killed. There was a famous collector, Rudy Komarek, who almost single-handedly got rid of the whole population of timber rattlesnakes in the state of New York."

The rattlesnakes are thriving, he assured us. "Last week, my guy went to the den, and he saw 164. I'm going next week." Just anyone, however, cannot visit the den, because the location is secret, to allow the creatures to live and breed in peace. "Believe it or not, there are 22 rattlesnake dens within 45 minutes of Manhattan," Sabin continued. "People don't realize how close to New York City rattlesnakes live. They were on Long Island. In fact, the last one that I have a record of was killed in Bridgehampton in 1938. Long Island is not exactly rattlesnake habitat, but we did have them here at one time. Anyway, that being said, we're excited about the gala." The invitations were about to go out when we spoke for this article in May, but they'd already raised a lot of money from sponsors, advocates, and patrons.

HANDS-ON PHILANTHROPY — WIDE RANGE OF CAUSES

Environmental issues are just a part of the philanthropic activities supported by his Andrew Sabin Family Foundation. Efforts to aid Ukraine war victims include building three orphanages there, helping to facilitate the delivery of insulin, and obtaining a commitment from pharmaceutical giant Eli Lilly to continue to provide insulin in that country. Sabin invites friends to experience delivering the Ukraine ambulances. "Every month we drive four or five ambulances. Obviously, they go through a lot of ambulances, you can understand."

WELL-RECOGNIZED MEDICAL PROGRAMS

In cooperation with International Fund for Animal Welfare, SoFo provides food for pets of the Ukrainian people and care for abandoned animals in Ukraine. His foundation rescued four lion cubs orphaned during the war, bringing them to a sanctuary in Minnesota, where they'll permanently reside.

When we spoke in May, Sabin was looking forward to interviewing eight new foreign candidates for the master's program at Yale's School of Forestry, where his foundation provides full scholarships and a $20,000 post-graduate award if the student returns to his/her country of origin and works at least two years for an environmental NGO.

His Climate Change Law Clinic at Columbia University has ten lawyers, and Sabin was recently honored by Columbia Presbyterian Hospital for two projects he spearheaded — a cardiac research center and a men's wellness center. He supports medical research at Sloan Kettering and the Mayo Clinic. He also funds 20 doctors working to cure cancer at MD Anderson in Houston, where he helped to establish an immunotherapy clinic named for the Nobel Prize winner James P. Allison.

BUCKET LIST TRIP: SOLOMON ISLANDS

Sabin, who has visited 110 countries, just returned from a "bucket list" yacht trip sailing from Auckland, New Zealand, to Brisbane, Australia, with stops in the Cook Islands, Norfolk Islands, New Caledonia, Guadalcanal, the Solomon Islands, and Vanuatu.

While on the journey, run by National Geographic and Lindblad Expeditions, Sabin figured out a way to get basic supplies to needy children on two remote islands in the Solomons. "They have absolutely nothing, and I mean nothing. They don't have shoes; they live in grass huts," he said. "Nobody's done this before. I'm so happy to help these kids."

BIPARTISAN CONSERVATION GROUP

An avowed political conservative, Sabin has done the seemingly impossible, establishing Conserve America, a bipartisan group of 14 senators, evenly split between both parties, working on environmental solutions. Their newest push is RAWA, Recovering America's Wildlife Act, a bill in the Senate being introduced by Thom Tillis, Republican from North Carolina, and Martin Heinrich, Democrat from New Mexico. "It's $1.4 billion a year to states to protect habitat and keep animals off the Endangered Species List."

LIFELONG ENVIRONMENTALIST: MANY SPECIES NAMED FOR SABIN

His love for the environment is lifelong. At nine, he started collecting frogs and toads. "I never grew up. I still get excited when I see a frog." Now 77, Sabin leads tiger salamander walks in Bridgehampton several times each year. "My favorite thing in life is to take children on a nature walk at night and to see the smiles on their faces when they come in contact with nature." He has 14 species named after him and his family, more than any other person in the world.

Sabin believes that his purpose on Earth is "to save humanity and save the planet, and not care about being the richest guy in the cemetery."

SUMMER

A DISH BEST SERVED SALTY

BY ANNETTE PIERRO

Xandra K & Lee Kalt

Unless you're new to the Hamptons, you've probably heard SALTY perform at some of the East End's most iconic locations. DJ Lee Kalt and vocalist Xandra K are SALTY, a Florida-based duo performing a wide range of musical genres, arrangements, and production techniques that extend far beyond the typical standards of the dance-music scene. Their refined skill set allows them to tailor their unique show to a diverse clientele with preferences including (but not limited to) yacht rock, electronic dance music, tropical-house, disco, pop, soul, jazz, and even opera, all tied together with the theme of tropical sunset summer vibes.

After finishing out last summer's Labor Day weekend with a surprise performance at the Sunset Beach Hotel on Shelter Island, SALTY spent most of the fall in NYC, providing the newly opened DOM Lounge in Manhattan with a DJ residency on Saturday nights. SALTY recaptured corporate hearts and minds in Manhattan. Elon Musk was SALTY's first major corporate client and personally hired them for several events during the launching of Tesla. SALTY now returns to the corporate world, hitting the stage at multiple events held by some of the world's largest corporations. The duo was selected by IBM to perform for their own tropical-themed party for 1000+ programmers at IBM's Building 001 located at the company's Poughkeepsie facility.

Mastercard made it a SALTY Christmas last holiday season at the new headquarters of its cutting-edge technology division. SALTY brought the holiday spirit to 800 Mastercard employees, keeping the tunes coming until the wee hours.

When Zebra Technologies needed to entertain its global clients in NYC earlier this year, the firm called upon SALTY to provide the entertainment at the historic Gotham Hall in Manhattan. We had a few questions for SALTY and the answers are below.

SALTY made waves throughout the Florida Keys this past winter season. How did that come about?

XK: The Florida Keys has always been a magical place for us and we as a team decided to focus on that location this past winter. We performed at Gilbert's Resort in Key Largo, known for their full moon parties. Marine Connection had us down for the grand opening of their new dealership on Islamorada. We held a monthly residency throughout the season at Kiki's Sandbar on Little Torch Key, undoubtedly one of the Key's most prominent live music venues.

Isla Bella Beach Resort on Marathon Key where SALTY has performed several times was recently featured on CNN Travel. Can you tell us how you came to be a part of the music at such an exclusive destination?

XK: We were recommended to the resort by someone who heard SALTY play music at Little Palm Island Resort in the Keys several years ago. We were honored to be a part of the entertainment at Isla Bella Resort, and it was without a doubt our favorite location to play this past season. We look forward to returning this winter and urge our fans to take the journey to see us perform in the Keys next winter.

Xandra K, Lee Kalt, Malinda Carlton

SALTY did 110 shows last year. What made Isa Bella so special?

LK: It's the perfect setting for who we are and what we do. The resort itself and location are both enchanting. This luxury get-away with Caribbean-inspired architecture spans 24 acres on a private beach with southwest-facing sunset views. It's the perfect place in the Keys for relaxing music and sunset vibes. We perform right out on the beach under the palm trees. As I mix and Xandra serenades the right songs at the right moment it feels as if we are making a movie out of real life.

Miami was always a big part of your history as a DJ. Has that changed?

LK: We love Miami and played several dates this past winter at OKAMI in the design district. There has also been an uptick in demand for us at private events in Miami. We performed at plenty of waterfront residencies and made multiple performances on private yachts in Miami this past season.

Last summer you mentioned that SALTY had been spending untold hours in the studio. Will we be hearing any of that music this summer?

LK: Yes. This summer we will have those tunes on full display. We have taken our music in a new direction with several new records, including "Pineapple Upside Down Cake," a cannabis-themed pop record with innuendo laced throughout, and "Take Me Away," a disco-pop record with a Daft Punk vibe we wrote in homage to Casa Dragones Tequila. The tequila comes from San Miguel de Allende, Mexico, a place I know well as I spent three months studying there. Tequila is our liquor of choice and we feel this brand deserves a little music to go along with it.

What does SALTY have planned for this summer in the Hamptons?

XK: We will be doing exclusive shows at both Polo dates this summer, July 22 and 29, and The Hamptons Cannabis Expo (not to be missed). You can also be sure to find us popping up with shows at The Capri Hotel in Southampton, The Sunset Beach Hotel on Shelter Island, and Navy Beach in Montauk.

ZIBBY OWENS

SHARES HER TOP 7 SPOTS FOR READING AND WRITING IN THE HAMPTONS

BY ZIBBY OWENS

I've been coming to "the country" since 1979 when our home on Cross Highway was being built next to potato farms. Now there's a Louis Vuitton in East Hampton. You never know what's going to happen in the Hamptons. My love of reading started in the summers when my mom would drive my brother and me in our Chevy Caprice Classic station wagon to the East Hampton Library. We'd fill up tote bags full of books, the shiny library casings sparkling from the top of the tote. I kept a summer reading list for school that I constantly updated and even entered the local reading competition, getting stickers and stars as I read for pleasure. What a bonus! Back then, I spent hours on my floor, my back against my wire-framed twin bed with a purple-and-white quilt, reading Marjorie Morningstar, Gone with the Wind, and others. The plastic doors creaked open on my tiny cabinet with the silver pulls every time I decided to dig in. I'd also prop myself up on my pillows some evenings and fill journals with my loopy script. Now, a mother of four myself (ages 8 to 16), I still associate all things Hamptons with reading and writing. It's where I go to plow through my wish list and write my own thoughts. Here are a few places I love going to for inspiration.

1 Shou Sugi Ban House. I wrote the beginning of my upcoming novel, BLANK, in one of the studio suites where I was finally relaxed (and not distracted!) enough to really get into it. BLANK comes out March 5, 2024. I wonder if I could've done it without being able to escape the craziness of my house nearby with four kids, in-laws, my dog, houseguests and more.

2 The East Hampton Library. I worked at one of the carrels tucked away inside the East Hampton Library on my memoir, BOOKENDS. I remember looking over and seeing the spine of THREE JUNES by Julia Glass, which was one of my favorite novels. Seeing it there that day inspired me to keep going. Then, as luck would have it, Julia Glass was pitched by her publicist to be on my podcast, Moms Don't Have Time to Read Books. I really enjoyed interviewing her and shared my full circle moment.

3 The back porch/patio of the Bridgehampton Tennis & Surf Club overlooking the ocean. This is a little bit of heaven. I like to hide out here during the mornings and work on my laptop to the sounds of the little kids' camp, the roaring ocean, the set-up for lunch service, and more. The setting is unparalleled and can't help but inspire. After writing, I walk down to the beach and read on an old beach chair under an umbrella, my toes submerged in the sand.

4 Starbucks in East Hampton. I love being right next to BookHampton where I can pop in and out to consult books, stock up, and see bookish friends. This spot is right in the middle of the action so I don't have to go too long without a break from reading and writing. Plus, when Starbucks has chocolate-covered almonds at the counter, I'm insanely happy.

5 The bench outside of Buddha Berry in Sag Harbor. Sitting here, I can finish my delicious frozen yogurt and catch up on my favorite novel or memoir. I like being around happy people and anyone coming out of there has a big smile on their face.

6 The duck pond in East Hampton. I grew up feeding the ducks our leftover Pepperidge Farm bread crusts, playing red rover with my brother in the clearing, and looking for the muskrats while treading on the nature trails. This sanctuary is a perfect place to spend time with a fabulous new read.

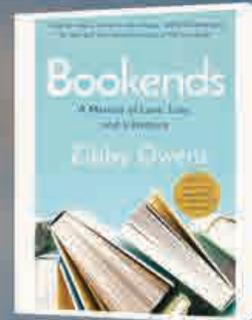

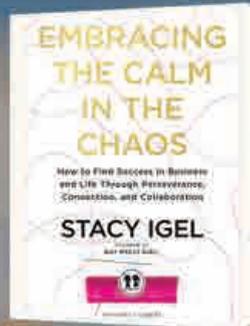

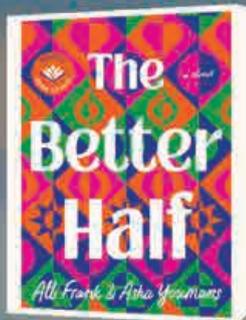

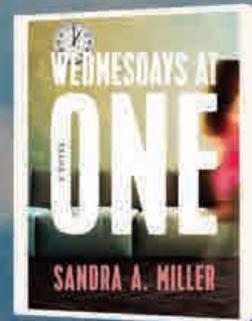

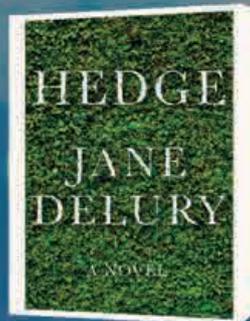

7 At home. There's nothing better than a quiet morning before everyone in my household has padded downstairs. I can sit on our covered porch, my black lab, Nya, snuggled beside me, and a steaming cup of coffee on my armrest, to immerse myself in something fabulous. The roosters crow. The ocean, barely perceptible, crashes on the shore. The fridge hums. And I sit cross-legged in an oversized armchair . . . and indulge.

Zibby Owens — author, bookstore owner, publisher and podcaster — is a Hamptons lifer who will be hosting a bookish retreat at the Shou Sugi Ban House in the Hamptons this summer. Learn more about it at zibbyretreats.com

ELIZABETH HASHAGEN

HOST OF NEWS12'S WELLNESS SHOW BEWELL

BY CHRISTINE MONTANTI

For over two decades, millions of viewers have tuned in to News 12 Long Island's Morning Show to watch Elizabeth Hashagen's anchor coverage of breaking news stories and historic events. The dynamic 13-time Emmy Award winning journalist has showcased her incomparable reporting style garnering her a position at the network reporting on subjects as diverse as live politics, health, and education, to crime and the pandemic. This also includes the unforgettable moments of Ground Zero on September 11th and the ALS Ride for Life.

Hashagen doubled down on her journalistic duties in 2020 and began covering a live news special report show, The New Normal, weekdays at 9:00 AM while simultaneously anchoring the network's Morning Show. Recently, the spirited journalist has pivoted into yet another chapter of her career, when she began hosting News 12 LI's show beWell this past April, an innovative show focusing on health and wellness that airs weekdays at 9:00 AM and 4:30 PM.

The native Long Islander first developed her passion for broadcast journalism at the age of 9 when she watched her father, an FDNY 1 — Underwater Search and Rescue Diver, on TV at the scene of a horrific helicopter crash. From that day forward, Hashagen recognized the power of storytelling and pursued a career in broadcast journalism, receiving her B.A. in Communications and Journalism from SUNY Cortland and studying abroad at the University of North London. She attended graduate school at New York Institute of Technology, studied their LI News Program, and completed an internship with News 12 Long Island's Morning Show with Carol Silva.

Hashagen was anchoring News 12 Long Island's Morning Show while she was also working as a certified fitness instructor in the health and wellness industry. She was enthused after receiving the news from producers about the network's decision to launch beWell with co-host Shannon Lanie. Hashagen explains, "As soon as they started describing this show to me, right away I had a hundred ideas. The show is about financial wellness and relationships too, so it's not just wellness; it's all of the different things that matter to you in your life because your health and mental health affect your physical health. We have learned over the years how all of this is interconnected. If you are not connected with your family and you have financial trouble, that kind of spills into your relationships. The show is about how we can live life better and make the most of what we have and have fun along the way!"

The zealous broadcaster wanted to enhance beWell's content to include important conversations about issues with finance and employment caused by the aftermath of the pandemic since many people were mandated to work from home. "Some people were able to navigate through and excelled from being able to work from home and others had a difficult adjustment. I think these are very important conversations to have about how we are handling where we are now and trying to make the best of each moment!"

BRIAN DIMARCO'S

HARLEM STANDARD WHISKEY

BY LEXI WOLF

“We’re trying to bring more than just, ‘Drink my whiskey.’ To me, it’s a lifestyle about contemplation. Maybe having a cigar or just sitting back and having a conversation, rather than just getting drunk.”

100 YEARS AFTER THE START OF THE HARLEM RENAISSANCE

“Imagine if Ocean’s Eleven and American Gangster had a baby.” That’s how Brian DiMarco conceptualizes Harlem Standard, his own whiskey brand and personal legacy project. Founded in 2020, Harlem Standard is shaking up the whiskey shelf at your local liquor store with its high-quality ingredients, keen attention to detail, and homage to the rich history of Northern Manhattan. This endeavor started after almost 25 years in the food and beverage industry.

Growing up in the suburbs of Washington, D.C., DiMarco always felt drawn to Manhattan when as a child he rode the train to Penn Station to meet his dad, who always used to tell his son that he’d be moving here someday. And in 1992 he did.

FRENCH CULINARY INSTITUTE

During the period post 9/11, like many people, he began to reevaluate his life. He decided to leave behind his career in advertising, where he managed brands such as Panasonic and Canon. He enrolled at the French Culinary Institute (FCI) in Soho. There, he was mentored by titans of the industry, including Jacques Pépin. He even received a master’s certificate in bread making; however, DiMarco claims he hasn’t baked a single loaf since. Nonetheless, this experience sparked his passion for food.

MOUNT OLYMPUS

After a year at the FCI, DiMarco went on to work at the pinnacle of the industry, or what he refers to as “the Mount Olympus of cooking.” At the time this was the Food Network, and he started with Emeril Lagasse as a chef for his various programs. “Everyone thought they were getting their own show, including me.” Although, technically, DiMarco did. “I pitched a show to a producer, and they ended up giving it to Tyler Florence. The premise was you would go into someone’s refrigerator and pantry and [make a meal] with whatever they had.” His once meager pitch, turned into two years and 65 episodes. “It was a good run,” he says.

THE WINE BUG

During a break from his demanding taping schedule, DiMarco received a call from an old culinary-school friend who was the general manager at Sherry-Lehmann, a high-end wine shop on Park Avenue. “He said, ‘Come work at the shop, learn about wine, and be a salesperson.’ It didn’t pay very well, but I said, ‘Look, it’s not about the money. I just want to stay in the food and wine business. It’s in my blood now.’” During this period was when he truly caught the wine bug and reached the point of no return. “I went crazy. I became a bit of a savant on fine and rare wines,” he says.

From there, he started his own company, Barterhouse, an importer of wine and spirits, which he stuck with for 15 years. “I was traveling, doing exactly what I wanted. Going to Provence, finding someone who makes amazing rosé, importing it to the US, and trying to sell it,” he recalls. The only downside was his lack of ownership of the actual product. Cue Harlem Standard.

STEEPED IN JAZZ

The idea came in 2018 and became a full-fledged business in early 2020. The launch conveniently landed a hundred years after the Harlem Renaissance era began. “We started the brand with this idea of steeping it in music, specifically in jazz. That music is really what inspires the brand,” he says. To reinforce this ideal, DiMarco even created a public Spotify playlist with over 24 hours’ worth of music featuring artists like Dizzy Gillespie, Duke Ellington, and Bill Withers. “We’re trying to bring more than just, ‘Drink my whiskey,’” he explains. “To me, it’s a lifestyle about contemplation. Maybe having a cigar or just sitting back and having a conversation, rather than just getting drunk.”

Although the whiskey itself has the excellence to stand on its own, without any in-depth backstory or lifestyle concepts.

Over-proofed, unfiltered, and made with non-GMO corn from Indiana, Harlem Standard’s products “appeal to the whiskey nerd,” says DiMarco. DiMarco currently offers four spirits for both novices and expert whiskey lovers, and each is barreled in Kentucky, the home of bourbon and other whiskeys.

THE HARLEM NAME

DiMarco is also conscious of the cultural implications of the Harlem name. “I think you need to be responsible and respectful. You need to show up, and not just appropriate a name.” Therefore, he made it his mission to have his brand become part of the neighborhood it is named after, which he achieved through community partnerships with institutions such as The Boys and Girls Club of Harlem, the National Jazz Museum, and The Greater Harlem Chamber of Commerce. Some of the proceeds from their sales supported musicians who were unable to work. “I’m 50 going on 35,” he says. “We’ve done a lot, but I want to be able to say I did something good for the community.”

SPIRITED CHIC

BY SHARON ROTH

Redefining or inventing? Luxury brand and whiskey guru Stefano Pileggi has carved out a new niche among Madison Avenue's finest shops — a fabulously opulent spirits boutique experience on par with Hermès or Van Cleef.

Born out of Pileggi's realization that the exclusive spirits retail destination he kept seeking simply didn't exist, Collezione New York opened its doors this spring, inviting both seasoned collectors and neophytes to peruse, admire, and learn. Enthusiasm for the world of luxury imbibing is all that is required: Collezione carries labels ranging from $80 to the thousands. Serious collectors can view — and in some cases take home — museum-worthy whiskeys such as a 1964 Black Bowmore in a bottle designed by Aston Martin, a 30-year-old Hibiki Kacho Fugetsu, or a Macallan distilled in 1938, among many other carefully curated items. High-end wines and Champagnes also grace the shelves, and Pileggi plans to expand to include American whiskey, tequila, and cognac.

Not just a mere store, explains Pileggi, Collezione is an immersive, luxury experience of exploration, education and enjoyment — where clients can delight in a lovely afternoon of lunch at Amaranth or Fleming, shop on Madison, and then drop in at Collezione to select a bottle to savor that evening at home.

To this end, Pileggi hosts both individual clients and tastings in his chandeliered establishment — artfully fashioned to resemble a luxury jewelry store or old-world European haberdashery. Classic, with rich tones of British green and ambient lighting, complete with plush chairs and bottles displayed like a rare book library,

Pileggi's décor is both inviting and multilayered. While the boutique's entry room is open for browsing for both the serious and the simply curious, a private back room hosts more avid collectors and aficionados for tea, espresso, and longer chats on wine, spirits, and life. Beyond that, there is rumored to be a third "inner sanctum" where Collezione's most regular clients may be invited to view his rarest bottles. Perhaps. . . 😊

Collezione is also a premium destination for gifts, customized experiences and even private tastings and events. Pileggi recalls a new client who recently contacted him about her husband, who loves a certain whiskey but was missing certain vintages. The spirits entrepreneur not only provided the bottles she asked for, but happily planned for the husband to receive the deluxe gift as a birthday surprise in the private collector's room.

Exclusive packaging is also part of the Collezione brand. Bottles are wrapped and placed in premium signature bags like any Madison Avenue boutique, giving even a more commonly available $80 bottle an added cachet.

And do not fear, year-round Hamptons residents will not miss out: Collezione provides white-glove delivery to the Hamptons. And look for Collezione tastings out East this summer as well.

This Fourth, bring something a little different for your hosts — or guests. Whatever your libation of choice — rare single malt, luxury champagne or just a tasty whiskey, martini, or rosé — cheers to a safe and happy holiday!
